Item 8.01. Other Events.

On October 9, 2018, Agile Therapeutics, Inc. (the Company) issued a press release announcing the decision of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, or FDA, Office of New Drugs, or OND, regarding the Company's formal dispute resolution request. In the OND decision, received by the Company on October 4, 2018, OND formally denied the Company's appeal and provided a path forward without the need to reformulate Twirla or conduct a bioequivalence study between formulations, as previously suggested by the Division of Bone, Reproductive and Urological Products, or DBRUP. OND suggested that the Company conduct a wear study to evaluate whether Twirla demonstrates generally similar adhesion performance Xulane®, the generic version of the previously marketed Ortho Evra® contraceptive patch, a product the FDA considers to have acceptable adhesion. If this result is demonstrated, OND stated that the study would support the conclusion of adequate Twirla adhesion. The path forward does not address efficacy. Rather, if the wear study is successful, Twirla's safety and efficacy, including the Pearl Index, will need to be reviewed by the FDA. This is an issue that DBRUP plans to bring to Advisory Committee after the adhesion issue has been resolved. The Company plans to meet with the FDA to discuss the specifics of the proposed wear study as soon as possible. After agreeing on the parameters of the wear study with the FDA, the Company anticipates providing a further business update, which will review the Company's cash guidance and planned resubmission timeline.

A copy of the Company's press release is attached hereto as Exhibit 99.1 and is hereby incorporated by reference herein.

Xulane® is a registered trademark of Mylan N.V., and Ortho Evra® is a registered trademark of Johnson & Johnson.
