STORAGENETWORKS ANNOUNCES PLAN OF LIQUIDATION

AND RELEASES SECOND QUARTER RESULTS

July 31, 2003 (Waltham, MA) StorageNetworks, Inc. (NASDAQ: STOR) announced today that its Board of Directors has approved a plan of liquidation of the company and that it will file a proxy statement seeking shareholder approval of such plan. In connection with the plan of liquidation, the company also announced that it has terminated all remaining employees of the company with the exception of a small transition team that will oversee the wind down of the business. Paul Flanagan, CEO and president, also announced that he is leaving the company immediately, but plans to remain on the Board of Directors through the liquidation period.

As previously announced, the Board of Directors determined in the first quarter of 2003 that, in order to maximize the cash value of our managed service business, we should attempt to exit that business by June 30, 2003, stated Flanagan. In the first quarter of this year we also announced that we had engaged investment bankers to evaluate all opportunities available to the company to maximize shareholder value. With our investment bankers, the Board of Directors evaluated opportunities to sell the company or to acquire other companies or technologies, explored the viability of StorageNetworks continuing on its path as an independent software vendor building products for the storage resource management space, and assessed the liquidation value of the company.

With regard to our decision to exit the managed services business, we executed right on schedule, continued Flanagan. During the first six months of the year the company successfully terminated or transitioned all of its managed service customers, generating $31.1 million in proceeds from these customers. During the same period of time, the company reduced its capital lease debt associated with the managed service business from $29.2 million to $3.5 million and eliminated all data center floor space agreements and commitments, contributing to income from discontinued operations of the managed services business of $41.5 million. On June 30, 2003, the company announced that it had completed its plan to exit the managed services business and terminated all employees associated with that business.

As the company executed on its plan to exit the managed service business, the company and its investment bankers ran a full and extensive sales process seeking out third parties that would be interested in acquiring StorageNetworks. Interest in acquiring the company was limited, and the only interest that was expressed was at price points below what we estimated as our liquidation value. Therefore, the Board of Directors determined that selling the company at those price points was not the right answer for our shareholders, stated Flanagan.

In addition to its efforts to find a buyer, the company also worked extensively with another investment bank exploring opportunities to acquire technology or companies with technology. We evaluated a number of opportunities, stated Flanagan. In each case we determined, based on valuation, the state and maturity of the technology and market, and the funding required to support the technology or company, that the opportunity was not one that we felt was the right investment for StorageNetworks and its shareholders.

The company also evaluated the opportunity to continue as an independent software vendor in the storage resource management (SRM) space.

To be successful in the SRM space, we would need to incur a significant cash burn rate beginning in the third quarter and going forward for a significant period of time to support development costs and the purchase of expensive, rapidly depreciating and ever- changing storage equipment necessary to ensure that our software was compatible with that equipment. Even if we were to emerge successfully from the crowded field of competitors, which includes all of the major storage technology companies, the realization of a meaningful return on this investment is uncertain and could take years, stated Flanagan.

The company, with its investment banking advisors, also analyzed the liquidation value of the company. As of June 30, 2003, the company had cash, restricted cash and investments of $201.0 million, a $1.0 million increase from March 31, 2003. Net cash (defined as total cash, restricted cash and investments less total capital lease debt) at June 30, 2003 was $197.5 million, an increase of $3.5 million from March 31, 2003. Total liabilities recorded on the balance sheet were $24.9 million at June 30, 2003, a $27.3 million decrease from March 31, 2003. The company successfully terminated certain of its real estate related off-balance sheet liabilities at dates prior to the natural expiration dates, and in some cases for amounts less than the accrual for future unutilized space. Accordingly, included in the reduction in liabilities was a $9.7 million reversal of an accrual for vacant office space for the period from July 1, 2003 through December 31, 2010.

In addition to converting its remaining assets to cash and satisfying the liabilities currently on its balance sheet, in liquidation the company anticipates using cash in the next several months for a number of items, including but not limited to: (i) ongoing operating costs, including dissolution transaction costs of at least $4.0 million, (ii) employee severance and related costs of at least $4.1 million and (iii) other costs, including insurance costs, costs to terminate existing leases and asset disposal costs of at least $3.9 million. In addition, the company may incur additional liabilities arising out of contingent claims that are not reflected as liabilities on the company's balance sheet. As a result, the company currently estimates that it would be able to distribute to its stockholders, in one or more distributions over time, approximately $1.60 $1.70 per share in a liquidation.

Reviewing the options available to the company, the Board of Directors has determined that the best way to maximize shareholder value is to immediately liquidate the business and distribute the excess cash in the company to the shareholders, continued Flanagan.

If the stockholders approve the plan of liquidation, the company intends to dissolve by filing a certificate of dissolution, liquidate its remaining assets, satisfy its remaining obligations and make one or more distributions to its stockholders of cash available for distribution. The company currently anticipates that the certificate of dissolution would be filed within approximately 20 days following stockholder approval of the plan of liquidation. Upon filing of the certificate of dissolution, the company expects to delist its shares from NASDAQ and close its stock transfer books, which would generally prohibit any further transfers of its shares following dissolution. The company anticipates making an initial distribution to stockholders within approximately 20 days following the filing of the certificate of dissolution. The timing of these events cannot be predicted with certainty at this time and is subject to change.

The company also released its second quarter results, including its results from its discontinued managed services segment.

Income from discontinued operations was $23.0 million and $41.5 million for the three and six months ended June 30, 2003 compared with $4.4 million and $9.3 million for the same periods in the prior year. Revenues for the three and six months ended June 30, 2003 from the discontinued segment, which included non-recurring revenues of $4.5 million and $7.9 million, were $15.2 million and $31.1, compared with revenues of $22.4 million and $53.1 million in the same periods in the prior year. Included in income from discontinued operations for the 2003 periods was a recovery of a restructuring accrual related to fiber obligations of the managed service segment of $3.8 million, net proceeds of $10.4 million received during the first quarter of 2003 from an insurance settlement relating to equipment damaged during the attacks on the World Trade Center on September 11, 2001 and the recovery of $9.7 million from the reversal for an accrual for vacant office space for the period from July 1, 2003 through December 31, 2010. As noted earlier, this accrual was reversed because the company terminated certain real estate obligations earlier than their original termination dates and, in some cases, for amounts less than the accrual for future unutilized space, thus resulting in the recovery of the accrual.

Revenues from the company's software and services segment totaled $327,000 and $688,000 for the three and six months ended June 30, 2003, compared with $1.3 million and $2.3 million for the same periods in the prior year. The decrease resulted primarily from lower professional services revenues.

Loss from continuing operations was $3.8 million and $6.6 million for the three and six months ended June 30, 2003 compared with operating losses of $10.0 million and $20.2 million in the same periods in the prior year.

During the quarter, we increased total cash by $1.0 million, and net cash by $3.5 million. For the six-months ended June 30, 2003, we increased net cash by $11.1 million. Our days sales outstanding were 25 days in the second quarter. We completed the exit of the managed service business and capitalized on the remaining value of the contracts while eliminating many of the obligations associated with that business, thus allowing us to conserve our cash and put us in a position to maximize shareholder value through a liquidation, stated Scott Dussault, Chief Financial Officer of StorageNetworks.

The Company also announced that Paul Flanagan would be leaving the company immediately to pursue other opportunities. Dean Breda, StorageNetworks General Counsel, will take over the day-to-day responsibilities of President and Chief Executive Officer of StorageNetworks during the liquidation period.

I have been with StorageNetworks from just about the beginning, when the original business plan was just that a plan. After the years of hard work and determination put forth by every employee of StorageNetworks, it is very difficult to stop fighting. However, after having evaluated all the alternatives, I am very confident that we are doing the right thing to maximize the value to our shareholders at the optimal time. I want to thank each current and former employee of StorageNetworks and wish them well in the future, concluded Flanagan.
