Jim Prokopanko & Larry Stranghoener

Internal Announcement Script

JIM: Good day. Thank you for joining us to hear about our recently announced transaction with Cargill.

I'm Jim Prokopanko, President and Chief Executive Officer of Mosaic.

LARRY: And I'm Larry Stranghoener, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer.

JIM: One of the questions we are frequently asked by employees and investors is what Cargill will do with its Mosaic shares. Well, today we have that answer.

As you have already heard, we announced that Cargill is planning to distribute its 64 percent ownership stake in Mosaic.

Larry and I are pleased to have this opportunity to provide an overview of this transaction, and share our thoughts with you on what it means for each of us, and our company.

First, let me say this transaction is great news for Mosaic because it gives us greater strategic and financial flexibility to fulfill our mission of helping the world grow the food it needs.

From a Mosaic employee perspective, you will see very little change, if any.

This transaction will have no impact on our day-to-day operations, and your regular responsibilities will not change in any way.

For many of us at Mosaic, Cargill is a company we have known well for many years. As you know, Mosaic was formed in 2004 through the merger of Cargill's crop nutrition business and IMC Global, and since that time, Cargill has been Mosaic's largest shareholder.

Some of you may be asking yourself why is Cargill changing its ownership position in Mosaic? The answer is that this transaction will enable Cargill to accomplish several important objectives, including meeting the diversification and distribution needs of key stakeholders.

Following the death of Margaret Cargill in 2006, her estate, including a large number of Cargill shares, were transferred to the estate's charitable trust.

The trusts have certain cash requirements to help fulfill their own philanthropic missions and this transaction supports that need.

I want to emphasize that Cargill continues to have the utmost confidence in our future prospects.

Were it not for Cargill's desire to accomplish a number of important business objectives including meeting the diversification and distribution needs of the charitable trusts it is unlikely that they would be taking this action.

Our commercial relationship with Cargill will not change as a result of this transaction. Mosaic will remain a valued supplier to Cargill.

I'm very excited about what this means for Mosaic.

Going forward, I believe we will be better positioned to capitalize on the positive outlook for our industry, retain our market leading positions, and reinforce existing competitive advantages.

Now, I'd now like to turn it over to Larry, who will provide some additional details.

LARRY: Thank you, Jim.

I want to first echo Jim's sentiments, and let you know that this transaction has the full support of our entire management team.

It has already been approved by our Board of Directors and the Special Committee we formed to evaluate it. Cargill and the charitable trusts have also approved the transaction.

So what happens next? Well, Mosaic's non-Cargill shareholders will be required to vote on and approve the transaction.

We expect it to close in the second calendar quarter of 2011, subject to certain conditions, at which time we will conduct the first of several public offerings of the Mosaic shares currently held by Cargill.

Note that the distribution of Cargill's ownership stake in Mosaic will take a few years to be completed.

We structured the transaction in this manner in order to ensure that the shares were distributed in an orderly manner.

If you are a Mosaic shareholder, you should note that this transaction will not increase the number of shares outstanding, and therefore, will not be dilutive to earnings per share.

Over the long term, we expect this transaction will create more value for all shareholders by increasing our liquidity in the market and freeing us up to make strategic and financial decisions for our business that are in the best interest of our shareholders, and our company.

This is a complicated transaction; and, so, we have developed a set of frequently asked questions to address concerns you may have. This FAQ has been posted at various Mosaic locations and also on our employee web site.

With that Jim, I'll turn it back to you.

JIM: Thank you, Larry.

I want to wrap up by thanking all of you for your continued commitment and contribution to our company's success.

Mosaic has grown to become a recognized leader in the global agriculture industry and it wouldn't have happened without your hard work and support.

We are very optimistic about our future, and we look forward to continuing to work together.
