Valspar Week One Employee Update Letter

Fellow Valspar employee,

It has been a busy week since we announced our combination with Sherwin-Williams. I recognize that you have had a lot to absorb these past few days. Now that you've had some time to learn about this exciting transaction, I wanted to connect with you to address some important topics.

I'm pleased to report that customer reaction to the transaction has been overwhelmingly positive so far, and we are extremely encouraged by their feedback. By combining with Sherwin-Williams, we will be able to offer our customers a broader assortment of products, improved technology capabilities, and additional scope and scale. Following the close of the transaction, we expect that very little will change for the majority of our customers, except they will have access to enhanced products and services. For now, it is business as usual and customers should continue to interact with the Valspar contacts with whom they have built relationships. I want to reiterate that this combination will not result in any changes to our objectives in the near-term and we will continue to operate as separate companies.

Please remember that there are still many details to work through to complete the transaction. Over the coming months, we expect to build an integration planning team comprised of members from each company that will work to address how we can best utilize each other's capabilities and bring our companies together. The results of the integration planning process will not be implemented until after the transaction is completed, and the contributions of Valspar employees will be very important to the success of the integration of our two companies. As for immediate next steps, we will be filing our preliminary proxy statement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission by mid-April. This filing is necessary before we can hold our shareholder meeting to vote on the transaction.

Some of you have already reached out with questions. We want to address as many of these as we can and we are committed to openness. Subject to regulatory restrictions, we will continue to communicate new information to you throughout the process leading up to close. In addition, going forward, you may submit your questions to communications@valspar.com. Based on your submissions, we will periodically update the employee FAQs that were first provided when the transaction was announced.

Please continue to focus on our projects and priorities and provide our customers with the high level of support that they have come to expect from Valspar. In short, let's keep doing all the things that make Valspar the successful company it is today.

On behalf of the entire senior management team, I want to thank you for your continued professionalism and dedication to Valspar.

Sincerely,

Gary E. Hendrickson

Chairman and CEO
