ANGLOGOLD ASHANTI ANNOUNCES $121M EXPANSION PROJECT IN BRAZIL

AngloGold Ashanti announced today that its Board had approved a $121m expansion project at the company's Cuiaba mine in south-eastern Brazil. The go-ahead was given at the Board meeting held in Johannesburg yesterday.

The project will focus on the deepening of the mine to access the Serrotinho and Fonte Grande orebodies, located below the existing mine, which account for 60% of the total mineral resource at Cuiaba. Production will increase from the current level of 190,000oz per year to 250,000oz at a cost of $169/oz over the life of the project and will extend the life of mine profile by six years to 2019.

Accessing these additional ounces will require a deepening of the existing mine by extending the ramp from level 11 to level 21, the deepest point at which surface drilling has intersected the main orebodies. To accommodate the resulting increase in mining volume, the project will include upgrading shaft hoisting capacity and constructing new milling and flotation facilities at the Cuiaba shaft area. Flotation concentrate will be transported via the existing aerial ropeway to the treatment plant at Queiroz, located 16km from the mine, where another roaster and acid plant will be built and the current leaching facilities upgraded. The existing milling and flotation facilities at Queiroz will be decommissioned.

Implementation of the deepening will commence immediately in order to commission the expansion in December 2006, ramping up to full production by the end of the second quarter of 2007.

In addition to significantly increasing production at Cuiaba, the completed deepening project may also provide a new opportunity to exploit the narrow vein orebodies below level 11 at Cuiaba mine as well as the Lamego deposit in the area. Conceptual studies have highlighted the potential to extract significant value from these areas, which would otherwise be sterilised, using the infrastructure that the Cuiaba expansion will provide.
