The Fund seeks long-term capital appreciation primarily through investment in middle-market German equities.

Investments in funds involve risks, including the loss of principal.

The shares of most closed-end funds, including the Fund, are not continuously offered. Once issued, shares of closed-end funds are bought and sold in the open market. Shares of closed-end funds frequently trade at a discount to net asset value. The price of the Fund's shares is determined by a number of factors, several of which are beyond the control of the Fund. Therefore, the Fund cannot predict whether its shares will trade at, below, or above net asset value.

This Fund is diversified, but primarily focuses its investments in Germany, thereby increasing its vulnerability to developments in that country. Investing in foreign securities, particularly those of emerging markets, presents certain risks, such as currency fluctuations, political and economic changes and market risks. Any fund that concentrates in a particular segment of the market or in a particular geographical region will generally be more volatile than a fund that invests more broadly.

The European Union, the United States and other countries have imposed sanctions in response to the Russian military and other actions in recent years. These sanctions have adversely affected Russian individuals, Russian issuers and the Russian economy. Russia, in turn, has imposed sanctions targeting Western individuals, businesses and products. The various sanctions have adversely affected, and may continue to adversely affect, not only the Russian economy but also the economies of many countries in Europe, including Germany. The continuation of current sanctions or the imposition of additional sanctions may materially adversely affect the value of the Fund's portfolio.

In June 2016, citizens of the United Kingdom voted that the United Kingdom should leave the European Union and in March 2017, the United Kingdom initiated its withdrawal from the European Union, which is expected to take place by March 2019. Significant uncertainty exists regarding the timing and terms of the United Kingdom's anticipated withdrawal from the European Union and the effects such withdrawal may have on the United Kingdom, other European countries and the global economy.

Letter to the Shareholders

(Unaudited)

Dear Shareholder,

For the six-month period ended June 30, 2018, the total return of the New Germany Fund Inc. (the Fund) in U.S. dollars (USD) was -0.83% based on net asset value and 2.50% based on market price. During the same period, the total return in USD of the Fund's benchmark, the Midcap Market Index, was 1.08%. The Fund's discount to net asset value averaged 10.41% for the period in review, compared with 11.22% over the same period in 2017.

During the first half of 2018, German equity markets exhibited volatile performance and closed the period with a slightly positive return in euro terms and a slightly negative return in USD due to a weaker euro. After reaching near-term highs in late January, markets receded due to uncertainty regarding possible negative effects from U.S. trade policy, i.e., the implementation of tariffs on certain imported goods. The indecisive result of the Italian election also weighed on markets. Indicators of market volatility then declined somewhat in the United States and the Eurozone, but remain at elevated levels. At the same time, however, global growth indicators became more favorable in the second quarter and supported financial markets until the end of June.

German economic sentiment indicators began to weaken during the first quarter but recovered somewhat toward the end of the second quarter. In general, those indicators remain at high levels, indicating a growing German economy. Consumer confidence also remained near historically high levels. The German labor market stayed strong, mirrored by an additional decline in the country's unemployment rate to 5%. On average, wages increased solidly by 2.7% year-over-year in the first quarter of 2018. Based on these figures, we expect private consumption to continue to be a solid contributor to German GDP.² We also expect imports to rise due to a still healthy rate of consumption, but we think that the current global trend toward protectionism in light of recent U.S. trade policies and retaliatory measures by other countries could depress export growth in Germany.

The Fund's slight relative outperformance of the benchmark during the six-month period was helped by its holdings in consumer and health care stocks. Within the consumer sector, the Fund's position in the sporting goods company Puma SE contributed to outperformance. Investors reacted positively to Puma's strong mid-term growth outlook. Within the health care sector, the Fund's holdings in Sartorius AG, a supplier of equipment and consumables to the biotechnology industry, also added to returns. Positioning within the industrials and real estate sectors represented the main detractors from performance. The Fund's underweight to the real estate sector detracted as the segment outperformed. Within industrials, the Fund's position in OSRAM Licht AG subtracted from performance.

During the period, the Fund's overweight in industrials was increased as it built new positions in companies that benefit from accelerating capital expenditures.³ Within information technology, the Fund reduced its overweight position as it took profits following strong performance in several technology holdings. In addition, new positions were financed by decreasing the Fund's weightings in the utilities and materials sectors. As of June 30, the Fund's largest sector overweights were information technology and industrials, and the largest underweight continued to be the real estate sector.

During the first half of 2018, we saw a transition to late-cycle tendencies within the German economy. We do not expect any weakening of the country's economy, and continue to foresee a multi-year, globally synchronized economic expansion. World-wide, we expect economic growth to accelerate slightly to 3.9% in 2018. Resulting solid earnings growth should continue to attract investors to equities. While we have probably witnessed the peak in earnings growth for the current cycle, we nevertheless foresee the absolute peak in earnings several years further out, and we therefore remain constructive regarding equities. In aggregate, earnings expectations have remained stable during the past several months and are on track for double-digit earnings growth in the emerging markets and the United States (where approximately half of the growth would be tax-driven), with high single-digit earnings growth elsewhere. However, the risks from protectionist U.S. trade policies have become a serious threat that requires close monitoring. In order to discount rising concerns regarding unpredictable U.S. trade policies, we are adding some safety cushioning to our target valuations.

We have reduced our 2018 forecast for German GDP slightly, based on weaker than expected first-quarter growth. Although a large part of the weakness can be explained by temporary factors, we do not expect complete compensation for the weaker first quarter during the remainder of the year given intensifying trade conflicts. Thus, our 2018 GDP growth forecast for Germany has been adjusted to 2.1% from 2.3%. Investment activity, which has been fueled by strong export demand and considerably higher capacity utilization, and consumption supported by employment and wage growth are expected to remain the main growth drivers. As capacity utilization rises above the long-term average, investment in machinery and equipment should remain strong. Imports should increase due to still solid consumption, but the tendency toward protectionism from recent U.S. trade policies and retaliatory measures by other countries could reduce German export growth.

We are retaining the Fund's cyclical sector bias by overweighting industrials and technology, financed by underweights in defensive sectors such as real estate, utilities and telecommunications. The underweights in telecommunications and real estate stocks are based on our expectations for a modest rise in long-term interest rates. The Fund is also selectively positioned to benefit from the still benign German consumption environment. At the same time, we are closely monitoring potential disruptions from the ongoing trend toward digitalization. We continue to hold positive views regarding industrials and information technology stocks as we expect those sectors to benefit from the current macroeconomic environment as well as accelerating investment spending.

On June 18, 2018 Deutsche Börse announced that it will discontinue the Midcap Market Index effective September 21, 2018. In light of this change on July 27, 2018, the Fund's Board of Directors approved a change of the Fund's benchmark index from the Midcap Market Index to a custom blend of the German Mid Cap Index (the MDAX Index), 80% weight, and the German Small Cap Index (the SDAX Index), 20% weight. The MDAX Index is comprised of 60 mid-cap German companies from all industries that rank directly below DAX equities in terms of market capitalization and exchange turnover. The SDAX Index is comprised of 70 German companies from all industries that rank directly below DAX equities in terms of market capitalization and exchange turnover. We believe that the new custom blended benchmark more accurately captures the Fund's focus on German small- and mid-cap stocks than any available unblended alternative index.

Sincerely,

Christian Strenger

Valerie Schueler

Question: How is intensifying U.S. trade rhetoric and policy impacting the German economy?

Answer: The United States continues to be the single most important export market for Germany, representing 8.7% of German exports in 2017. At the moment, Trump's focus is on tariffs for the German automotive industry. That industry had an 18% share in German export goods in 2017, and was the sector with the largest weighting. Of German automotive exports, 12.2% went into the United State in 2017. All other factors remaining equal, higher U.S. import tariffs would certainly weigh on German car exports and the overall German economy. There could also be negative spillover effects from trade tensions between the United States and China: As China represented 6.7% of German exports in 2017, a slowdown in Chinese GDP due to trade restrictions would also weaken demand from this region. We have therefore reduced the Fund's position in automotive suppliers to an underweight over the course of the first half of the year, as we expect automotive end-markets to slow.

Question: Assuming private consumption should again be the key element of German GDP growth in 2018, what is driving German consumption?

Answer: Private consumption in Germany has been supported by a strong increase in national income (+4% year-over-year). Wage income grew dynamically in a year-over-year comparison, up 4.6%. The very favorable labor market situation continues to support household consumption as well. The total number of workers was up 1.4% year-over-year, or 609,000, in the first quarter, and the unemployment rate declined. Against this backdrop, wage negotiations in the public sector (2018: +3%), the metals and electronics industry (2018: +3.9%) and the construction sector (2018: +4.7%) resulted in very strong wage increases. The majority of these agreements had come on line in the second quarter of 2018 and should further boost German household consumption. This should outweigh headwinds from the recent depreciation in the euro.

Apart from its automotive exposure, the Fund has an overweight position in consumer stocks; however, the overweight is very selective as store-based retailers are structurally challenged by increasing online penetration.

Table of ContentsNotes to Financial Statements*(Unaudited)*A. Accounting Policies

The New Germany Fund, Inc. (the Fund) was incorporated in Maryland on January 16, 1990 as a non-diversified, closed-end management investment company. The Fund commenced investment operations on January 30, 1990. The Fund became a diversified fund on October 26, 2007.

The preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (U.S. GAAP) requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The Fund qualifies as an investment company under Topic 946 of Accounting Standards Codification of U.S. GAAP. The following is a summary of significant accounting policies followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements.

Security Valuation. The Fund calculates its net asset value (NAV) per share for publication at the close of regular trading on Deutsche Börse XETRA, normally at 11:30 a.m., New York time.

Various inputs are used in determining the value of the Fund's investments. These inputs are summarized in three broad levels. Level 1 includes quoted prices in active markets for identical securities. Level 2 includes other significant observable inputs (including quoted prices for similar securities, interest rates, prepayment speeds and credit risk). Level 3 includes significant unobservable inputs (including the Fund's own assumptions in determining the fair value of investments). The level assigned to the securities valuations may not be an indication of the risk or liquidity associated with investing in those securities.

Equity securities are valued at the most recent sale price or official closing price reported on the exchange (U.S. or foreign) or over-the-counter market on which they trade prior to the time of valuation. Securities for which no sales are reported are valued at the calculated mean between the most recent bid and asked quotations on the relevant market or, if a mean cannot be determined, at the most recent bid quotation. Equity securities are generally categorized as Level 1.

Investments in open-end investment companies and closed-end investment companies are valued and traded at their NAV each business day and are categorized as Level 1.

Securities and other assets for which market quotations are not readily available or for which the above valuation procedures are deemed not to reflect fair value are valued in a manner that is intended to reflect their fair value as determined in accordance with procedures approved by the Board and are generally categorized as Level 3. In accordance with the Fund's valuation procedures, factors considered in determining value may include, but are not limited to, the type of the security; the size of the holding; the initial cost of the security; the existence of any contractual restrictions on the security's disposition; the price and extent of public trading in similar securities of the issuer or of comparable companies; quotations or evaluated prices from broker-dealers and/or the appropriate stock exchange (for exchange-traded securities); an analysis of the company's or issuer's financial statements; an evaluation of the forces that influence the issuer and the market(s) in which the security is purchased and sold; and, with respect to debt securities, the maturity, coupon, creditworthiness, currency denomination and the movement of the market in which the security is normally traded. The value determined under these procedures may differ from published values for the same securities.

Disclosure about the classification of the fair value measurements is included in a table following the Fund's Schedule of Investments.

Securities Transactions and Investment Income. Investment transactions are accounted for on a trade date plus one basis for daily NAV calculation. However, for financial reporting purposes, investment security transactions are reported on trade date. Interest income is recorded on the accrual basis. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date net of foreign withholding taxes. Certain dividends from foreign securities may be recorded subsequent to the ex-dividend date as soon as the Fund is informed of such dividends. Realized gains and losses from investment transactions are recorded on an identified cost basis. Proceeds from litigation payments, if any, are included in net realized gain (loss) for investments.

Securities Lending. Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., as lending agent, lends securities of the Fund to certain financial institutions under the terms of its securities lending agreement. During the term of the loans, the Fund continues to receive interest and dividends generated by the securities and to participate in any changes in their market value. The Fund requires the borrowers of the securities to maintain collateral with the Fund consisting of either cash or liquid, unencumbered assets having a value at least equal to the value of the securities loaned. When the collateral falls below specified amounts, the lending agent will use its best effort to obtain additional collateral on the next business day to meet required amounts under the securities lending agreement. As of period end, any securities on loan were collateralized by cash. During the six months ended June 30, 2018, the Fund invested the cash collateral into a joint trading account in affiliated money market funds managed by DWS Investment Management Americas, Inc. As of June 30, 2018, the Fund invested the cash collateral in DWS Government & Agency Securities Portfolio. DWS Investment Management Americas, Inc. receives a management/administration fee (0.14% annualized effective rate as of June 30, 2018) on the cash collateral invested in DWS Government & Agency Securities Portfolio. The Fund receives compensation for lending its securities either in the form of fees or by earning interest on invested cash collateral net of borrower rebates and fees paid to a lending agent. Either the Fund or the borrower may terminate the loan at any time and the borrower, after notice, is required to return borrowed securities within a standard time period. There may be risks of delay and costs in recovery of securities or even loss of rights in the collateral should the borrower of the securities fail financially. If the Fund is not able to recover securities lent, the Fund may sell the collateral and purchase a replacement investment in the market, incurring the risk that the value of the replacement security is greater than the value of the collateral. The Fund is also subject to all investment risks associated with the reinvestment of any cash collateral received including, but not limited to, interest rate, credit and liquidity risk associated with such investments.

As of June 30, 2018, the Fund had securities on loan which were classified as common stock in the Schedule of Investments. The value of the related collateral exceeded the value of the securities loaned at period end. As of period end, the remaining contractual maturity of the collateral agreements were overnight and continuous.

Foreign Currency Translation. The books and records of the Fund are maintained in United States dollars.

Assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency are translated into United States dollars at the prevailing exchange rates at period end. Purchases and sales of investment securities, income and expenses are translated at the rate of exchange prevailing on the respective dates of such transactions. Net realized and unrealized gains and losses on foreign currency transactions represent net gains and losses between trade and settlement dates on securities transactions, the acquisition and disposition of foreign currencies, and the difference between the amount of net investment income accrued and the U.S. dollar amount actually received. The portion of both realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments that results from fluctuations in foreign currency exchange rates is not separately disclosed but is included with net realized and unrealized gain/appreciation and loss/depreciation on investments.

At June 30, 2018, the exchange rate was EUR 1.00 to USD $1.17.

Contingencies. In the normal course of business, the Fund may enter into contracts with service providers that contain general indemnification clauses. The Fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown, as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Fund that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, the Fund expects the risk of loss to be remote.

Taxes. The Fund's policy is to comply with the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended, which are applicable to regulated investment companies, and to distribute all of its taxable income to its shareholders.

Additionally, the Fund may be subject to taxes imposed by the governments of countries in which it invests. Such taxes are generally based on income and/or capital gains earned or repatriated. Estimated tax liabilities on certain foreign securities are recorded on an accrual basis and are reflected as components of interest income or net change in unrealized gain/loss on investments. Tax liabilities realized as a result of security sales are reflected as a component of net realized gain/loss on investments.

At December 31, 2017, the aggregate cost of investments for federal income tax purposes was $207,288,244. The net unrealized appreciation for all investments based on tax cost was $146,474,893. This consisted of aggregate gross unrealized appreciation for all investments in which there was an excess of value over tax cost of $157,088,993 and aggregate gross unrealized depreciation for all investments in which there was an excess of tax cost over value of $10,614,100.

The Fund has reviewed the tax positions for the open tax years as of December 31, 2017 and has determined that no provision for income tax and/or uncertain tax provisions is required in the Fund's financial statements. The Fund's federal tax returns for the prior three fiscal years remain open subject to examinations by the Internal Revenue Service.

Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders. The Fund records dividends and distributions to its shareholders on the ex-dividend date. The timing and character of certain income and capital gain distributions are determined annually in accordance with United States federal income tax regulations, which may differ from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These differences primarily relate to investments in foreign passive investment companies and certain securities sold at a loss. As a result, net investment income (loss) and net realized gain (loss) on investment transactions for a reporting period may differ significantly from distributions during such period. Accordingly, the Fund may periodically make reclassifications among certain of its capital accounts without impacting the NAV of the Fund.

The tax character of current year distributions will be determined at the end of the current fiscal year.

B. Investment Advisory and Administration Agreements

The Fund is party to an Investment Advisory Agreement with Deutsche Asset Management International GmbH (Deutsche AM International GmbH). The Fund also has an Administration Agreement with DWS Investment Management Americas, Inc. (formerly Deutsche Investment Management Americas, Inc.) (DIMA). Pursuant to a sub-transfer agency agreement between DSC and DST Systems, Inc. (DST), DSC has delegated certain transfer agent and dividend-paying agent functions to DST. DSC compensates DST out of the fee it receives from the Fund. For the six months ended June 30, 2018, the amount charged to the Fund by DSC aggregated $5,973, of which $944 is unpaid.

For the six months ended June 30, 2018, Deutsche Bank did not receive brokerage commissions from the Fund.

Certain Officers of the Fund are also officers of DIMA.

The Fund pays each Director who is not an interested person of DIMA or Deutsche AM International GmbH retainer fees plus specified amounts for attended board and committee meetings.

The Fund indirectly bears its proportionate share of the expenses of DWS Central Cash Management Government Fund. There are three closed-end funds investing in European equities advised and administered by wholly owned subsidiaries of the DWS Group:

The Central and Eastern Europe Fund, Inc. (formerly, The Central Europe, Russia and Turkey Fund, Inc.) investing primarily in equity or equity-linked securities of issuers domiciled in Central and Eastern Europe (with normally at least 80% in securities of issuers domiciled in countries in Central and Eastern Europe) and concentrating in the energy sector (with more than 25% of the fund's total assets in issuers conducting their principal activities in that sector).

The European Equity Fund, Inc. investing primarily in equity or equity-linked securities of issuers domiciled in Europe (with normally at least 80% in securities of issuers domiciled in Europe).

The New Germany Fund, Inc. investing primarily in equity or equity-linked securities of middle market German companies with up to 20% in other Western European companies (with no more than 15% in any single country).

Please consult your broker for advice on any of the above or call 1-800-349-4281 (in the U.S.) or 00-800-2287-2750 (outside of the U.S.) for shareholder reports.

The New Germany Fund, Inc. is diversified, but primarily focuses its investments in Germany, thereby increasing its vulnerability to developments in that country. Investing in foreign securities presents certain risks, such as currency fluctuations, political and economic changes and market risks. Any fund that concentrates in a particular segment of the market or in a particular geographical region will generally be more volatile than a fund that invests more broadly.
