ING and ANZ National Bank join to grow NZ presence

ING and ANZ National Bank announced today that they have signed agreements to extend the existing joint venture between ANZ and ING Groups by incorporating The National Bank's managed funds and life insurance business.

From 01 October 2005, ING New Zealand will be responsible for the manufacturing and management of all insurance and managed funds products distributed to customers through both the ANZ and The National Banks.

ING New Zealand Director and Chief Executive Officer of ANZ National Bank, Sir John Anderson stated: The inclusion of The National Bank's life insurance and managed funds businesses continues the principles on which the original joint venture was established in 2002. It combines ING's experience and expertise in product management with the Bank's strength in distribution and client servicing, for the benefit of customers of both companies.

ING Group (51%) and ANZ Group (49%) have operated an ING-branded joint venture in Australia and New Zealand, to provide funds management and insurance products through ANZ branches and financial advisers, since April 2002. In December 2003, ANZ acquired The National Bank, creating a new company in New Zealand - ANZ National Bank Limited. Since then, ING and ANZ have been working together to integrate The National Bank's insurance and investment activities within the local joint venture. ING New Zealand will be governed by a local board comprising both local and international ANZ and ING representatives.

The addition of The National Bank's insurance and managed funds businesses further strengthens ING's leading position in the New Zealand financial services market. The National Bank's NZ$700 million in managed funds extends ING's position as the largest retail fund manager in New Zealand, and the addition of National Bank insurance customers also sees ING become one of the country's leading insurance operators.

This is the latest chapter in the continued strong growth of ING in New Zealand. We have enjoyed a mutually beneficial relationship with ANZ since 2002 and are confident this relationship will be enhanced with the inclusion of The National Bank brand, said Paul Fyfe, Managing Director of ING New Zealand. We are delighted to welcome The National Bank's insurance and managed funds customers to our wider family, knowing they will continue to receive the same high level of service they have in the past.

The existing National Bank's insurance and managed funds companies, NBNZ Life and NBNZ Investment Services, will become ING entities. NBNZ Life will be renamed ING Insurance Services (NZ) Limited and NBNZ Investment Services will be renamed ING Managed Funds (NZ) Limited. Customers, distributors, suppliers and other interested parties of these companies have been contacted and provided with details of the new arrangement.
