Glencairn receives favourable decision from Costa Rican court

Glencairn Gold Corporation is pleased to report that the Sala Constitucional in Costa Rica, the country's supreme court, has confirmed that the Company has complied in full with the permitting required to build and operate its Bellavista Mine.

Glencairn's subsidiary, Metales Procesados MRW S.A., was made a party to a legal proceeding brought before the Constitutional Court of Costa Rica against three branches of the Government by a group of individuals in late 2004. The group alleged deficiencies in the process followed by the Government in granting permits for the Bellavista mine. However, governmental officials in Costa Rica have stated publicly on several occasions prior to this decision that construction of the mine was carried out in compliance with Costa Rican law, and the recent ruling upheld this position. The court did request various branches of government to conduct ongoing studies and to continue to monitor the situation.

I am very pleased by the court's decision and believe it validates our efforts to construct the Bellavista Mine to the highest standards and with the greatest concern for the environment and for the community's well being," said Kerry Knoll, Glencairn President and CEO. "I believe the court went to great lengths to ensure that all voices were heard and that all issues were fully aired before making its decision.

Edgar Filing: Glencairn Gold CORP - Form 6-K

Construction of the mine is essentially complete and the Company expects to produce its first gold from Bellavista in June, 2005, with commercial production to commence in the third quarter of the year. Bellavista is designed to produce an average of 60,000 oz. gold per year over eight years based on current mineral reserves. Combined with production from the Company's Limon Mine in Nicaragua, Bellavista will bring the Company's total annual gold production to well over 100,000 oz. per year.
