May 7, 2009 (Dublin, IRELAND) – CryptoLogic, a world leader in Internet casino and branded gaming software, today announced its financial results for the first quarter ending March 31, 2009. “In very challenging times, CryptoLogic continues to control what we can: containing costs, accelerating innovation and focusing on execution,” said Brian Hadfield, CryptoLogic’s President and CEO. “With our revenue base still in transition, we accelerated CryptoLogic’s cost-reduction program and continued to sign and support deals to bring the world’s best games to the world’s leading Internet casinos. It is a solid foundation for a return to profitability and cash generation this year.”

Overview

In the first quarter of 2009, CryptoLogic made good progress in executing its strategy to focus on Internet casino hosting and the licensing of its branded gaming and associated software.

These activities provide the company with a competitive advantage by leveraging its position as a leading designer of exciting, character-rich betting games for gaming operators. In PartyGaming, 888.com and Betfair, the company now has three of the world’s largest legal gaming operators on its roster of customers – as well as many of Europe’s other top brands.

As announced in March, the company has completed the integration of its poker network with that of GTECH Corporation. This enables a significant reduction in CryptoLogic’s cost base, the full benefit of which will be realized from the second quarter. The company will continue to manage its costs carefully in the light of global economic conditions, which led to reduced wagering in both the casino and poker markets.

New customers to drive revenue growth

CryptoLogic continued to expand its customer base in the first quarter, signing new licensing deals with various major online gaming brands. The company announced a strategic partnership with Gaming Technology Solutions PLC to make CryptoLogic games available to the many leading gaming operators that use the GTS platform. CryptoLogic also signed an exclusive agreement with The Gaming Network to provide Internet casino software to some of the U.K.’s top gaming sites.

Subsequent to the quarter-end, the company announced two more deals licensing its most popular slot games to blue-chip European customers: Gala Coral is a large U.K.-based company that operates four of Europe’s most popular gaming sites, and Betfair is the world’s largest online betting community with over two million customers. SkyBet, who deploy games in the second quarter, will become the first licensee to launch CryptoLogic games through Orbis Technology’s Open Bet Fixed Odds Games platform. The move signals the successful integration of CryptoLogic games on the Orbis platform following a partnership struck in October 2008.

CryptoLogic has built a large and diversified licensee base, featuring 18 customers compared with 11 a year ago. BetJacks began offering CryptoLogic-powered games to its subscribers in the first quarter, and PartyGaming launched its first CryptoLogic games earlier this week. CryptoLogic’s customers are planning to roll out some 19 games in the second quarter, which creates significant revenue potential later this year. Recognizing the significant impact of reduced discretionary spending by consumers, CryptoLogic is strengthening support services to its larger licensees for marketing and player acquisition.

E-gaming innovation

CryptoLogic has also been very active in releasing new games, and in striking deals with owners of more top brands that will appear in future CryptoLogic games.

In January, the company released a three-game pack headlined by Spider-Man Revelations, a very popular new game featuring Marvel's most famous Super Hero. In April, CryptoLogic released a new downloadable game line-up featuring Call of Duty 4: Modern Warfare, based on one of the world's most widely played video games, and the eagerly anticipated Millionaire's Club III.

The company announced multi-year licensing agreements with Paramount Digital Entertainment, Warner Bros. and DC Comics to bring characters such as Batman, Superman and Braveheart to leading Internet casinos.

The first quarter also featured the unveiling of the CryptoLogic Centre for Innovation, which brings together industry leaders and gaming innovators to create new games and Internet gaming concepts. As announced on May 5, 2009, the first game from this new centre, Jenga, launched in April.

Financial performance

Total revenue: CryptoLogic saw a moderate decline in revenue from $11.4 million in the fourth quarter of 2008 to $10.1 million in the first quarter of 2009. This included casino revenue of $6.5 million and poker revenue of $2.0 million. Revenue was affected by lower spending from the most avid players, coupled with the continued impact of the strong U.S. dollar. As noted above, CryptoLogic is responding not just by signing new customers, but also by strengthening support services to its larger customers for marketing and player acquisition.

Earnings and Earnings per Diluted Share: The company recorded a loss of $1.3 million for the quarter, or $0.10 per fully diluted share (based on a weighted average of 13,820,000 outstanding shares), an improvement on the three prior quarters. Operating expenses were down substantially, from $13.3 million in the fourth quarter of 2008 to $8.2 million in Q1. The company also recorded $0.5 million in reorganization charges in the first quarter.

Balance Sheet and Cash Flow: CryptoLogic continues to have a strong balance sheet, ending the quarter with $38.7 million in net cash (comprising cash and cash equivalents, restricted cash and security deposits), or $2.80 per diluted share (December 31, 2008: $43.8 million, or $3.15 per diluted share). The decrease in net cash was due largely to movements in working capital and funds paid to secure the royalty rights of DC Comics including Superman and Batman. The company continues to be debt-free. CryptoLogic's working capital at March 31, 2009 was $39.8 million or $2.88 per diluted share (December 31, 2008: $41.2 million or $2.97 per diluted share).

Dividend: On May 5, CryptoLogic declared a dividend of $0.03 per share for the quarter, unchanged from the fourth quarter of 2008. The dividend will be paid on June 15, 2009 to shareholders of record of CryptoLogic Limited and CryptoLogic Exchange Corporation as at June 8, 2009.

Outlook

As indicated previously, the company continues to take a conservative view of its revenue outlook, as economic conditions remain volatile and consumer spending remains sluggish. CryptoLogic is focused on the factors it can control: its operating costs, robust new business activity, customer service and marketing support, and the company's innovation pipeline.

Management believes the combination of new customers and lower costs positions the company for a return to profitability and cash generation in 2009, in line with previous guidance.

CryptoLogic will hold its annual general meeting in Toronto on Wednesday June 3, 2009. Details are available on the company's website.
