On July 8, 2009, NRG Energy, Inc. (NRG) issued the following letter to certain business partners and associates of NRG:

[NRG ENERGY, INC. LETTERHEAD]

July 8, 2009

Dear Friends of NRG:

Since my last letter, as expected, there have been several noteworthy developments in Exelon's attempt at a hostile takeover of NRG during the run up to NRG's annual shareholder meeting on July 2nd. I wanted to give you a quick summary.

On July 2nd, after eight months of sticking to its 0.485 fixed exchange ratio offer, Exelon increased its offer by 12.4% representing a 7.4% premium to NRG shareholders based on the respective share prices of the Company at the close of business on July 1st. The increase in Exelon's offer was almost exclusively predicated on additional cost synergies identified by a phalanx of management consultants retained by Exelon for this purpose. On July 6th, after giving Exelon's revised offer thorough and careful consideration, the NRG Board unanimously rejected Exelon's revised offer. A full copy of the letter sent to Exelon is attached.

The next step in this long running process between Exelon and NRG is unknown to us as it is up to Exelon to decide. However, Exelon's increased offer does make two things clear that are directly relevant to our relationships with you our actual or prospective partners, off-takers and suppliers and that is the following:

Exelon's claims, after the second exchange offer in February, that their original Offer was a Done Deal are patently false. For all of you that told us that Exelon has told you that their acquisition of NRG was a done deal, their decision to increase their offer and postpone the expiration of their third exchange offer with only 12% of NRG shares tendered suggests that their attempt to buy NRG on the cheap is by no means a foregone conclusion; and NRG's Growth Initiatives create Shareholder Value. While Exelon's increased offer, and the investor presentation which accompany it, do their best to downplay value creation at NRG over the past eight months, they are forced to concede that our various growth initiatives, particularly the acquisition of the retail business of Reliant, have added shareholder value absolutely and relative to their own actions over that time period.

It is for these reasons that, no matter what the next step is with Exelon, we look forward to working with you and your company on the many exciting initiatives which we have underway at NRG to lead the way into the low carbon, high efficiency future.

Sincerely,

David Crane
President & Chief Executive Officer
