Joint Proxy Statement/Prospectus

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

To the shareholders of Taylor Devices, Inc. and the shareholders of Tayco Developments, Inc.:

After careful consideration, the boards of directors of Taylor and Tayco have each approved and adopted the terms of an agreement and plan of merger, and have determined that the proposals to be voted on, as described in the attached joint proxy statement / prospectus, are advisable and in your best interests. The merger agreement provides for the merger of Tayco into Taylor, with Taylor as the surviving corporation. The merger will allow the complementary operations of both companies - Tayco's patents and other intellectual property and the development and manufacture of Taylor's products - to be fully integrated. We ask for your support in voting for the merger agreement at the respective meetings of our shareholders.

In the merger, each outstanding share of Tayco common stock (other than shares as to which dissenters' rights have been asserted and duly perfected in accordance with New York law) will be converted into the right to receive one share of Taylor common stock. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE MERGER

Q: Why are Taylor and Tayco proposing the merger?

A: Taylor and Tayco are affiliated companies with complementary operations. With the merger, Tayco's patents and other intellectual property will be fully integrated into the development and manufacture of Taylor's products. The merger should result in significant synergies and reduced administrative expenses, especially expenses associated with maintaining each as a separate company which should benefit the shareholders of both companies. To review the reasons for the merger in greater detail, see "THE MERGER-Reasons for the Merger."

Q: What is the proposed merger?

A: In the proposed merger, Tayco will merge with and into Taylor. Taylor will survive the merger, and Tayco will cease to exist as a separate company. The merger agreement is attached to this joint proxy statement/prospectus as Appendix A. You are encouraged to read it carefully. See "THE MERGER-Structure of the Merger."

Q: What will Tayco shareholders receive in the merger?

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

A: Tayco shareholders will receive one share of Taylor common stock, referred to in this joint proxy statement/prospectus as the exchange ratio, in exchange for each Tayco share that they own. For example, if a shareholder owns 100 shares of Tayco common stock at the time of the merger, he or she will receive 100 shares of Taylor common stock after the merger. See "THE MERGER-What You Will Receive in the Merger."

Q: When do you expect to complete the merger?

A: If approved, Taylor and Tayco will work to complete the merger as quickly as practicable. Taylor and Tayco expect to complete the merger in the first calendar quarter of 2008. Because the merger is subject to various conditions, however, Taylor and Tayco cannot predict its exact date of completion.

Q: Are there any risks involved in undertaking the merger?

A: Yes. In evaluating the merger, you should carefully consider the factors discussed in the section of this joint proxy statement/ prospectus entitled "RISK FACTORS" beginning on page 15.

Q: Are there conditions to completion of the merger?

A: Yes. Taylor's and Tayco's respective obligations to complete the merger are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of certain specified closing conditions. If either Taylor or Tayco waives any condition, each company will consider the facts and circumstances at that time and make a determination regarding whether a resolicitation of proxies from its respective shareholders is appropriate. See "TERMS OF THE MERGER AGREEMENT-Conditions to the Merger."

Q: Will Taylor shareholders receive any shares as a result of the merger?

A: No. Taylor shareholders will continue to hold the Taylor shares they currently own. However, the issuance of Taylor common stock to Tayco shareholders will have a dilutive effect on the percentage ownership of each Taylor shareholder in the combined company.

Q: Are Taylor or Tayco shareholders entitled to appraisal rights?

A: Only Tayco shareholders are entitled to appraisal rights. Shareholders of Tayco who comply with the requirements of Section 623 of the New York Business Corporation Law will be entitled, if the merger is completed, to seek an appraisal of their shares of common stock. See "THE MERGER-Appraisal Rights," "RIGHTS OF DISSENTING SHAREHOLDERS" and APPENDIX D-Dissenters Rights Statute."

Q: What are the tax consequences to me of the merger?

A: The merger has been structured to qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, referred to in this joint proxy statement/prospectus as the "Internal Revenue Code." Assuming the merger qualifies as a reorganization for U.S. federal income tax purposes, Tayco shareholders generally will not recognize any gain or loss in the merger, except to the extent of any cash received instead of fractional shares of Taylor common stock. The tax consequences of the merger to you will depend on your own situation. You should consult your tax advisor for a full understanding of the U.S. federal and any state, local and foreign tax consequences of the merger to you. See "CERTAIN FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES."

Q: Should Taylor shareholders send in their stock certificates?

A: No. Taylor shareholders will continue to own their shares of Taylor common stock after the merger and should not send in their stock certificates.

Q: Should Tayco shareholders send in their stock certificates?

A: No. Once the merger is consummated, instructions will be sent to you regarding the exchange of your Tayco stock certificates for the consideration payable to you in the merger.

Q: What am I being asked to vote on?

A: Both Taylor and Tayco shareholders are being asked to vote FOR the merger agreement.

Q: What vote of Taylor and Tayco shareholders is required to approve the merger agreement?

A: Approval of the merger agreement requires the affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds (66 %) of the outstanding shares of common stock entitled to vote of both Taylor and Tayco. A failure to vote or a vote to abstain will have the same effect as a vote against the merger agreement. See "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYLOR SHAREHOLDERS-Vote and Quorum Required" and "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYCO SHAREHOLDERS-Vote and Quorum Required."

Q: Do the boards of directors of Taylor and Tayco recommend the adoption of the merger agreement and approval of the merger?

A: Yes. Taylor's board of directors recommends that Taylor shareholders vote FOR the merger agreement; and Tayco's board of directors recommends that Tayco shareholders vote FOR the merger agreement. See "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYLOR SHAREHOLDERS-Recommendation of Taylor's Board of Directors" and "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYCO SHAREHOLDERS-Recommendation of Tayco's Board of Directors."

Q: How do I vote?

A: If you hold Taylor common stock or Tayco common stock directly in your own name, you may vote by mailing a proxy card. The proxy cards contain instructions concerning voting options. Vote or mail your signed proxy card in the enclosed return envelope as soon as possible after carefully reading this joint proxy statement / prospectus, so that your shares may be represented at the Special Meeting of Shareholders. You also may attend the Special Meeting in person instead of submitting a proxy. If your shares are held in "street name" by your broker, see the next question below. Your vote is important regardless of the number of shares that you own. See "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYLOR SHAREHOLDERS-Voting of Proxies at the Special Meeting and Revocation of Proxies" and "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYCO SHAREHOLDERS-Voting of Proxies at the Special Meeting and Revocation of Proxies."

Q: My broker holds my shares in "street name"-will my broker vote my shares?

A: No, not unless you follow the voting directions that your broker provides to you. If you fail to provide your broker with instructions, it will have the same effect as a vote against approval of the merger agreement and against the merger. See "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYLOR SHAREHOLDERS-Abstentions and Broker Non-Votes" and "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYCO SHAREHOLDERS-Abstentions and Broker Non-Votes."

Q: Can I change my vote after mailing my proxy?

A: Yes. You can change your vote by delivering a signed notice of revocation, or a later-dated, signed proxy card to the Shareholder Relations Manager of Taylor, or to the corporate Secretary of Tayco, as the case may be, before the shareholder meeting, or by attending the Special Meeting and voting in person if you hold your shares in your own name. See "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYLOR SHAREHOLDERS-Voting of Proxies at the Special Meeting and Revocation of Proxies" and "THE SPECIAL MEETING OF TAYCO SHAREHOLDERS-Voting of Proxies at the Special Meeting and Revocation of Proxies."

Q: What if I don't vote?

A: If you do not vote, or if you abstain from voting, it will have the same effect as a vote against the merger and merger agreement.

Q: Whom can I call with questions?

Notes to Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Consolidated Financial Statements

The following adjustments were applied to the historical financial statements of Devices and Developments to arrive at the unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements:

(a) Elimination of reciprocal receivables and payables between the two companies.

(b) Allocation of the excess of fair value of acquired net assets over the cost. The fair value of the net assets of Developments exceeded the cost by $612,581. In accordance with FAS 141, this excess was allocated as follows:

a. Property and equipment, net was reduced by $139,274. This represents Developments' 42% equity interest in the $331,604 of property and equipment owned by Realty.

b. Patents, net was reduced by $63,405. This is equal to the unamortized value of patents owned by Tayco Developments.

c. Retained Earnings was increased by $409,902. As there are no other assets of Developments' that may be reduced, this excess must be recognized as an extraordinary gain on the income statement of the merged company, which would then be included in retained earnings.

(c) Elimination of the equity interest that Devices and Developments have in each other as well as Developments' equity interest in Realty.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

(d) The elimination of Developments' Common Stock ($49,696) and the cancellation (at the par value of $0.025 per share) of 697,567 shares of Devices' stock previously held by Developments ($17,439) offset by the issuance of 987,928 shares of Devices' stock to Developments' shareholders at the par value of $0.025 per share ($24,698).

RISK FACTORS

By voting for the merger agreement at the Tayco Special Meeting, Tayco shareholders will be choosing to invest in Taylor common stock. An investment in Taylor common stock involves a high degree of risk. The discussion of various risks factors below is not intended to be exhaustive, but a summary only, and does not necessarily reflect their relative importance. In addition to the other information contained in this document, Taylor and Tayco shareholders should carefully consider the following risk factors in deciding whether to vote for the merger agreement, and should keep these risk factors in mind when they read forward-looking statements. See "CAUTIONARY STATEMENT REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS."

Risks Related to the Merger

Tayco shareholders will receive a fixed exchange ratio of Tayco common stock to Taylor common stock despite changes in the market value of Taylor common stock or Tayco common stock.

Upon completion of the merger, each share of Tayco common stock will be converted into one share of Taylor common stock. There will be no adjustment to the consideration payable to Tayco shareholders in connection with the merger for changes in the market price of Taylor common stock or Tayco common stock. In addition, neither Taylor nor Tayco may terminate the merger agreement solely because of changes in the market price of the other company's common stock. Accordingly, the dollar value of Taylor common stock that Tayco shareholders will receive in the merger may be different from the dollar value of Taylor common stock on the date when Tayco shareholders and Taylor shareholders approve the merger agreement. Historically, share prices of the common stock of both Tayco and Taylor have experienced significant volatility. Taylor cannot predict or give any assurances as to the market price of Taylor common stock at any time before or after the completion of the merger. You should obtain recent market quotations of Taylor and Tayco common stock before you return your proxy card or cast your vote at the applicable Special Meeting of shareholders.

If the merger is not completed, Taylor's and Tayco's stock prices and future businesses and operations could be harmed.

Taylor's and Tayco's obligations to complete the merger are subject to various conditions, a number of which are beyond their control. If the merger is not completed for any reason, each company may be subject to a number of material risks, including the following:

- the price of Taylor common stock and Tayco common stock may decline;
- costs related to the merger, such as financial advisory, legal, accounting and printing fees, must be paid even if the merger is not completed; and
- if the merger is not completed, Taylor and Tayco will fail to derive the benefits expected to result from the merger.

The market price of Taylor common stock may decline as a result of the merger.

At <R>November 30, 2007, there were 2,458,494 </R> shares of Taylor stock issued and outstanding, not counting the 697,567 shares of Taylor stock owned by Tayco. These <R>2,458,494</R> Taylor shares, which include shares owned by directors and officers of Taylor, can be traded on the public securities market if the holders so desire. Upon completion of the merger, and despite the large block of Taylor shares owned by Tayco having been cancelled, the number of Taylor shares outstanding will increase by 759,611 or approximately 31.0%. This increase could depress the market price of Taylor common stock, as could Taylor's failure to achieve the perceived benefits of the merger as rapidly or to the extent anticipated by the companies, or their financial or industry analysts. See "THE MERGER-Structure of the Merger-Table of Cross Ownership and Shares Outstanding."

Taylor and Tayco officers and directors have conflicts of interest that may influence them to support or approve the merger.

The directors and officers of Tayco and Taylor have interests in the merger that are different from, or in addition to, those of other Tayco and Taylor shareholders. The directors and officers of Tayco and Taylor are more likely to recommend and approve the merger agreement than shareholders without these interests. Taylor and Tayco shareholders should consider whether such interests might have influenced these directors and officers to support or recommend the merger. These interests include the following:

- Taylor has agreed to indemnify each present and former Tayco officer and director against liabilities arising out of his or her services as an officer or director of Tayco prior to the merger;
- Messrs. Douglas P. Taylor and Richard G. Hill, each a director, officer and shareholder of Taylor, with their families, own or control 96,951 Tayco shares, or 9.8%; and

16

- If the merger is completed and all Tayco shares are converted into Taylor shares, Messrs. Taylor and Hill and members of the Taylor family, as well as other affiliates of Taylor who own shares of Tayco, will more easily be able to sell their shares.

See "THE MERGER-Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger."

The merger could go forward in certain circumstances, if Taylor or Tayco waive a breach despite a material adverse effect.

In general, either Taylor or Tayco can refuse to complete the merger if breaches by the other company of its representations and warranties rise to the level of a material adverse effect. However, neither Taylor nor Tayco may unilaterally refuse to complete the merger simply because:

- there is a decrease in such entity's stock price or a failure to meet or exceed investment research analysts' earnings or other estimates or projections;
- there is any material adverse effect that directly and primarily results from the public announcement of the merger agreement;
- there is any change in any applicable laws or regulations or applicable generally accepted accounting principles; or
- there is any change, event, or circumstance in the markets in which Taylor or Tayco operates or in U.S. or global economic conditions or financial markets generally, or any change, event or circumstance occurs resulting from an outbreak or escalation of hostilities, or a declaration by the United States of a national emergency or war, or any act of terrorism.

If any of these events, changes, or circumstances occur, Taylor and Tayco may still be required to complete the merger and Taylor's stock price may suffer, and could reduce the value of the merger to Taylor or Tayco shareholders.

Risks Related to Taylor

Investment in Taylor is subject to a number of risks. Some risks are endemic to a high technology industry and are the same or similar to those disclosed in Taylor's previous SEC filings, and new risks could arise in the future. The fact that certain risks are endemic to the industry does not lessen their significance. As a result, Taylor's business, financial condition or results of operations could be materially and adversely affected, causing the trading price of Taylor common stock to decline, and the shareholders to lose some or all of their investment.

If Taylor fails to develop and introduce new products for existing or new markets, or if it fails to meet evolving market needs, or if it is unable to grow revenues, then Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely impacted.

The markets for Taylor's products are characterized by:

- changing technologies;
- evolving and competing industry standards;
- changing customer requirements;
- increasing product development costs;
- long design-to-production cycles;

17

- competitive solutions;
- fluctuations in capital equipment spending levels and/or deployment;
- rapid adjustments in customer demand and inventory;
- increasing functional integration;
- increasing price pressure;
- moderate to slow growth;
- frequent product enhancements; and
- changing competitive landscape (consolidation, financial viability).

Taylor's growth depends in part on the successful development of new and advanced products for its existing markets. Taylor must: (i) anticipate customer and market requirements and changes in technology and industry standards; (ii) properly define and develop, on a timely basis, new and existing products; (iii) gain access to and use technologies in a cost-effective manner; (iv) continue to expand its technical and design expertise; (v) timely introduce and cost-effectively manufacture products; (vi) differentiate its products from those of its competitors; (vii) gain customer acceptance of its products; and (viii) continue to open and penetrate new markets. In addition, Taylor must continue to have its products designed to satisfy its customers' future needs and it must maintain close working relationships with key customers to develop new products that meet evolving needs. Taylor must also respond to shifts in market demands, the trend towards increasing functional integration and other changes in a rapid and cost-effective manner. Migration from older products to newer products may result in volatility of earnings during periods of transition to new products.

Products are based on continually evolving industry standards and new technologies. Taylor's ability to compete depends in part on its ability to identify and ensure compliance with industry standards, and Taylor could be required to invest significant time, effort and expense to develop and qualify its products to ensure compliance. Although the proposed merger is intended to propel development of advanced products by more efficiently incorporating Tayco's intellectual property and know how into Taylor's manufacturing operations, no assurance can be given that the anticipated synergies will result.

The process of developing and supporting existing and advanced product designs is complex, expensive and uncertain. Taylor may make significant investments to modify new products according to input from its engineers or customers. In the end, customers may still choose another competitor's product, or cancel the project. Taylor may not be readily able to identify new markets or product opportunities successfully, or develop and bring new products to market, or achieve design wins, or ensure when and which designs actually get released to production, or respond effectively to technological changes or product announcements by its competitors. In addition, Taylor may incorrectly anticipate market demand. Pursuit of technological advances often requires substantial time and expense but can ultimately be unsuccessful. Failure in any of these areas may harm Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Taylor has not paid stock or cash dividends since 1988.

If Taylor is unable to convert a significant portion of its design wins into actual revenue, Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely impacted.

Taylor has secured a significant number of design wins for new and existing products. Such design wins are necessary for revenue growth. However, design wins may not necessarily generate revenues if a customer terminates the project, which may occur for a variety of reasons. Mergers and consolidation among Taylor's customers, budgetary cutbacks, or adverse monetary exchange rates could lead to the reduction or termination of certain projects before they generate revenue. If design wins do generate revenue, the time lag between the design win and meaningful revenue may be in excess of 18 months. If Taylor fails to convert a significant portion of its design wins into substantial revenue, Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely impacted.

Taylor's financial results may fluctuate significantly because of a number of factors, many of which are beyond its control.

Taylor's financial results may fluctuate significantly. Some of the factors that affect Taylor's financial results, many of which are difficult or impossible to control or predict, are:

- the announcement or introduction of products by its competitors;
- competitive pressures on selling prices;
- pressures on selling prices overseas due to foreign currency exchange fluctuations or adverse monetary rates of exchange;
- erosion of average selling prices coupled with the inability to sell newer products with higher average selling prices, resulting in lower overall revenue and margins;
- market and/or customer acceptance of its products;
- changes in its customers' budgetary requirements or their financial or regulatory constraints;
- loss of one or more major customers;
- the difficulties in maintaining and managing appropriate inventory levels;
- the availability and cost of materials and services
- its ability to successfully introduce and move new products into production and/or integrate new technologies;
- increase in manufacturing costs;
- the amount and timing of its investment in research and development;
- increased costs and time associated with compliance with accounting rules or other regulatory requirements;
- fluctuations in interest rates that Taylor must pay for financing; and
- changes in or continuation of certain tax provisions.

As a consequence, operating results for a particular future period are difficult to predict and prior results are not necessarily indicative of future results. Any of the foregoing factors, or any other factors discussed elsewhere in this joint proxy statement/ prospectus or in Taylor's Annual Report on Form 10-KSB for the year ended May 31, 2007 or its Quarterly Report on Form 10-QSB for the quarter ended November 30, 2007, may have a material adverse effect on Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Corruption in certain foreign markets might reduce Taylor's sales.

A significant portion of Taylor's new business consists of sales in China, Indonesia, Mexico and other markets where enforcement of laws against corruption and illegal payments historically has not been as strong as in the United States. Taylor's policy has been and continues to be to comply with all applicable laws, including the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act of 1977. Taylor's policy may tend to reduce or prevent sales of its products in markets where illegal payments are a widespread business practice.

The general state of the U.S. and global economies may continue to materially and adversely affect Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Periodic declines or fluctuations in corporate profits, lower capital equipment spending, the impact of conflicts throughout the world, terrorist acts, natural disasters, volatile energy costs, the outbreak of communicable diseases and other geopolitical factors have had, and may continue to have, a negative impact on the U.S. and global economies. These market fluctuations can affect capital spending and the demand for Taylor's products, which in turn can affect revenues and profitability. Uncertainties in anticipated capital spending levels may also adversely affect Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Utilization of acquired technology.

Taylor has relied and continues to rely on intellectual property for the development of new or advanced products. Much of its product research and development has come from Tayco under the License Agreement. Even if the proposed merger is approved, Tayco's intellectual property must be successfully integrated into new products, and there must be market acceptance of such new products and achievement of planned return on investment. The timely and efficient integration of acquired intellectual property and evolving technology can also be adversely impacted by inherent design deficiencies or application requirements.

Competition in markets where Taylor participates, or may participate, may make it more difficult for Taylor to be successful.

Goodrich Corporation is Taylor's primary competitor in the aerospace market and is a substantially larger and more diversified company. Taylor competes on price, warranty and product performance, but cannot compete in volume due to limited financing and capacity. In the construction market, Taylor competes against two primary manufacturers of seismic damping devices, as well as numerous other firms which supply alternative seismic protection technologies.

Recent revenue growth for Taylor has been driven by higher volumes of dampers to the construction industry. Management believes that the overall level of global construction activity requiring seismic protection has increased from prior years, especially in Asian markets. Because of Taylor's participation in the seismic dampers market, it is not uncommon for the price of Taylor stock to rise on reports of a major earthquake or seismic activity, but such upward volatility is usually temporary.

If Taylor's independent distributors and representatives stop selling or fail to successfully promote Taylor's products, its business, financial condition, and results of operations could be adversely affected.

Taylor sells many of its products through independent representatives and independent distributors in 27 countries who may be exclusive or non exclusive, depending on product line and geographic location. Taylor's non-exclusive representatives and distributors may carry Taylor's competitors' products, which could adversely impact or limit sales of Taylor's products. Additionally, they could reduce or discontinue sales of Taylor's products or may not devote the resources necessary to sell Taylor's products in the volumes and within the time frames that Taylor expects. Taylor believes that its success will continue to depend on these sales representatives. If some or all of Taylor's sales representatives experience financial difficulties, or otherwise become unable or unwilling to promote and sell Taylor's products, Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations could be adversely affected.

Taylor depends on one key individual and has no formal plan of succession.

Taylor's future success depends on the continued service of Douglas P. Taylor, its chief executive officer, the inventor of many of its patents, and Taylor's key design engineer. While Taylor carries key man insurance policy on three of its executive officers, including Mr. Taylor, there is no formal plan of succession. Should Mr. Taylor be unable to serve, the company could have difficulties finding a replacement with the necessary management and engineering skills.

Taylor depends in part on the continued service of its key engineering and management personnel and its ability to identify, hire, incentivize and retain qualified personnel. If Taylor loses key employees or fails to identify, hire, incentivize and retain these individuals, its business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely impacted.

Taylor's future success depends, in part, on the continued service of its key design engineering, technical, sales, marketing and executive personnel and its ability to identify, hire, incentivize and retain other qualified personnel.

In the future, Taylor may not be able to attract and retain qualified personnel, including executive officers and other key management and technical personnel necessary for the management of its business. Competition for skilled employees having specialized technical capabilities and industry-specific expertise continues to be a considerable risk inherent in the markets in which Taylor competes. Volatility or lack of positive performance in Taylor's stock price and the ability to offer equity compensation to as many key employees or in amounts consistent with past practices, as a result of regulations regarding the expensing of options, may also adversely affect its ability to retain key employees, all of whom have been granted stock options. The failure to retain and recruit, as necessary, key design engineers, technical, sales, marketing and executive personnel could harm Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Taylor's acquisition of Tayco's patents may not necessarily insure its competitive position.

A primary reason for the merger is to fully integrate Tayco's patents and other intellectual property into the development and manufacture of Taylor's products. Taylor's ability to compete in its field depends, in large part, upon the efficient and creative utilization of Tayco's intellectual property. All patents, however, have a limited period of enforceability and, prior to expiration, such exclusivity must be vigilantly enforced. Patent litigation is expensive. If Taylor is required to litigate to protect its rights under the patents, the cost of litigation could be greater than Taylor is willing or able to pay. In addition, Tayco's last to expire patent expires in 2022. There is also no guarantee that, having expired, any patent can be replaced by another of equivalent value to Taylor.

Taylor's results of operations could vary as a result of the methods, estimates, and judgments it uses in applying its accounting policies.

The methods, estimates, and judgments Taylor uses in applying its accounting policies have a significant impact on its results of operations. Such methods, estimates, and judgments are, by their nature, subject to substantial risks, uncertainties, assumptions, and changes in rulemaking by the regulatory bodies; and factors may arise over time that lead Taylor to change its methods, estimates, and judgments. Changes in those methods, estimates, and judgments could significantly affect Taylor's results of operations. In particular, the calculation of share-based compensation expense under Statement of Financial Accounting Standards, or SFAS, No. 123R, or SFAS 123R, "Share-Based Payment," which requires Taylor to use valuation methodologies (which were not developed for use in valuing employee stock options and restricted stock units) and a number of assumptions, estimates, and conclusions regarding matters such as expected forfeitures, expected volatility of Taylor's share price, the expected dividend rate with respect to Taylor common stock, and the exercise behavior of Taylor's employees. Furthermore, there are no means, under applicable accounting principles, to compare and adjust Taylor's expense if and when Taylor learns about additional information that may affect the estimates that it previously made, with the exception of changes in expected forfeitures of share-based awards. Factors may arise over time that lead Taylor to change its estimates and assumptions with respect to future share-based compensation arrangements, resulting in variability in Taylor's share-based compensation expense over time. Changes in forecasted share-based compensation expense could impact Taylor's gross margin percentage; research and development expense; selling, general and administrative expense; and Taylor's tax rate.

Changes in Taylor's effective tax rate may have an adverse effect on its results of operations.

Taylor's future effective tax rates may be adversely affected by a number of factors including:

- the jurisdictions in which profits are determined to be earned and taxed;
- the resolution of issues arising from tax audits with various tax authorities;
- changes in the valuation of Taylor's deferred tax assets and liabilities;
- adjustments to estimated taxes upon finalization of various tax returns;
- increases in expenses not deductible for tax purposes, including write-offs of acquired in-process research and development and impairment of goodwill in connection with acquisitions;
- changes in available tax credits; and/or
- changes in tax laws or the interpretation of such tax laws and changes in generally accepted accounting principles.

Any significant increase in Taylor's future effective tax rates could adversely impact net income for future periods. In addition, the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, or the IRS, and other tax authorities regularly examine Taylor's income tax returns. Taylor's results of operations could be adversely impacted if these assessments or any other assessments resulting from the examination of Taylor's income tax returns by the IRS or other taxing authorities are not resolved in Taylor's favor.

Taylor's engagement with foreign customers could cause fluctuations in its operating results, which could materially and adversely impact its business, financial condition and results of operations.

International sales have accounted for, and will likely continue to account for a significant portion of Taylor's revenues, which subjects it to the following risks:

- changes in regulatory requirements;
- tariffs and other barriers;
- timing and availability of export or import licenses;
- disruption of services due to political, civil, labor, and economic instability;
- disruption of services due to natural disasters outside the United States;
- disruptions to customer operations outside the United States due to the outbreak of communicable diseases;
- difficulties in accounts receivable collections;
- difficulties in obtaining governmental approvals for products;
- limited intellectual property protection;
- foreign currency exchange fluctuations;
- the burden of complying with foreign laws and treaties; and
- potentially adverse tax consequences.

In addition, because sales of Taylor's products have been denominated primarily in U.S. dollars, any increase in the value of the U.S. dollar as compared with local currencies could make its products more expensive to customers in the local currency of a particular country resulting in pricing pressures on its products. Increased international activity in the future may result in foreign currency denominated sales. Furthermore, because some of Taylor's customers' purchase orders and agreements are governed by foreign laws, Taylor may be limited in its ability, or it may be too costly for it, to enforce its rights under these agreements and to collect damages, if awarded.

Any error or defect, or perception of an error or defect, in Taylor's products could subject it to significant costs or damages and adversely affect market acceptance of its products.

Many of Taylor's products are intended to limit or eliminate damage from shock and vibration to physical structures, equipment or machinery, or defense-related products. For example, Taylor manufactures and sells dampers to NASA, the United States military, corporations and municipalities to enable structures of all kinds to withstand significant natural or man-made forces, as well as in foreign countries prone to earthquake, such as Mexico, Indonesia, Japan and China. Although Taylor rigorously tests its products, nonetheless, a product might fail in its purpose, with or without any errors, weaknesses, or defects by Taylor. If a structure using Taylor products is damaged by shock and vibration, such as an earthquake or lift off, Taylor's reputation could be damaged and customers may be reluctant to buy its products, regardless of the presence or absence of any fault on Taylor's part.

Taylor's backlog may not result in future revenue.

Due to the possibility of customer changes in delivery schedules and quantities actually purchased, cancellation of orders, distributor returns or price reductions, Taylor's backlog at any particular date is not necessarily indicative of actual sales for any succeeding period. Taylor may not be able to meet its expected revenue levels or results of operations if there is a reduction in its order backlog during any particular period and it is unable to replace those sales during the same period.

Fixed operating expenses and Taylor's practice of ordering materials in anticipation of future customer demand could make it difficult for it to respond effectively to sudden swings in demand and result in higher than expected costs and excess inventory. Sudden swings in demand could have a material adverse impact on Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Taylor's operating expenses are relatively fixed in the short to medium term, and therefore it has limited ability to reduce expenses quickly and sufficiently in response to any revenue shortfall. In addition, Taylor typically plans its production and inventory levels based on internal forecasts of customer demand, which are highly unpredictable and can fluctuate substantially. From time to time, in response to anticipated long lead times to obtain inventory and materials from its outside suppliers and foundries, Taylor may order materials in advance of anticipated customer demand. This advance ordering may result in excess inventory levels or unanticipated inventory write-downs if expected orders fail to materialize. This incremental cost could have a materially adverse impact on Taylor's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Taylor's stock price is volatile.

Historically, the market price of Taylor common stock fluctuates significantly. In the future, the market price of Taylor common stock is likely to continue to be subject to significant fluctuations due to:

- its anticipated or actual operating results;
- announcements or introductions of new products by it or its competitors;
- technological innovations by it or its competitors;

23

- product delays or setbacks by it, its customers or its competitors;
- potential supply disruptions;
- concentration of sales among a small number of customers;
- conditions in American or foreign markets;
- the commencement and/or results of litigation;
- changes in estimates of its performance by securities analysts;
- decreases in the value of its investments, thereby requiring an asset impairment charge against earnings;
- repurchasing shares of its common stock;
- the impact of expensing stock options;
- general global economic and market conditions; and/or
- reduction in defense spending.

In the past, securities and class action litigation has been brought against companies following periods of volatility in the market prices of their securities. Although this has not been the case with Taylor, Taylor could be the target of one or more of these class action suits, which could result in significant costs and the diversion of Taylor's management's attention, thereby harming its business, results of operations and financial condition.

At times the stock market experiences extreme price and volume fluctuations that can adversely affect the market prices of many small technology companies, despite their being unrelated or disproportionate to the operating performance of those companies. These fluctuations, when they occur, could harm the market price of Taylor common stock. In addition, Taylor is identified with seismic and vibration damping devices. Reported damage from natural or man made catastrophic events occurring across the globe has occasionally driven up the price of Taylor stock, but the rise has usually been temporary.

New York law, Taylor's certificate of incorporation, by-laws, and shareholder rights plan contain provisions that could delay and discourage takeover attempts that shareholders may consider favorable.

Certain provisions of Taylor's certificate of incorporation and by-laws, shareholder rights plan, and applicable provisions of New York corporate law may make it more difficult for, or prevent a third party from, acquiring control of Taylor or changing its board of directors and management. These provisions include:

- a certificate of incorporation which allows issuance of additional shares of common stock, and shares of preferred stock without action of the shareholders;
- a certificate of incorporation and by-laws which provide for a staggered board of directors, with each director elected for a three-year term;
- employment agreements with Messrs. Douglas P. Taylor and Richard G. Hill which provide for compensation to these individuals in the event of a change of control of Taylor;

24

- provisions of New York corporate law which impose limitations on persons proposing to acquire a company, such as Taylor, in a transaction not approved by the board of directors; and
- a shareholder rights plan which permits shareholders, other than the acquirer, to purchase Taylor shares at favorable rates in the event of an attempted acquisition.

See "DESCRIPTION OF TAYLOR COMMON STOCK."

Any delay or prevention of a change of control transaction, including changes in Taylor's board of directors or management, could deter or prevent the completion of a transaction in which Taylor's shareholders could receive a substantial premium over the then-current market price for their shares.

1. To consider and vote to approve the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of November 30, 2007, by and between Taylor and Tayco, pursuant to which each outstanding share of common stock, par value $0.05, of Tayco (other than shares as to which dissenters' rights have been asserted and duly perfected in accordance with New York law) shall be converted into the right to receive one share of common stock, par value $0.025, of Taylor; and

2. To transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting and any adjournment or postponement thereof.

A copy of the merger agreement is attached as APPENDIX A. Taylor shareholders are encouraged to read the merger agreement in its entirety and all other information contained in this joint proxy statement/ prospectus carefully before deciding how to vote.

Record Date for the Special Meeting

Taylor's board of directors has fixed the close of business on <R>January 11</R> , 2008 as the record date for determination of Taylor shareholders entitled to notice of and to vote at the Special Meeting. As of the close of business on the record date, there were <R>3,156,061 shares of Taylor common stock outstanding and entitled to vote, held of record by approximately 832</R> shareholders.

Vote and Quorum Required

Each share of Taylor common stock entitles the holder to one vote per share with respect to the matters expected to be submitted to the Taylor shareholders at the Special Meeting. There are no other voting securities of Taylor. Approval of the merger agreement requires the affirmative vote of holders of at least two-thirds (66 %) of the outstanding shares of common stock entitled to vote at the Special Meeting. In order to conduct business at the Special Meeting, a quorum consisting of at least a majority of Taylor's outstanding common stock must be present in person or represented by proxy.

As of the close of business on the record date, the directors and executive officers of Taylor and Tayco collectively owned approximately 3.5 % of the outstanding shares of Taylor common stock and have agreed to vote their Taylor shares in favor of the merger agreement. As of the close of business on the record date, the directors and executive officers of Taylor and Tayco collectively owned approximately 9.8% of the outstanding shares of Tayco common stock and have also agreed to vote their Tayco shares in favor of the merger agreement.

Abstentions and Broker Non-Votes

All votes will be tabulated by the inspectors of election appointed for the Special Meeting, who will separately tabulate affirmative and negative votes, abstentions and broker non-votes. If the shares present, in person and by proxy, at the Special Meeting do not constitute the required quorum, the Special Meeting may be adjourned to a subsequent date for the purpose of obtaining a quorum. Broker non-votes are shares that are not voted by the broker who is the record holder of the shares because the broker does not receive voting instructions from the beneficial owners of those shares or does not vote the shares in other circumstances in which proxy authority is defective or has been withheld with respect to any matter. Abstentions and broker non-votes are counted as present for the purposes of determining the presence or absence of a quorum for the transaction of business. Abstentions and broker non-votes will have the same effect as votes against the approval of the merger agreement.

No Appraisal Rights

Taylor shareholders who dissent from or vote against the merger agreement do not have appraisal rights, otherwise known as dissenters' rights, under New York Law with respect to their Taylor stock.

Voting of Proxies at the Special Meeting and Revocation of Proxies

Whether or not you are able to attend the Taylor Special Meeting, Taylor urges you to submit the proxy, which is solicited by Taylor's board of directors and which, when properly completed, will be voted as you direct. If the proxy does not specify how your shares are to be voted, the proxy will be voted FOR the approval of the merger agreement and for any other proposals brought before the Special Meeting, as Taylor's board of directors recommends. A copy of the merger agreement is attached as Appendix A. Tayco shareholders are encouraged to read the merger agreement in its entirety and the other information contained in this joint proxy statement/prospectus carefully before deciding how to vote.

Record Date for the Special Meeting

Tayco's board of directors has fixed the close of business on <R>January 11</R> , 2008 as the record date for determination of Tayco shareholders entitled to notice of and to vote at the Special Meeting. As of the close of business on the record date, there were 987,928 shares of Tayco common stock outstanding and entitled to vote, held of record by approximately <R>318</R> shareholders.

Vote and Quorum Required

Each share of Tayco common stock entitles the holder to one vote per share with respect to the matters expected to be submitted to the Tayco shareholders at the Special Meeting. There are no other voting securities of Tayco. Approval of the proposal to approve the merger agreement requires the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds (66 %) of the outstanding shares of common stock entitled to vote at the special meeting. In order to conduct business at the Special Meeting, a quorum consisting of at least a majority of Tayco's outstanding common stock must be present in person or represented by proxy.

If the shares present, in person and by proxy, at the Special Meeting do not constitute the required quorum, the Special Meeting may be adjourned to a subsequent date for the purpose of obtaining a quorum. Broker non-votes are shares that are not voted by the broker who is the record holder of the shares because the broker does not receive voting instructions from the beneficial owners of those shares or does not vote the shares in other circumstances in which proxy authority is defective or has been withheld with respect to any matter. Abstentions and broker non-votes are counted as present for the purposes of determining the presence or absence of a quorum for the transaction of business. Abstentions and broker non-votes will have the same effect as votes against the approval of the merger agreement.

Appraisal Rights

Tayco shareholders who comply with the requirements of Section 623 of the New York Business Corporation Law will be entitled, if the merger is consummated, to seek an appraisal of their shares of common stock. See "RIGHTS OF DISSENTING SHAREHOLDERS" and APPENDIX D.

After careful consideration, Tayco's board of directors has determined that the merger and the merger agreement are consistent with and in furtherance of Tayco's business strategy, are advisable and are fair to, and in the best interests of, Tayco and its shareholders. The board of directors has approved the merger agreement and the merger. Accordingly, Tayco's board of directors recommends that Tayco shareholders vote FOR the merger agreement.

The matters to be considered at the Special Meeting are of great importance to the shareholders of Tayco. Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

This section of the joint proxy statement/prospectus describes the proposed merger. Although Taylor and Tayco believe this section covers the material terms of the merger agreement and the related transactions, this description may not contain all of the information that is important to you. You should carefully read the entire joint proxy statement/prospectus, including the appendices, for a more complete understanding of the merger.

General

The Taylor and Tayco boards of directors have approved the merger and the terms of the merger agreement between the two companies which will have the effect of combining the governing bodies, operations, shareholder groups and other constituencies of Taylor and Tayco into one organization, with Taylor as the survivor. In order to complete the merger, each company must obtain the approval of its shareholders.

Reasons for the Merger

The boards of directors of Taylor and Tayco believe that the merger and the terms of the merger agreement are in the best interests of the shareholders of each company, and each board unanimously recommends that their shareholders vote "FOR" the approval of the merger agreement.

In the course of reaching their determination, the boards of directors of Taylor and Tayco considered a number of factors, including:

- The businesses of Taylor and Tayco depend upon each other. The patents owned by Tayco are essential for the devices sold by Taylor and Tayco licenses its patents exclusively to Taylor. The merger will fully integrate Tayco's patents and other intellectual property into the development and manufacture of Taylor's products.
- Taylor and Tayco have significant stock ownership in each other. Taylor owns 228,317 shares of Tayco stock, or approximately 23.1% of the Tayco shares issued and outstanding. Tayco owns 697,567 shares of Taylor stock, or approximately 22.2% of the Taylor shares issued and outstanding. These shares will be voted to approve the merger agreement. See "THE MERGER-Structure of the Merger-Table of Cross Ownership and Shares Outstanding." Tayco Realty Corporation, which holds the land where Taylor and Tayco have their principal places of business, is 58% owned by Taylor and 42% owned by Tayco. The merger of Taylor and Tayco is expected to simplify the accounting for the ownership of the combined enterprise.
- The merger of Taylor and Tayco will allow the consolidation of currently overlapping services, such as financial, accounting, legal, human resources, information technology and shareholder relations. The management of Taylor estimates that the combined enterprise will save roughly $35,000 per year in expenses.

- Taylor shares are traded over the Nasdaq Small Cap Market while Tayco shares are quoted on Pink Sheets and traded on the Over-the-Counter Bulletin Board. Taylor files annual, quarterly and current Exchange Act reports with the SEC, while Tayco does not. As a result of the merger, the investment that Tayco shareholders have in the surviving corporation will be in the form of Taylor shares; and the management of both companies expects that the market in Taylor shares as the surviving corporation will be more liquid than the present market in Tayco shares.

In making its determination, the board of directors did not ascribe any relative or specific weights to the factors which it considered.

Structure of the Merger

In accordance with the terms of the merger agreement and New York law, Tayco will merge with and into Taylor, with Taylor as the surviving corporation. In the merger, each share of Tayco common stock issued and outstanding as of the time of the merger will be converted into the right to receive one share of Taylor common stock. Taylor owns 228,317 shares of Tayco stock, or approximately 23.1% of the Tayco shares issued and outstanding; and Tayco owns 697,567 shares of Taylor stock, or approximately 22.2% of the Taylor shares issued and outstanding, all of which will be voted to approve the merger agreement. Upon completion of the merger, Taylor stock owned by Tayco will be cancelled without conversion or payment of the merger consideration; Tayco stock owned by Taylor will be converted into the same number of Taylor shares. The resulting Taylor shares will be held by Taylor in its treasury.

Table of Cross-Ownership and Shares Outstanding

Upon completion of the merger, there will no longer be any Tayco stock outstanding, except for shares as to which dissenters' rights have been properly exercised. The merger will become effective when a certificate of merger is filed with the Secretary of State of the State of New York or at such other date and time as may be specified in the certificate. Taylor and Tayco expect the merger to occur as soon as practicable following the Special Meetings of the Taylor and Tayco shareholders.

What You Will Receive in the Merger

In the merger, each share of Tayco common stock outstanding at the effective time of the merger will be exchanged for one share of Taylor common stock. No fractional shares of Taylor common stock will be issued in the merger.

Do not submit your Tayco stock certificate for exchange unless and until you receive a letter of transmittal and instructions from the Exchange Agent.

Background of the Merger

Taylor and Tayco were incorporated on the same date, July 22, 1955, under New York law. Taylor was organized to engage in the design, development, manufacture and marketing of shock absorption, rate control and energy storage devices for use in various types of machinery, equipment and structures. Tayco was organized as a patent holding company to research and develop such products primarily for Taylor, and to license to Taylor the rights to manufacture and sell products using Tayco's intellectual property. Paul H. Taylor, father of Douglas P. Taylor, was the largest single shareholder of both Taylor and Tayco.

Under a License Agreement dated December 16, 1955 and revised November 1, 1959 (the "License Agreement"), inventions patented by Paul H. Taylor were owned by Tayco and licensed exclusively to Taylor for the right to manufacture, use and sell in the United States and Canada all apparatuses and devices embodying the inventions in the patents. Since November 1, 1959, Taylor has paid Tayco a royalty on all sales except die springs. The royalty is 5% of the net sales price, less returns and adjustments, sold by Taylor or Taylor's sublicensees. Taylor is permitted by the License Agreement to sublicense the patents but has not done so. The License Agreement can be terminated by Taylor on 30 days notice but may not be terminated by Tayco except for causes specified in the License Agreement.

Paul H. Taylor, now deceased, was the inventor of many of Tayco's patents, some of which have not yet expired. From time to time, Tayco also became the owner of patents on inventions developed by others, including Tayco's president and CEO, Douglas P. Taylor. Pursuant to various patent royalty agreement these patents were assigned to Tayco which pays royalties to its assigning inventors of patentable products. Tayco pays all development and patent application costs on any new invention it accepts in addition to paying a percentage of the royalties it receives on the invention. Upon completion of the merger, these patents will be assigned to Taylor, and Taylor will assume all obligations for payment of any royalties to be paid by Tayco under existing arrangements.

In addition to royalty payments under the License Agreement, Taylor pays Tayco for research and developments expenses charged for services performed by Tayco's research engineer.

Tayco became an SEC-reporting company pursuant to Section 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 when its registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933 was declared effective by the SEC on April 22, 1960. On July 1, 2005, Tayco filed Form 15 with the SEC and suspended filing of its reports under the Exchange Act. Taylor registered its shares under Section 12(g) of the Exchange Act on April 8, 1969 and commenced filing quarterly, annual and current reports with the SEC. Taylor continues to timely file reports under the Exchange Act and anticipates doing so in the future.

The Taylor and Tayco boards of directors have from time to time each considered strategic alternatives for their companies. Taylor's board of directors has been committed to enhancing long-term value for Taylor shareholders and developing a strategic plan to create that value. In the past, committees of Taylor's board have worked with management to identify various operating and market strategies which often included consideration of a merger with Tayco.

To prepare for a possible transaction between the two companies, in March 2007 Tayco engaged Cole, Sorrentino, Hurley, Hewner & Gambino, P.C. to act as separate legal counsel. In June and July, 2007, the board considered whether Tayco might pay a dividend to its shareholders consisting of all of the Taylor shares owned by Tayco or 697,567 shares. The boards rejected this alternative because such a dividend was expected to result in taxable gain being recognized by Tayco and taxable dividend income being recognized by Tayco shareholders, in contrast to a merger of Taylor and Tayco resulting in a tax-free reorganization.

On August 30, 2007, the Taylor board created a merger committee comprised solely of independent directors to evaluate the strategic opportunities presented by such a merger and the apparent benefits to be derived.

The information in this proxy statement concerning the terms of the merger is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the merger agreement, which is attached as APPENDIX A. All shareholders of both companies are urged to carefully read the merger agreement in its entirety.

Unless the merger agreement is terminated, as soon as possible after the conditions to consummation of the merger described below have been satisfied or waived, Taylor and Tayco will file a certificate of merger with the State of New York. The merger will become effective at the time and on the date of the filing of the certificate of merger, or at such other date and time as may be specified in the certificate, and Tayco will be merged with and into Taylor. Upon consummation of the merger, each shareholder of Tayco will be entitled to receive one share of Taylor common stock for each share of Tayco common stock held. Thereupon, each shareholder will cease to be a shareholder of Tayco, and Tayco's independent existence will cease.

Exchange of Certificates

No later than five business days after the completion of the merger, the Exchange Agent will mail or make available to all holders of record of Tayco common stock, a notice and letter of transmittal, together with instructions for the exchange of their Tayco common stock certificates for common stock certificates of Taylor. Until so exchanged, each certificate representing Tayco common stock outstanding immediately prior to the completion of the merger will be deemed for all purposes to evidence the right to receive the merger consideration into which each such share is to be converted. Tayco shareholders should not send in their certificates of Tayco common stock until they have received further instructions. See "TERMS OF THE MERGER AGREEMENT—Merger Consideration."

Opinion of Taylor's Financial Advisor

Taylor retained Empire Valuation Consultants, LLC ("Empire") to render its opinion to the board of directors of Taylor as to whether the 1:1 exchange ratio (the "Exchange Ratio") being considered for the exchange by Taylor of 987,928 shares of common stock of Taylor for 987,928 shares of common stock of Tayco in a proposed merger of the two companies is fair to Taylor shareholders from a financial point of view. Based on a per share price of $6.11¹ for Taylor (the "Stock Price"), the Exchange Ratio valued Tayco at $6,036,240. The opinion was reviewed by Taylor's merger committee, comprised solely of independent directors, who recommended the adoption of the Empire opinion to the full board.

Review Process

In connection with its investigation and analysis, Empire researched or reviewed: (i) Taylor, Tayco and Tayco Realty internal financial statements and tax returns for the years ending May 31, 2003 through 2007; (ii) available investment analyst reports for Taylor; (iii) Taylor's website, <http://www.taylordevices.com>; (iv) Taylor's SEC filings, including its Report on Form 10-KSB filed August 17, 2007 for the fiscal year ending May 31, 2007; (v) trading data for share price, trading volume and pricing multiples of Taylor's publicly traded common stock (Ticker: TAYD) with information available from Yahoo! Finance and the Bloomberg Network; (vi) trading data for share price, trading volume and pricing multiples of Tayco's publicly traded common stock (Ticker: TYCO) with information available from Yahoo! Finance and the Bloomberg Network; (vii) databases and financial information sources, including Compustat and the Bloomberg Network for public companies similar, relevant and comparable to Taylor; (viii) Tayco Realty's real property tax assessment for 90 Taylor Drive and 100 Taylor Drive, both located in North Tonawanda, New York (the "Properties"); (ix) the property assessment methodology applied to the Properties (as defined in the opinion) based on information available from the City of North Tonawanda's website, www.northtonawanda.org, and a discussion with the City Treasurer's office of North Tonawanda; and (x) financial projections for Taylor's projected revenue and net income for 2008 without the effect of the proposed merger with Tayco.

I Determined based on weighted average rolling 10 day average for September 1, 2007 through September 25, 2007.

Empire held conference calls and discussions with Taylor's management regarding the valuation of Taylor, Tayco and Tayco Realty, the net financial statement impact of the proposed merger with Tayco on Taylor, and the business outlook for Taylor and its subsidiaries. Empire considered such other information, financial studies, and analyses as it deemed relevant, and performed such analyses, studies, and investigations as it deemed appropriate.

Pre-Merger Relationships

Empire considered the following pre-merger common ownership, cross ownership and other relationships: (i) Taylor and Tayco have common shareholders with similar, but not identical, ownership in each company; (ii) Taylor owns 23.1% of Tayco's equity (228,317 shares); (iii) Tayco owns 22.2% of Taylor's equity (697,567 shares); (iv) Taylor owns 58% of Tayco Realty; (v) Tayco owns 42% of Tayco Realty; (vi) Taylor is a licensee of Tayco's intellectual property and pays royalties to Tayco; (vii) there are inter-company accounts between Taylor, Tayco and Tayco Realty; (viii) Taylor is an operating company and its common stock trade on Nasdaq under the symbol "TAYD;" (ix) Tayco Realty is a real estate holding company and its tenant is Taylor; and (x) Tayco is an intellectual property holding company and its common stock trades in the Pink Sheets and OTC market under the symbol "TYCO." Tayco stock is thinly traded and does not trade on a daily basis. Tayco's total volume between July 23, 2007 and the date of the Empire fairness opinion was 20,610 shares, of which 6,600 traded on August 2, 2007. Additionally, Tayco has not submitted SEC filings since April 2005.

Effects of the Merger

Empire calculated that, as a result of the proposed merger transaction (the "Exchange Transaction"), Taylor would acquire the following:

- 697,567 shares of Taylor. Based on the Stock Price, Tayco's holding of Taylor was worth $4,262,134. Upon completion of the Exchange Transaction, the acquired Taylor shares would be placed into treasury, resulting in a net increase of 290,361 shares of Taylor common stock outstanding; from 3,145,905 shares to 3,436,266 shares.
- Tayco's cash balance, approximately $775,000 as of August 31, 2007.
- Tayco's 42% equity ownership of Tayco Realty. Based on Tayco Realty's most recent tax assessment as an indication, the market value of real property owned by Tayco Realty was approximately $991,935. Tayco Realty owns two properties: (1) 90 Taylor Drive, North Tonawanda, New York; and (2) 100 Taylor Drive, North Tonawanda, New York. HSBC is the holder of a mortgage from Taylor, Tayco Realty and the Niagara County Industrial Development Agency ("NCIDA") on 90 Taylor Drive. NCIDA is the issuer of the bond for the benefit of Taylor. According to Taylor's most recent SEC 10-KSB filing, the principal balance remaining was $153,334. According to Taylor management the approximate principal balance as of the writing of the Empire fairness opinion was $80,000. The monthly payment to be paid by Taylor on this obligation is $2,222. Further, Tayco Realty had receivables in the amount of $896,838. Therefore, Tayco's 42% pro rata share of equity ownership was $793,285 [($991,935 + $896,838) x 42%]. Upon completion of the Exchange Transaction, Taylor would eliminate from its balance sheet the minority stockholder's interest liability of $520,504 (as of May 31, 2007) attributable to Tayco's ownership interest in Tayco Realty.

- The elimination of "Payables - Due to Affiliate" of $174,609 owed by Taylor to Tayco.
- Synergistic benefits of merging with Tayco resulting in expected increased earnings after consolidation of Tayco and Taylor based on reduced professional fees and the ownership of Tayco patents.

Taylor will assume Tayco's liabilities, which Empire considered were insignificant. The aggregate value of what Taylor would acquire was $6,005,028 ($4,262,134 + $775,000 + $793,285 + $174,609) plus the synergistic benefits of the Exchange Transaction between Taylor and Tayco on an ongoing basis.

Limiting Conditions

Empire's fairness opinion was provided to the board of directors of Taylor in connection with and for the purpose of their evaluation of the Exchange Transaction. It was not intended for, nor should it be relied upon by, any other interested party to the Exchange Transaction.

In connection with its analysis, Empire relied upon and assumed, without independent verification, the accuracy and completeness of all financial or other information provided to it or publicly available. Empire also relied on the assurance of Taylor's management that there have been no material adverse changes in each company's financial conditions since the date of the last financial statements available before the issuance of Empire's opinion.

Empire did not conduct an independent appraisal of any tangible or specific intangible assets of Taylor, Tayco or Tayco Realty. Hazardous substances, if present within the facilities of a business, can introduce an actual or potential liability that will adversely affect the marketability and value of the business or its underlying assets. In the development of Empire's opinion of value, no consideration was given to such liability or its impact on value unless otherwise indicated in the report.

Empire's opinion is focused on the fairness of the Exchange Transaction to Taylor's shareholders other than Tayco. It is Empire's belief that the Exchange Transaction does not constitute a change of control of Taylor. Empire's opinion is necessarily based on business, economic, market, and other conditions, as they existed as of the date of the opinion letter (September 26, 2007); any change in such conditions would require Empire to re-evaluate its opinion. Empire's opinion is limited to the fairness of the Exchange Transaction to Taylor's shareholders as of its date hereof, from a financial point of view. The opinion did not take into consideration any tax consequences related to the Exchange Transaction.

Empire does not have a financial interest in Taylor, Tayco or Tayco Realty. Taylor has, however, agreed to indemnify Empire for any claims asserted against it in connection with the opinion, other than for claims arising out of Empire's gross negligence or willful misconduct.

Fairness Opinion

Based upon the foregoing, and in reliance thereon, Empire issued its opinion dated September 26, 2007, as financial advisor to Taylor's board of directors, that the Exchange Ratio is fair to Taylor's common shareholders from a financial point of view.

Opinion of Tayco's Financial Advisor

Tayco retained ValuQuest Business Appraisals ("ValuQuest"), a financial consulting firm, on the basis of its experience, to evaluate the terms of the merger and render a written opinion to the board of directors of Tayco as to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the per share consideration to be received for the acquisition of all outstanding common stock of Tayco. Tayco placed no limitations on ValuQuest with respect to the investigation made, or procedures followed by, ValuQuest in rendering its opinion. The board of Tayco acknowledged the accuracy of factual information regarding Tayco relied upon in the ValuQuest opinion.

ValuQuest, and its affiliates, have been in the business of consulting for a wide range of companies for nearly 30 years, including the valuation of businesses and their securities in connection with mergers and acquisitions and other securities transactions. In conducting its analysis and arriving at its expressed opinion, ValuQuest conducted such studies, analyses and investigations, as it deemed appropriate. ValuQuest considered the terms of the merger, and took into account its assessment of the general economic, industry, market, and financial conditions, and its experience in connection with transactions in companies and securities in general.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

On May 23, 2007, ValuQuest issued its opinion to the board of directors of Tayco that the proposed per share consideration of 1.0 share of registered common stock of Taylor, in exchange for 1.0 share of common stock of Tayco, (the Common Exchange Ratio"), is fair from a financial perspective, to Tayco and its shareholders. A copy of the written opinion is attached as Appendix C to this proxy statement and should be read in its entirety. ValuQuest's written opinion does not constitute an endorsement of the merger or a recommendation to any shareholder as to how such shareholder should vote at the Special Meeting.

In rendering its opinion, ValuQuest analyzed certain publicly available information concerning Tayco and Taylor, including each party's audited financial statements and annual reports then available. In addition, ValuQuest considered other factors in making its evaluation. In arriving at its opinion regarding the fairness of the consideration, ValuQuest reviewed: (i) audited financial statements for Tayco for the fiscal years ending May 31, 2001 through 2006; (ii) internally prepared interim financial statements for Tayco as of February 28, 2007; (iii) annual reports for Tayco for the fiscal years ending May 31, 2002 through 2004; (iv) Form 10-KSB reports for Tayco filed with the SEC for the fiscal years ending May 31, 2002 through 2004; (v) Tayco's income tax return (Form 1120) for the fiscal year ending May 31, 2005; (vi) the License Agreement between Tayco and Taylor dated November 1, 1959; (vii) the "Shareholder Summary" listing shareholders of Tayco; (viii) asset depreciation short report as of May 31, 2006 provided by Tayco; (ix) Tayco's patent listing; (x) annual reports for Taylor for the fiscal years May 31, 2004 through 2006; (xi) internally prepared annual financial statements for Tayco Realty for the fiscal years ending May 31, 2004 through 2006; (xii) internally prepared interim financial statements of Tayco Realty as of February 28, 2007; and (xiii) property tax assessed value by the City of North Tonawanda, New York for land and building at 90 Taylor Drive.

ValuQuest conducted due diligence on Tayco including meetings at Tayco on December 7 and 8, 2006, with a focus on various aspects of Tayco's business, its operations, finances, prospects, patents and other assets. ValuQuest also conducted discussions regarding Taylor historical performance and financial condition. ValuQuest discussed with the management of Tayco its operating performance and future prospects, primarily with respect to the current level of Tayco's earnings and future expected operating results.

History and Nature of the Business

Tayco was incorporated on July 22, 1955 by the organizers of Taylor to provide research and development and licensing to Taylor. At its peak, Tayco had annual revenue of $624,000, but revenues declined to $224,000 during the trailing 12-month (TTM) period ending February 28, 2007. At the beginning of fiscal 2005, Tayco elected to go private, but its shares have continued to trade and are quoted on OTC Pink Sheets.

Management and Personnel

Douglas P. Taylor has served as president of Tayco since 1991, and Mark McDonough serves as CFO. The services of Mr. Taylor and Mr. McDonough to Tayco are on a part time basis. Beginning in 2005, employment declined from three full-time employees to one full-time employee, a mechanical engineer who conducts research and development. Taylor provides Tayco with administrative functions in exchange for administrative fees.

Capitalization and Ownership

Tayco currently has 987,928 common shares outstanding, has no other class of stock. Tayco has no interest-bearing debt outstanding. Taylor is Tayco's largest single shareholder of record with 228,317 common shares held, or a 23.1% interest held. Over 500,000 shares of Tayco are held in street name. There appears to be no shareholder agreement that restricts the transferability of Tayco's common shares.

Based on historical trading information, closing prices for Tayco have ranged from $3.35 per share to $4.30 per share and averaged $3.74 per share from May 23, 2006 through the closing price as of May 22, 2007. The May 22, 2007 close price was $3.50 per share. Volume for Tayco shares is light. The average daily volume is 1,110 shares since May 23, 2006.

ValuQuest also considered historical closing prices for Taylor to derive implied exchange ratios of Tayco to Taylor. During the same time period, Taylor's share price ranged from $4.79 to $6.84 and averaged $5.58. Based on closing prices for Taylor and Tayco on corresponding dates from May 23, 2006 through May 22, 2007, the implied exchange ratio of one Tayco share to one Taylor share ranged from 0.56 to 0.85 and averaged 0.67. Assuming a proposed exchange ratio of 1.0, the suggested premium has ranged from 17% to 77% and averaged 50%. The ratio on the most recent corresponding closing prices for Tayco and Taylor is 0.64. A one for one exchange ratio represented a premium of 56% as of the date of their report.

OTC transactions for Tayco are at arm's length and may represent market value indicators of minority interests in Tayco. However, since electing not to file periodic reports with the SEC starting in 2005, Tayco does not publicly release financial information or an annual report. A shareholder may have difficulties selling a block of shares in Tayco without a substantial impact on price, because trading volume has historically been limited.

Services

Tayco provides research and development and licensing to advance the products and operations of Taylor. Revenue is generated from research and development fees charged to Taylor and from royalties on patents. Services are at an hourly rate on an as-needed basis. There is currently no backlog. All royalty revenue is generated from Taylor and is determined by the terms of the License Agreement. Royalty revenue is ultimately determined by sales of applicable products by Taylor.

Taylor is engaged in the design, development, manufacture and marketing of shock absorption, rate control and energy storage devices for use in various types of structures and machinery and equipment. Specific products include seismic dampers, Fluidshoks, crane and industrial buffers, self-adjusting shock absorbers, liquid die springs and vibration dampers.

At the date of ValuQuest's opinion, Tayco had 18 active patents covered under the License Agreement with expiration dates ranging from June 8, 2007 to June 18, 2022. The number of active patents had declined significantly in recent years. Twenty-three patents expired in the preceding five years. Under the License Agreement, Tayco is entitled to receive royalties of 5.0% of net sales (invoice price, less freight and trade discounts) of products that utilize patented technologies. Royalty payments to Tayco are required to be made on a quarterly basis. The License Agreement provides Taylor with the-first-option to-license or purchase patents developed and owned by Tayco. Upon waiver by Taylor, Tayco can license its patents to non-related parties but must pay Taylor 10% of royalties received from such non-related parties. Management indicates that no such waiver has occurred.

ValuQuest analyzed the total deal price on a cash equivalent fair value basis using the standard valuation techniques discussed below based on certain assumptions of projected growth, earnings and dividends.

Property and Equipment and Intangible Assets

Tayco possesses nominal amounts of laboratory equipment, shop equipment and furniture and fixtures. All property and equipment is fully depreciated. Office space and laboratory facilities are leased from Taylor. Total annual lease expenses were $12,000 in fiscal 2006 and 2005.

Tayco holds a 42% ownership interest in Tayco Realty, a related real estate holding corporation. Tayco Realty owns land and a 38,000 square foot building at 90 Taylor Drive in North Tonawanda, New York and leases the property to Taylor. Taylor subleases a portion of the above mentioned office space and laboratory facilities to Tayco.

At the date of ValuQuest's opinion, Tayco held 18 active patents relating to specific designs and manufacturing processes for dampers, shock absorbers and isolators. Related expenditures for legal fees and applications are capitalized and amortized over the estimated economic useful lives of the patents. The average economic useful life is approximately 15 years. A chart of all remaining active patents and their scheduled expiration appears in the opinion.

Tayco made no capital expenditures for property and equipment during fiscal 2002 through the TTM period ending February 28, 2007. Investment in patent development has also been limited during the same time period. The last significant patent investment occurred in 2002, when capitalized expenses totaled over $31,000.

Competitive Market Conditions

All of Tayco's revenue is generated from Taylor and is directly affected by sales of products that contain licensed designs or technologies. Tayco does not face any direct competition due to the nature of its patented products and its subcontracting arrangement with Taylor. Tayco's revenues, however, are indirectly affected by the competition that Taylor faces. Taylor primarily operates in the construction, industrial, aerospace and defense industries. All of the domestic industries that Taylor serves are mature, with foreign markets offering higher growth opportunities.

Goodrich Corporation is Taylor's primary competitor in the aerospace market and is substantially larger and more diversified. Taylor competes on price, warranty and product performance, but cannot compete in volume due to limited financing and capacity. In the construction market, Taylor competes against two primary manufacturers of seismic damping devices, as well as numerous other firms which supply alternative seismic protection technologies.

Recent revenue growth for Taylor has been driven by higher volumes of dampers to the construction industry. Management believes that the overall level of global construction activity requiring seismic protection has increased from prior years, especially in Asian markets. Because of Taylor's participation in the seismic dampers market, it is not uncommon for the price of Taylor stock to jump on reports of a major earthquake or seismic activity.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Tayco's balance sheets for the past five fiscal years ending May 31, 2002 through 2006 and, as of February 28, 2007, are presented in Schedule A of the opinion. Income statements and common size income statements for a similar period, with February 28, 2007 statements reflecting the TTM results are presented in Schedules B and C of the opinion, respectively. Statements of cash flows are presented for fiscal years 2002 through 2006 in Schedule D of the opinion. Financial statements for fiscal years 2002 through 2006 have been audited by Lumsden & McCormick, LLP. Year to date (YTD) and TTM results were obtained from internally prepared statements.

Balance Sheets

Total assets for Tayco are primarily comprised of cash and cash equivalents (cash), investments in affiliates, a note receivable from Taylor, and intangible assets. The asset base for Tayco is substantial in relation to Tayco revenues. Total assets gradually increased at the end of each period from $3.2 million at the end of fiscal 2002 to $3.8 million at the end of 2007 YTD. The overall increase generally reflects increases in cash and investments in affiliates (on an equity basis).

Cash gradually increased from $56,000 at the end of fiscal 2002 to $106,000 at the end of fiscal 2004. The growth in cash accelerated over the next several years as the cash balance totaled $693,000 at 2007 YTD. Cash increased largely from the reduction in the receivable from Taylor. The receivable from Taylor increased from $540,000 at the end of fiscal 2002 to $776,000 at the end of fiscal 2004, before dropping to $173,000 by 2007 YTD. The receivable from Taylor carries an interest rate of 7.0% per year and any unpaid balance and interest is due at the beginning of July 2007.²

Investments in affiliates include Tayco's 42% ownership interest in Tayco Realty and 697,567 (22.2% interest) common shares in Taylor. Investments in affiliates are accounted for under the equity method. The gradual increase during the period is due to higher cumulative equity in net income of the affiliates.

Intangible assets are comprised of patents developed by Tayco. The book value of the patents has declined at the end of each period from $240,000 at the end of fiscal 2002 to $73,000 at 2007 YTD. The decline is due to patents expiring or being amortized and Tayco's limited investment in developing new patents during the period of review.

Total liabilities have been modest throughout the period and were comprised of accrued payroll, accrued income taxes and other accrued expenses. Total liabilities were a nominal $4,000 at 2007 YTD. Liabilities reflect normal period ending expense accruals. Tayco has a lease with Taylor for office and laboratory facilities that requires annual lease payments of $12,000. ValuQuest is not aware of any other contingent or off balance sheet liabilities that place a meaningful claim on Tayco's assets.

Total equity increased gradually at the end of each period from $3.1 million at the end of fiscal 2002 to $3.8 million at 2007 YTD, and was driven by increases in retained earnings. All growth in retained earnings since the end of fiscal 2002 reflects non operating income (interest, equity in net income of affiliates and miscellaneous), as total operating income since the end of fiscal 2002 is modestly negative.

Statements of Income

Tayco's revenue is comprised of royalties from Taylor's use of Tayco's patents and fees for research and development services. Revenue dropped from $622,000 in fiscal 2002 to $526,000 in fiscal 2003 before rebounding to $624,000 in fiscal 2004. The fall-off in revenue continued over the next two years to $226,000 for 2006. Revenue for 2007 TTM is essentially flat at $224,000. The general decline in annual revenue for Tayco has been driven by the reduction in economic benefits to Taylor for outsourcing research and development (R&D) and licensing in government contracts, combined with the costs of developing and protecting patents. Taylor has increased its in-house R&D and its reliance on proprietary data and trade secrets instead of patents to protect its competitive advantage. The temporary increase in fiscal 2004 reflects a spike in royalty revenue that year with several large shipments by Taylor of products utilizing licensed technologies.

² Tayco and Taylor have entered into a new promissory note in the principal amount of $144,399.00 with a maturity date of June 1, 2008 and an interest rate of 8% per annum. This note will be cancelled if the merger is consummated.

Operating income has generally trended with revenue during the period of review. Operating income decreased annually from $250,000 in fiscal 2002 to a loss of $121,000 in fiscal 2006. The operating loss narrowed in 2007 TTM to $43,000. In fiscal 2004, operating income declined from $115,000 to $33,000, despite the increase in revenue, as operating expense jumped by nearly $180,000. Higher R&D and SG&A expenses drove the increase in overall operating expenses. The declines in operating income in fiscals 2005 and 2006 were due to lower revenue as operating expenses declined at a slower rate. The lower deficit in 2007 TTM is due to lower operating expenses.

Other items primarily consist of interest income and Tayco's equity in net income in Taylor and Tayco Realty. Tayco's equity in net income from affiliates approximated $100,000 in fiscal years 2002 and 2003 before dropping to nearly $0 in fiscal 2004, as Taylor reported a net loss. Equity in net income of affiliates increased the next three periods to $193,000 in 2007 TTM with results at Taylor.

Net income declined annually from $257,000 in fiscal 2002 to $94,000 in fiscal 2004 with the decline in operating income. Net income improved to $114,000 in fiscal 2005 with the increase in equity in net income of affiliates. In fiscal 2006, net income dropped to $62,000, with the reported operating loss and then improved to $163,000 in 2007 TTM with a lower operating loss and higher equity in net income of affiliates. Each year since 2004, the overwhelming majority of net income has come from non-operating income.

VALUATION ANALYSIS

Valuation Approach

To develop an opinion with respect to the fairness of the proposed 1.0 for 1.0 share Exchange Ratio, ValuQuest examined a range for the fair value for a common share of Tayco.

"Fair value" is generally defined as the cash or cash equivalent price agreed upon in an arm's-length transaction between knowledgeable, willing parties who are under no compulsion to act. Based on ValuQuest's understanding of New York law, fair value is determined on a pro rata basis and no adjustment shall be considered for non-controlling interests in the transacted asset(s). When the transacted asset is a business entity, fair value under New York law is determined based on the assumption that the transacted business will continue to operate as a going concern. Additionally, ValuQuest understands that a discount for lack of marketability may be taken into consideration.

There are three basic approaches to valuation: asset, income and market. The asset approach derives the value of a business solely from the value of business assets. The income approach states that the value of the business is directly related to the expected future earnings of the business. The market approach values the business directly from other similar businesses that have sold or trade on public markets.

Asset Approach

Under the asset approach, four methods of valuation may be considered: book value, net asset value, liquidation value and cost to create. These valuation methods focus on the net asset value of a company. These methods are more commonly used to value asset holding companies, smaller firms with unusual risks and at times capital intensive manufacturing firms. Tayco is a holding company with cash and cash equivalents, investments in Tayco Realty and Taylor, and a note receivable from Taylor accounting for nearly all of its assets as of 2007 YTD. Tayco's historical operating results and outlook suggest goodwill or intangible value limited to the value of Tayco patents. Based upon these factors, ValuQuest utilized a net asset value approach to determine a fair value range for Tayco.

Income Approach

The income approach entails present value analysis of anticipated monetary benefits. Under the income approach, three methods of valuation may be considered: capitalization of earnings, capitalization of excess earnings and discounted cash flow. These methods are frequently employed in valuing closely-held businesses. A capitalization method is more suitable when a company's future cash flows are expected to change at a stable rate. The discounted cash flow method is more suitable when a company's future performance may be expected to vary. Based on the Tayco's limited historical earnings and outlook for future earnings relative to its asset base, an income approach does not provide a meaningful indicator of fair value.

Market Approach

Under the market theory, two methods of valuation may be considered: guideline public company and guideline private transaction. Under the guideline public company method, a value of a business is determined based on market values of similar publicly traded companies. Under the guideline private transaction approach, value is determined based on prices at which similar private companies have been bought and sold. The limited historical profitability and prospects suggest the market approach would not provide a meaningful indicator of value. That stated, there is a limited market for minority shares of Tayco which ValuQuest found to be at least relevant to its analysis.

Net Asset Value Method

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

Under the net asset value (NAV) method, the fair value of each asset and each liability is determined, then the total assets and liabilities are aggregated to indicate a total value of Tayco. The fair value of equity is derived by subtracting the total fair value of liabilities from the total fair value of assets. The resulting value is inherently on a control level basis as control is required to extract liquidity out of corporate assets. Fair value calculations are based upon Tayco's February 28, 2007 balance sheet. The stock price of Taylor is based upon the closing price as of May 22, 2007. ValuQuest states that any material change to the financial condition of Tayco subsequent to the February 28, 2007 financial statements, or the May 22, 2007 closing price for Taylor, could have a material impact on its opinion. The primary assets of the Tayco are cash (and cash equivalents), investment in Taylor stock, investment in Tayco Realty, a receivable from Taylor and patents (intangible assets). The range for the net asset value calculation and related suggested range for the exchange rate is presented on Schedule E to the opinion. ValuQuest's opinion addresses the fair value of specific assets as follows:

Cash and cash equivalents are reflected on the balance sheet of their fair value of $693,136.

Investment in Taylor consists of 697,567 of common shares. Of the shares held, 395,602 shares are not registered. Taylor's registered shares trade on Nasdaq Small Cap Market and the closing price as of May 22, 2007 was $5.46 per share. Based on the May 22, 2007 closing price the value of the Taylor shares held is $3,808,716, before the consideration of marketability of the unregistered shares and the liquidity of the registered block.

An unregistered share does not possess the same marketability as a registered share of a company because it cannot be freely traded in the public market. A holder of an unregistered share can only liquidate such shares in a private transaction. To account for the potential impairment for marketability, ValuQuest applied a discount for lack of marketability of up to 15% for the block of unregistered shares for the lower end of the range of its calculations. A detailed discussion relating to marketability is presented in the opinion.

The remaining 301,965 registered Taylor shares held by Tayco represent a 9.6% block of Taylor shares outstanding as of March 29, 2007. Creating liquidity for such a block of stock may prove challenging and create a blockage discount.

The concept of "blockage" applies to the liquidity of a block of stock in a publicly-traded company, based upon the market's ability or inability to absorb the block without creating downward pressure on price. If there is a sudden increase in supply, a lower price may be required to stimulate demand to absorb the shares. Based upon the size of the block in relation to the market value, ValuQuest found that a blockage discount of up to 10% is applicable for the block of Taylor stock, and is discussed in detail in the opinion. At the lower end of its fair value range, ValuQuest applied a blockage discount of 10% to the block of registered shares. At the upper end of its range, ValuQuest did not apply a blockage discount.

Investment in Tayco Realty represents a 42.0% ownership interest. To determine the fair value of the investment, the fair value of Tayco Realty's equity was estimated. ValuQuest utilized the net asset value method to determine the fair value of Tayco Realty's equity because it is a real estate holding company. The balance sheets of Tayco Realty from fiscal years 2004 through 2006 are presented in Appendix A and a fair value adjusted balance sheet as of February 28, 2007 is presented in Appendix B to the opinion. ValuQuest outlined adjustments to Tayco Realty's assets and liabilities, as follows:

Cash and prepaid expenses do not require adjustment because their respective book values approximate their fair values due to their short-term nature.

Receivables net include a receivable from Taylor. The receivable bears interest at 7.0% per year. Due to the expectation that the receivable will be fully collectible and bears a market rate, the book value of the receivable proxies its market value.

Land, Building & Building Improvements consists of a 38,000 square foot building located at 90 Taylor Drive. The historical cost of the land and building is $854,636 and the book value as of February 28, 2007 is $335,306. To proxy the fair value of the real property, ValuQuest considered the tax assessed value for property tax purposes. Based on the latest property tax assessment (as of the date of the ValuQuest opinion) by the City of North Tonawanda, the estimated fair value of the real property is $795,000 or an unrealized gain of $459,694 above the book value. However, to realize the estimated gain on the real estate, it is assumed that Tayco Realty would incur a tax liability on the unrealized gain. Estimated taxes on the gain are $183,878 at a 40% tax rate. The net adjustment to the real property is $275,816 and the estimated realizable value is $611,122.

Accrued income taxes and other accrued expenses do not require adjustment due to their short-term nature.

Deducting the fair value of Tayco Realty's liabilities of $4,859 from the fair value of assets of $1,497,012 equals the estimated fair value of equity of $1,492,153. The estimated fair value of Tayco's 42.0% interest before consideration of a discount for lack of marketability is

Maintenance and other inventory, net

$626,704, is the upper end of our range for fair value.

However, there is not a readily available market for Tayco's non publicly traded 42% ownership interest in Tayco Realty. To attract potential buyers, Tayco may need to offer a discount for lack of marketability to compensate for the additional risk. As discussed in the Discount for Lack of Marketability (DLOM) section of the opinion, ValuQuest estimated a potential discount at 40.0%. The estimated fair value of the Tayco's interest after a DLOM of 40% is $376,022, which is the lower end of the range for fair value. See Appendix C, "Marketability Discount and Blockage Discount - Investment in Tayco Realty" on pages 33-38 thereof.

Patents - As of the date of the ValuQuest opinion, Tayco had 18 active patents that are licensed to Taylor. Average patent revenue for the preceding six fiscal periods (including 2007 TTM) was $172,765 per year. The active patents, however, are expiring on an ongoing basis, with many having expired within the preceding three years and three more scheduled to expire in 2007. Tayco is not generating significant new patents to replace those expiring. Average patent revenue for the past three fiscal periods has declined to $127,921. Direct expenses related to patents for the last fiscal year total approximately $12,000.

As one proxy for the fair value of the patents, ValuQuest prepared a discounted cash flow analysis based upon potential patent income over the next eight fiscal years. At the end of that period, Tayco will have only a few active patents remaining and various expenses should offset any continuing income.

In its discounted cash flow analysis, ValuQuest projected ongoing royalties based upon the 2007 TTM level of royalties, and adjusted downward by the percentage of patents expiring in subsequent years. Tayco has historically experienced occasional spikes in patent royalties based upon a large project or series of projects for Taylor in a single year. To reflect such a spike year, ValuQuest incorporated one year in its model where royalty revenue will increase by $100,000 over the ongoing average year similar to the jump in royalties in fiscal 2004. Target income is calculated by subtracting the $12,000 in expenses associated with ongoing patent maintenance and a normalized 40% income tax rate. During the period in the discounted cash flow model, net cash flow from patents generally declines with the number of active patents from approximately $45,000 in fiscal 2008 to nominal levels in fiscal 2015 with a temporary spike to $101,000 in fiscal 2011.

Calculating the present value for the target income from patent royalties at discount rates ranging from 25% to 30% suggests a fair value for the patents in the range of $160,000 to $180,000. See Appendix C to the opinion.

All other assets and liabilities were disregarded as not material to the overall value calculation.

The suggested fair values for Tayco range from $4,722,119 to $5,481,677 or $4.78 to $5.55 per share based upon the 987,928 shares of Tayco common stock currently issued and outstanding. See Appendix C, "Conclusion" on page 38 thereof.

Discount for Investment in Taylor

The existence of a ready market for a security is of definite value to an owner, or to a potential buyer, and a security which possesses such a ready market is worth more than another otherwise similar security which does not have such a market. The well-informed buyer of an interest in a closely-held company or in unregistered shares in a publicly-traded company would obviously be aware that they would be buying securities with limited marketability.

A discount for lack of marketability captures the diminution in value attributable to a non-marketable security relative to its value on a fully marketable basis. Lack of ready marketability makes the interest considerably less attractive than if it could be easily liquidated. This concept was recognized by the Internal Revenue Service in Revenue Ruling 77-287 when, in discussing the value of unregistered shares in public companies, it stated, "The discount from the market price provides the main incentive for a potential buyer to acquire restricted securities."

ValuQuest considered a discount for lack of marketability of an interest in a closely held corporation. ValuQuest considered several studies on the subject and considered trading data of Taylor stock. ValuQuest concluded that the discount applicable to the shares of Taylor stock held by Tayco would be no more than 10%. See Appendix C, "Marketability Discount and Blockage Discount - Investment in Devices" on pages 25-33 thereof.

Discount for Lack of Marketability - Investment in Tayco Realty

To determine a lack of marketability discount for Tayco's investment in Tayco Realty, ValuQuest discussed studies of marketability discounts for restricted stock of publicly traded companies and a study of price-to-value discounts in the limited partnership secondary market. Tayco Realty is smaller and less diverse than nearly all of the companies or partnerships involved in the marketability studies. Tayco Realty has no history of paying distributions to shareholders. Based on these factors, ValuQuest estimated the discount for lack of marketability at up to 40% for Tayco's investment in Tayco Realty. See Appendix C, "Investment in Tayco Realty" on pages 23-24 thereof.

ValuQuest acted as Tayco's financial advisor in connection with the merger and will receive a flat fee for its services. ValuQuest does not have a financial interest in Tayco, Taylor or Tayco Realty. Tayco has, however, agreed to indemnify ValuQuest for any claims asserted against it in connection with the opinion, other than for claims arising out of ValuQuest's gross negligence or willful misconduct.

CONCLUSION

Based on the then available information, the fair value per share for Tayco is within the range of $4.78 to $5.55. The closing price of Taylor stock of $5.46 as of May 22, 2007 suggests an exchange ratio within the range of 0.88 to 1.02. The average closing price for Taylor for the past year of $5.58 per share suggests an exchange ratio of 0.87 to 1.01. The Common Exchange Ratio (as such term is defined in the opinion) for the Transaction is 1.0 and is within the range of fair exchange ratios. Therefore, it is the opinion of ValuQuest that, as of the opinion date, the consideration to be received pursuant to the Transaction is fair from a financial point of view to the shareholders of Tayco. ValuQuest's opinion of fairness is contingent on the most-recent data made available to them.

Interests of Certain Persons in the Merger

Taylor has agreed to indemnify and hold harmless the past and present directors and officers of Tayco for all acts or omissions occurring at or prior to the effective time of the merger to the same extent these persons have the right to be indemnified and held harmless by Tayco, and this right shall continue in full force and effect for so long as it would (but for the merger) otherwise survive and continue in full force and effect.

Douglas P. Taylor, the current chairman of Taylor's and Tayco's board of directors and president and chief executive officer of both companies, will continue to serve as chairman of the surviving corporation's board of directors following the merger. Other executive officers of Taylor are expected to continue in their positions following the merger. Messrs. David A. Lee and Paul L. Tuttobene, and Ms. Janice M. Nicely (who, with Mr. Taylor, currently comprise the board of directors of Tayco), will not be appointed to the board of directors of Taylor after the merger.

Messrs. Douglas P. Taylor and Richard G. Hill, who are directors, officers and shareholders of Taylor, own or control 96,951 Tayco shares, or 9.8%. See also "INFORMATION ABOUT TAYCO—Security Ownership of Certain Beneficial Owners and Management." Upon the conversion of Tayco shares into shares of Taylor, these persons will more easily be able to sell their shares. Paul Tuttobene and Janice Nicely, directors of Tayco, each own 1,000 shares and 72 shares, respectively, of Tayco.

Accounting Treatment

In accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles, Taylor will account for the merger using the purchase method of accounting. Under this method of accounting, Taylor will record the market value of its common stock issued in connection with the merger and the amount of direct transaction costs associated with the merger as the estimated purchase price of acquiring Tayco. Taylor will allocate the estimated purchase price to the net tangible and amortizable intangible assets acquired (including developed and core technology and patents, customer contracts and lists, and distribution agreements), intangible assets with indefinite lives and in-process research and development, based on their respective fair values at the date of the completion of the merger. Any excess of the estimated purchase price over those fair values will be accounted for as goodwill. See "THE MERGER -Accounting Treatment."

Appraisal Rights

Tayco shareholders who comply with the requirements of Section 623 of the New York Business Corporation Law will be entitled, if the merger is consummated, to seek an appraisal of their shares of common stock. See "RIGHTS OF DISSENTING SHAREHOLDERS" and APPENDIX D.

Taylor shareholders do not have rights of appraisal, otherwise known as "dissenters' rights."

TERMS OF THE MERGER AGREEMENT

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

The following summary describes the material provisions of the merger agreement. The provisions of the merger agreement are complicated and not easily summarized. This summary may not contain all of the information about the merger agreement that is important to you. The merger agreement is attached to and is incorporated by reference into this joint proxy statement/prospectus as APPENDIX A, and we encourage you to read it carefully in its entirety for a more complete understanding of the merger agreement.

Merger

The Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated November 30, 2007 by and between Taylor and Tayco contemplates a merger whereby Tayco will be merged with and into Taylor, with Taylor as the surviving corporation. Upon approval of the merger agreement and the filing of the certificate of merger with the New York Department of State, each Tayco shareholder will have the right to receive the merger consideration as described below under "-Merger Consideration."

Effective Time; Closing

The merger will become effective on the date a certificate of merger is filed with the New York Secretary of State, or at such other date and time as may be specified in the certificate. The merger agreement provides that the certificate of merger is to be filed as promptly as practicable after all the conditions to the closing of the merger are satisfied or waived, if permissible. Taylor and Tayco currently expect to consummate the merger in the first quarter of 2008.

Merger Consideration

The merger agreement provides that on the effective date and time of the merger, each share of Tayco common stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time will be converted into the right to receive one share of Taylor common stock. The number of shares of Taylor common stock to be received for each share of Tayco common stock being converted into Taylor stock is sometimes referred to in this joint prospectus/proxy statement as the "merger consideration."

Surrender of Shares; Stock Transfer Books

Prior to the effective time of the merger, Taylor will deposit with the Exchange Agent, certificates representing Taylor common stock to be issued pursuant to the merger agreement.

Promptly after the effective time of the merger, Taylor will send to each holder of Tayco common stock at the effective time of the merger a letter of transmittal and instructions for use in effecting the exchange of Tayco common stock for the merger consideration the holder is entitled to receive under the merger agreement. Upon surrender of the certificates or book-entry shares for cancellation along with the executed letter of transmittal and other documents, each Tayco shareholder (other than shareholders exercising dissenters' rights) will receive the merger consideration.

At any time following one year after the effective time of the merger, Taylor will have the right to require the Exchange Agent to return any shares of Taylor common stock that remain unclaimed. Any holder of Tayco common stock who has not exchanged his certificates representing such stock prior to that time may thereafter look only to Taylor, as a general creditor, to exchange his stock certificates or to pay amounts to which he is entitled pursuant to the merger agreement. Neither Taylor nor the Exchange Agent will be liable to any holder of Tayco common stock certificates for any merger consideration delivered to a public official pursuant to applicable abandoned property, escheat or similar laws.

Representations and Warranties

The merger agreement contains representations and warranties of Tayco and Taylor that are customary in merger transactions, including, but not limited to, representations and warranties concerning:

- the organization, good standing and corporate power and authority of the parties to carry on their respective businesses;
- the merger agreement will not conflict with or violate any applicable law or the certificates of incorporation or bylaws, or conflict with or result in a breach or default under any agreements;
- the due authorization, execution, delivery and enforceability of the merger agreement and related agreements;
- no violation of or default under any agreement, certificate of incorporation or by-laws, or any applicable law;

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

- the conduct of Tayco's business in the ordinary course and in the absence of material adverse changes;
- the filing by Tayco of all tax returns;

- environmental matters;

- no litigation, except in the ordinary course of business;
- good and marketable title to all assets;
- Tayco's intellectual property; and
- full disclosure by Tayco of all material facts related to its business, operations, condition, assets and liabilities.

Except as specifically provided for in the merger agreement, the representations and warranties of Taylor and Tayco will not survive beyond the effective time of the merger if it is consummated. If the merger agreement is terminated without consummation of the merger, and provided that the terminating party is not in material default of its obligations under the merger agreement, there will be no liability on the part of Taylor or Tayco to each other. Taylor and Tayco shall each bear their respective costs and expenses incurred in connection with the merger, including legal, accounting and other fees. If and when the merger is consummated, Taylor agrees to include on its balance sheet as a liability, the reasonable costs, expenses and fees incurred by Tayco in connection with the merger.

Conditions to the Merger

The respective obligations of the parties to consummate the merger are subject to the satisfaction or waiver of the following conditions specified in the merger agreement:

- the compliance with or satisfaction of all representations, warranties, covenants and conditions set forth in the merger agreement;
- no order, decree or injunction of a court or agency of competent jurisdiction has been filed or brought which enjoins or prohibits consummation of the merger;
- the merger agreement has been approved by the requisite vote of the shareholders of Taylor and Tayco;
- neither financial advisor shall have withdrawn its opinion, to the effect that the terms of the merger are fair to the shareholders of Taylor and Tayco from a financial point of view, prior to the Special Meeting;
- there are no material adverse changes in Tayco;
- Tayco shall have assigned all patents to Taylor and amended all patent royalty agreements with inventors; and
- all required documents shall have been provided by Tayco.

There can be no assurance that the conditions to consummation of the merger will be satisfied or waived.

Conduct of Business Prior to the Closing Date

Under the terms of the merger agreement, Tayco will conduct its business and engage in transactions only in the ordinary course and consistent with past practice or to the extent otherwise contemplated under the merger agreement, except with the prior written consent of Taylor. Tayco also will use its best efforts to:

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

- conduct its business diligently, and substantially in the manner conducted, and only in the ordinary course;
- experience no material adverse change;
- maintain present relationships with its customers, suppliers, consultants, employees and other persons with whom business relationships exist; and
- preserve all assets in customary repair and condition.

Tayco also agreed that, except as contemplated by the merger agreement or unless Taylor provides its express written consent, Tayco will not, among other things:

- pay any dividend or distribution with respect to its common stock; or
- issue any shares of its capital stock, or any options, warrants, or other rights to purchase capital stock; or
- redeem, purchase or otherwise acquire any of its capital stock; or
- amend its certificate of incorporation or bylaws; or

47

- increase the compensation of any of officers or employees or agree to pay any bonus, severance payment or other new benefit to such persons; or
- sell or transfer any intellectual property; or
- enter into any agreement which may have a material adverse effect on its business and operations; or
- make any capital expenditures in excess of $5,000 in the aggregate; or
- commit or omit to do any act, or engage in any activity or transaction, which reasonably could have a material adverse effect on its business or assets; or
- make any loan or advance to any Tayco shareholder, officer or director or other third party, except for reasonable advances for employee expenses or for consumer credit consistent with past practice; or
- deviate in any material way from the warranties and representations in the merger agreement.

Other Agreements

Taylor and Tayco have agreed to certain other actions that are customary in merger agreements. For example, Taylor and Tayco have agreed to cooperate with each other in preparing and filing, as soon as practical, all required regulatory documents and to use their best efforts in good faith to take all action necessary to permit completion of the merger. Tayco and Taylor have each provided the other, and their respective representatives, reasonable access to their respective proprietary information, including Tayco's patents and other intellectual property, as well as the books and records relating to its business. Such access has been conditioned upon the agreement that each company's respective proprietary information will be kept confidential by the other party. Taylor has agreed to continue the employ of Tayco's sole employee at a base salary equal to or greater than the base salary in effect prior to the merger. The employee currently participates in Taylor's 401(k) plan, and will be entitled to receive and participate in other benefit plans available to Taylor employees after consummation of the merger.

Waiver and Amendment

Prior to the completion of the merger, Taylor and Tayco may extend the time for performance of any obligations under the merger agreement, waive any inaccuracies in the representations and warranties contained in the merger agreement and waive compliance with any covenant, agreement or, to the extent permitted by law, any condition of the merger agreement. However, after the shareholders of Taylor and Tayco have adopted the merger agreement, no waiver can modify the amount or form of consideration to be provided to the shareholders or otherwise materially adversely affect the shareholders without the approval of the affected shareholders to the extent required by applicable law.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

The merger agreement may be amended or supplemented at any time by mutual agreement of Taylor and Tayco, provided that any such amendment or supplement after the shareholders have adopted the merger agreement is subject to the same condition in the last sentence of the preceding paragraph.

Termination

The merger agreement may be terminated at any time prior to the closing date:

- by mutual written consent of Taylor and Tayco;
- by either Taylor or Tayco, if the other of them has materially breached representations, warranties, covenants or other agreements as set forth in the merger agreement, such that the any condition precedent to either party's going forward would not be satisfied, or if such breach is incapable of being cured within 15 days after written notice;

48

- by either Taylor or Tayco, if its shareholders do not approve the merger agreement; or
- by either Taylor or Tayco if the merger is not completed by June 30, 2008, provided that the terminating party is not in material default of any of its obligations under the merger agreement.

In the event the merger agreement is terminated, the merger agreement shall become void and have no effect, except that:

- certain provisions regarding confidential information and payment of fees and expenses will survive and remain in full force and effect; and
- the breaching party shall not be relieved of liability or damages for any breach of the merger agreement that gives rise to such termination, including without limitation, failure to keep confidential certain proprietary information.

INFORMATION ABOUT TAYLOR

Taylor was incorporated in the State of New York on July 22, 1955 and is engaged in the design, development, manufacture and marketing of shock absorption, rate control, and energy storage devices for use in various types of machinery, equipment and structures. In addition to manufacturing and selling existing product lines, Taylor continues to develop new and advanced technology products.

INFORMATION ABOUT TAYCO

Description of Business

Tayco was incorporated in the State of New York on July 22, 1955, and is a patent holding company engaged in research, development and licensing to manufacture shock and vibration isolators, energy storage and shock absorption components for use on various types of vehicles, machinery and equipment. Tayco sells research and development engineering services to Taylor, and pursuant to the License Agreement has licensed Taylor to manufacture and sell certain of Tayco's patented products. The products sold are used in the defense, aerospace and commercial industries. See "Patents, Trademarks and Licenses" below.

Tayco continues to research and develop new and advanced technology products.

Principal Products

Tayco's primary products include a wide spectrum of components utilized for the absorption and/or attenuation of transient and/or steady state motion of mechanical elements. Specific components include shock absorbers, vibration dampers, seismic shock arresters, vehicle suspension Taylor and recoil absorbers. These components may utilize either hydraulic, elastomer, or electronic means to obtain their required output.

A correlative component of these products is the analysis and development of design specifications for various types of energy absorption Taylor. Tayco maintains an extensive computer database of shock pulses, combined with its own proprietary structural analysis computer codes. Tayco markets analytical services utilizing these assets.

Distribution

Tayco does not use sales representatives or distributors because the majority of its work is performed under contract with Taylor.

Competition

Tayco faces no significant competition due to the nature of its patented products and the subcontracting arrangement with Taylor.

Raw Materials and Supplies

No raw materials are used in Tayco's business, and supplies are readily available.

Patents, Trademarks and Licenses

Tayco holds approximately 18 patents expiring at different times until the year 2021. In fiscal 2007, royalty income from the patents accounted for 367% of Tayco's revenues.

Under the License Agreement, Tayco granted Taylor preferential rights to market in the United States and Canada all existing and future inventions and patents owned by Tayco. The term of the License Agreement is the life of the last-to-expire patent on which Taylor is paying royalties, the date of which is October 23, 2021. Taylor pays a 5% royalty to Tayco on sales of items sold and shipped. During fiscal 2007, Tayco recorded $91,740 in royalties revenue from Taylor. Under the License Agreement, payments of royalties are required to be made quarterly.

In addition, the License Agreement provides for Tayco to pay Taylor 10% of the gross royalties received from third parties who are permitted to make, use and sell machinery and equipment under patents not subject to the License Agreement. These royalties also apply to certain apparatus and equipment subject to the License Agreement which has been modified by Taylor, with the rights to the modification assigned to Tayco. No royalties were paid to Taylor in 2007.

Under Patent Agreements with Douglas P. Taylor, David A. Lee and three other inventors, Tayco pays $36,000 in royalties per year to Mr. Taylor, and $3,600 per year to each of the others, for so long as any of their respective patents assigned to Tayco remains in effect.

Dependence Upon Customers/Terms of Sale/Sales Backlog

Tayco's current business is almost totally dependent on Taylor. In fiscal 2007, 100% of sales were to Taylor in the form of both direct and subcontracted project engineering. Terms of sale are normally net 30 days, with purchase orders issued on a "cost plus" basis. Work is subcontracted from Taylor as needed, and consequently there is no backlog.

Government Contracts

Tayco has proposals pending with the federal government, but no assurances can be given that any contracts will be forthcoming.

Research and Development

Tayco engages in Research and Development ("R&D") in connection with the design of products that are sold by Taylor. See "Patents, Trademarks and Licenses" above. Tayco's income from R&D was $161,610 and $128,820 for fiscal years 2007 and 2006, respectively.

Government Regulation

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

Compliance with federal, state and local provisions which have been enacted or adopted regulating the discharge of materials into the environment have had no material effect on Tayco, and Tayco believes that it is in substantial compliance with such provisions.

Tayco is subject to the Occupational Safety and Health Act ("OSHA") and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, which establishes strict standards for the protection of employees, and imposes fines for violations of such standards. Tayco believes that it is in substantial compliance with OSHA provisions and does not anticipate any material corrective expenditures in the near future. There have been no significant costs or efforts in conjunction with compliance with environmental standards.

Employees

As of May 31, 2007, Tayco had one full time employee and no part time employees, and does not count executive officers as employees.

Description of Property

Pursuant to the Lease Agreement dated July 1, 2000 between Tayco and Taylor, Taylor leases approximately 800 square feet of office and research and development space located at 100 Taylor Drive, North Tonawanda, New York to Tayco at a base annual rental of $12,000. The rate of any rental increase may not exceed 10% annually and may be waived by both parties in writing. The lease will automatically renew on each anniversary of its commencement date unless either party gives three months' written notice to the other of termination. The lease provides that on April 1 of each year, management of both companies will review the lease to determine possible increases for expenses due to increased taxes, maintenance costs, or for additional space utilized by Tayco. For the twelve months ended May 31, 2007, Tayco paid Taylor rental payments totaling $12,000. The real property utilized by Tayco is in good condition, adequate for present operations and adequately covered by insurance.

As of <R>January 8, 2008, the approximate number of holders of record of common stock of Tayco was 318.</R> Even though a significant number of shares of Tayco's common stock are held in street name, Tayco does not believe that the total number of beneficial owners of its common stock exceeds 1,000.

Because Tayco has fewer than 500 shareholders of record and its total assets have been less than $10,000,000 on the last day of each of its three most recent fiscal years, Tayco terminated its reporting obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 on July 1, 2005.

Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

A summary of the period to period changes in the principal items included in the consolidated statements of income is shown below:

Comparison of the years ended		May 31, 2007 and 2006
		Increase / (Decrease)
	Royalties revenue	$	(5,000)
	Research & development revenue	$	33,000
	Research & development expense	$	1,000
	Selling, general and administrative expense	$	(94,000)
	Other income	$	(10,000)
	Equity in net income of affiliates	$	27,000
	Net income	$	122,000

For the year ended May 31, 2007 (All figures being discussed are for the year ended May 31, 2007 as compared to the year ended May 31, 2006.)

The Company's results of operations showed a 12% increase in net revenues with an increase in net income of 198%. The increase in revenue is attributable to research and development revenue recorded as a result of higher levels of billable engineering hours on projects for Taylor.

52

Selling, general and administrative expenses decreased by 37% to $159,000 primarily because of a reduction of personnel and related expenses.

Included in interest income for the year ended May 31, 2007, is interest of $13,000 earned from Devices for an unsecured promissory note payable to the Company. The outstanding balance on the promissory note at May 31, 2007 is $144,000. Interest, at 8% per year, is receivable monthly through June, 2008 when any unpaid principal is due to be received.

Equity in the net income of affiliates was $172,000. This compares to income of $144,000 for the prior year. This income is generated from the Company's investments in Taylor and Tayco Realty.

Net income was $173,000 or $0.19 per share. This is up from the prior year's level of $62,000 or $0.06 per share. This is a result of the aforementioned items.

The balance sheet as of May 31, 2007 is comparable to that of the prior year-end.

Management believes that the Company's internally generated cash will be sufficient to fund ongoing operations for the fiscal year ending May 31, 2008.

As of August 31, 2007, Taylor owed Tayco $106,000 for unpaid royalties from prior years. The indebtedness is unsecured and is evidenced by Taylor's Promissory Note bearing interest at 8% per annum and having a maturity date of June 1, 2008.

DESCRIPTION OF TAYLOR COMMON STOCK

Taylor's certificate of incorporation authorizes Taylor to issue up to 8,000,000 shares of common stock, of which, as of the date of this proxy statement/ prospectus, <R>3,156,061</R> shares are issued and outstanding; 264,853 shares are held in Taylor's treasury; 67,750 shares are reserved for issuance under the 2005 Taylor Devices, Inc. Stock Option Plan; no shares are reserved for issuance under the 2004 Taylor Devices, Inc. Employee Stock Purchase Plan; 25,000 shares are reserved under the 2001 Taylor Devices, Inc. Stock Option Plan; 1,000 shares are reserved under the 1998 Taylor Devices, Inc. Stock Option Plan; no shares are reserved under the 1994 Taylor Devices, Inc. Stock Option Plan, and 140,000 shares of common stock are reserved for issuance under the Plan.

Shares of Taylor common stock are entitled (a) to dividends when and as declared by the board of directors, subject to any rights of preferred stock of Taylor that may be hereafter issued; (b) to one vote per share on each matter properly submitted to shareholders for their vote; and (c) to participate ratably in the net assets of Taylor in the event of liquidation, subject to any prior rights of preferred stock of Taylor that may hereafter be issued. Taylor is currently restricted from issuing dividends under credit arrangements with its lender. Outstanding shares of Taylor common stock are fully paid and are not subject to further calls or assessments. Holders of Taylor common stock do not have preemptive rights.

The certificate of incorporation of Taylor authorizes the board of directors to issue up to 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock, $.05 par value, with such rights and privileges, including voting rights, as it may deem appropriate. Five thousand (5,000) preferred shares have been designated by the board of directors as "Series A Junior Participating Preferred Stock" ("Series A Stock") in connection with the issuance by Taylor of certain shareholder rights ("Rights"), as more particularly described in the Rights Agreement between Taylor and Regan & Associates, Inc., as Rights Agent, dated October 5, 1998, attached as Exhibit 4 to Taylor's Registration Statement on Form 8-A filed with the SEC on or about October 6, 1998 ("Rights Agreement"). The certificate of amendment to Taylor's certificate of incorporation designating the Series A Stock was filed by the New York Secretary of State on October 9, 1998 (the "Amendment").

In accordance with the Amendment and the Rights Agreement, Taylor declared a dividend of one Right for each outstanding share of Taylor's common stock, to shareholders of record at the close of business on October 19, 1998. Each Right entitles the registered holder to purchase from Taylor a unit consisting of one two thousandths (1/2000th) of a share of Series A Stock, at a purchase price of $5.00 per unit of 1/2000th of a share, subject to adjustment.

Initially, the Rights were attached to all Taylor common stock certificates representing shares then outstanding, and no separate Rights Certificates were or will be distributed. A distribution date will occur and the Rights will separate from the common stock upon the earliest of (1) 10 days following a public announcement that a person or group of affiliated or associated persons (an "Acquiring Person") has acquired, or obtained the right to acquire, beneficial ownership of 30% or more of the Taylor common stock then outstanding; (2) 10 business days following the commencement of a tender offer or exchange offer that would result in a person or group beneficially owning 24% or more of such outstanding shares of Taylor common stock (unless such tender offer or exchange offer is an offer for all outstanding shares of Taylor common stock which a majority of the unaffiliated directors who are not officers of Taylor determine to be fair to and otherwise in the best interests of Taylor and its shareholders); and (3) the date the board of directors declares a person to be an "Adverse Person," upon a determination by the board that such person, together with his affiliates or associates, is or has become the beneficial owner of 24% or more of the shares of Taylor common stock outstanding, and upon a determination by at least a majority of the continuing directors who are not officers of Taylor, after reasonable inquiry and investigation, that (a) such beneficial ownership by such person is intended to cause Taylor to repurchase the Taylor common stock beneficially owned by such person or to cause pressure on Taylor to take action or enter into a transaction or series of transactions intended to provide such person with short term financial gain under circumstances where such continuing directors determine that the best long term interests of Taylor and its shareholders would not be served by taking such action or entering into such transactions or series of transactions at that time; or (b) such beneficial ownership is causing or reasonably likely to cause a material adverse impact (including, but not limited to, impairment of relationships with customers, impairment of Taylor's ability to maintain its competitive position or impairment of Taylor's business reputation or ability to deal with governmental agencies) on the business or prospects of Taylor.

The power of the Taylor board of directors to issue preferred shares, such as Series A Stock, may enable the board of directors to prevent a change in control despite a shift in ownership of the Taylor common stock. In addition, the Taylor board's power to issue additional common stock may delay or deter a change in control by increasing the number of common stock needed to gain control.

In addition, under New York law, Taylor cannot enter into certain business combinations involving persons beneficially owning 20% or more of the shares of Taylor common stock, unless the board of directors has approved the business combination or the stock acquisition by which the person's interest reached 20% ("Stock Acquisition") prior to the date of the Stock Acquisition. This restriction applies for 5 years after the date of the Stock Acquisition. Thereafter Taylor may enter into a business combination with the interested person (a) if the combination is approved by vote of the holders of a majority of the Taylor common stock beneficially owned by disinterested shareholders or (b) if, as part of the business combination, the disinterested shareholders receive a price for their common stock equal to or greater than the price determined in accordance with a statutory formula intended to assure that the shareholder will receive an equitable price in the business combination. New York law also prevents Taylor from purchasing more than 10% of the shares of Taylor common stock for more than their market value unless the purchase is approved by the board of directors and by a majority vote of all outstanding common stock, unless the offer to purchase is extended to all shareholders, or unless the offer is for common stock the holder has held for more than two years. The restrictions described in this paragraph apply also to Tayco and Tayco common stock.

COMPARISON OF SHAREHOLDER RIGHTS

The rights of Taylor shareholders are governed by Taylor's certificate of incorporation and bylaws, each as amended, and the laws of the State of New York; and the rights of Tayco shareholders are governed by Tayco's certificate of incorporation and bylaws, each as amended, and the laws of the State of New York. After the merger, all Tayco shareholders will become shareholders of Taylor and their rights will be governed by Taylor' certificate of incorporation and bylaws, each as amended, and New York. While the rights and privileges of Tayco shareholders are comparable to those of the shareholders of Taylor, such as voting rights, there are differences. Below is a summary of material differences as of the date of this joint proxy statement/ prospectus between the rights of Taylor shareholders and the rights of Tayco shareholders. These differences arise from differences between the respective certificates of incorporation and bylaws of Taylor and Tayco.

The following is a summary only and does not purport to be a complete description of all differences. Shareholders should consult the respective certificates of incorporation and bylaws, as amended, restated, supplemented or otherwise modified, of Taylor and Tayco for a more complete understanding of these differences.

Taylor's nominating committee charter sets forth criteria for candidates for director, including those proposed by shareholders. If qualified, the nominating committee charter requires the committee to consider such candidates for appointment.

Pre-Merger:

- The bylaws provide for the written nomination of directors by shareholders pursuant to notice in writing not less than 30 days prior to the date of the meeting called for the election of directors; but if less than 40 days' notice of meeting was given by Tayco , then written notice from the shareholder must be presented not later than the close of business on the 10th day following the day Tayco's notice of meeting was mailed, or public disclosure was made, whichever first occurs.

RIGHTS OF DISSENTING SHAREHOLDERS

Section 623 of the New York Business Corporation Law provides that if the merger is consummated, Tayco shareholders who object to the merger and who follow the procedures will have the right to receive cash payment of the fair value of their shares. A copy of Section 623 of the Business Corporation Law is attached to this proxy statement as APPENDIX D.

THE PROCEDURES OF NEW YORK LAW MUST BE FOLLOWED PRECISELY; IF THEY ARE NOT, SHAREHOLDERS MAY LOSE THEIR RIGHT TO DISSENT. SHAREHOLDERS WISHING TO EXERCISE THEIR DISSENTERS' RIGHTS SHOULD CONSULT THEIR OWN LEGAL ADVISORS.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

Any Tayco shareholder who is entitled to vote on the merger will have the right to receive cash payment of the fair value of his shares and the other rights and benefits provided in Section 623 if such shareholder does not vote in favor of the merger and, before the vote of shareholders on the merger, files with Tayco written objection to the merger, including in that written objection a notice of election to dissent, his name and residence address, the number of shares as to which he dissents, and a demand for payment of the fair value of such shares if the merger is consummated.

A VOTE AGAINST THE MERGER WILL NOT SATISFY THE REQUIREMENT OF FILING A WRITTEN OBJECTION.

Failure to vote against the merger will not waive a shareholder's right to payment if the shareholder has filed a written objection and has not voted in favor of the merger. If a shareholder abstains from voting on the merger, this will not waive dissenter's rights so long as the appropriate written objection to the merger is properly and timely filed.

All notices of election to dissent should be sent to Janice M. Nicely, Secretary, Tayco Developments, Inc. at 100 Taylor Drive, P.O. Box 748, North Tonawanda, New York 14120-0748.

If an executed proxy is received but no direction is indicated as to how such proxy is to be voted, the shares represented by such proxy will be voted in favor of the merger. Accordingly, the submission of such an unmarked proxy, unless revoked prior to its being voted, will serve to waive dissenter's rights.

Within 10 days after the date the merger is approved by the shareholders, Tayco will give written notice of such approval by registered mail to each shareholder who filed written objection, except for any shareholder who voted in favor of the merger. A shareholder may not dissent as to fewer than all of his shares, held by him of record, that he owns beneficially. A nominee or fiduciary may not dissent on behalf of any beneficial owner of shares as to fewer than all of the shares of such owner held of record by such nominee or fiduciary.

Upon consummation of the merger, a dissenting shareholder will cease to have any rights of a shareholder, except the right to be paid the fair value of his dissenting shares. A shareholder's notice of election may be withdrawn at any time prior to his acceptance in writing of an offer to purchase his dissenting shares by Tayco, but in no case may such notice of election be withdrawn later than 60 days after the effective date (unless Tayco does not make a timely offer) without the consent of Tayco. Within one month after the filing of the notice of election to dissent, a dissenting shareholder must submit the certificates representing his dissenting shares to Tayco or its transfer agent, which shall note conspicuously on the certificates that such notice of election has been filed, and Tayco will then return the certificates to the shareholder. Any shareholder who fails to submit his certificates for the notation within forty-five days from the date of filing the notice of election to dissent will lose his dissenter's rights unless a court, for good cause shown, otherwise directs.

Within 15 days after the expiration of the period within which shareholders may file their notices of election to dissent, or within 15 days after the effective date, whichever is later (but in no case later than 90 days after the date of the Special Meeting), Tayco must make a written offer by registered mail to each shareholder who has filed the notice of election to pay for his dissenting shares at a specified price which Tayco considers to be the fair value and if the merger has been consummated, must accompany such offer by advance payment to each shareholder who has submitted his certificates representing his dissenting shares to Tayco of an amount equal to 80% of the amount of the offer. The offer must be made at the same price per share to all the dissenting shareholders. If within 30 days after the making of the offer Tayco and any dissenting shareholder agree on the price to be paid for his dissenting shares, the balance of payment therefore must be made within 60 days after the making of such offer, or the effective date, whichever is later, and upon the surrender of the certificates representing the shares.

If Tayco fails to make such offer within the 15-day period described above, or if it makes the offer and any dissenting shareholder fails to agree with Tayco within the period of 30 days thereafter upon the price to be paid for his shares, Tayco is required within 20 days after the expiration of whichever is the applicable of the two periods to institute a special proceeding in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of Erie, to determine the rights of dissenting shareholders and to fix the fair value of their dissenting shares. If Tayco fails to institute the proceeding within the 20-day period, any dissenting shareholder may institute the proceeding for the same purpose not later than 30 days after the expiration of the 20-day period. If the dissenting shareholder does not institute the proceeding within the 30-day period, his dissenter's rights are lost unless the court, for good cause shown, otherwise directs. During the proceeding, the court will determine whether each dissenting shareholder is entitled to receive payment for his shares and, if so, will fix the value of the shares as of the close of business on the day prior to the Special Meeting, taking into consideration the nature of the merger transaction giving rise to the shareholder's right to receive payment for his dissenting shares and other relevant factors. The court will also award interest on such amount to be paid from the effective date to the date of payment unless the court finds that the shareholder's refusal to accept an offer for payment was arbitrary, vexatious, or otherwise not in good faith, in which case Tayco's costs will be assessed against the shareholder. The court, in its discretion, may also apportion or assess any part of the dissenting shareholder's costs against Tayco if it finds that the fair value of the shares materially exceeds the amount which Tayco offered to pay, or that no offer or advance payment was made by Tayco, or that Tayco failed to institute such special proceeding, or that the action of Tayco is complying with its obligations under Section 623 was arbitrary, vexatious, or otherwise not in good faith.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

A dissenting shareholder will not be paid at any time when Tayco is insolvent or when payment would make it insolvent. The dissenting shareholder has the option, which must be exercised within 30 days after Tayco has given the dissenting shareholder written notice that payment for his shares cannot be made because Tayco is insolvent or such payment would make it insolvent, to file written notice with Tayco choosing (1) to withdraw his election or dissent or (2) to retain his status as a claimant of dissenter's rights. If the dissenting shareholder fails to exercise his option within such 30-day period, Tayco shall exercise such option as it chooses. If the dissenting shareholder chooses to remain a claimant of dissenter's rights, Tayco must pay him when it is no longer insolvent and will not be made insolvent by such payment, or if Tayco is liquidated, the dissenting shareholder's claim shall be subordinated to the rights of Tayco's creditors, but superior to the rights of non-dissenting shareholders.

The enforcement by a shareholder of his right to receive payment for his shares in accordance with Section 623 excludes the enforcement of such shareholder of any other right to which he might otherwise be entitled by virtue of his ownership of shares (unless he withdraws his notice of election as provided in Section 623 or the merger is abandoned), except that the shareholder will retain the right to bring or maintain an appropriate action to obtain relief on the grounds that the merger will be or is unlawful or fraudulent to him.

CERTAIN FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES

The merger has been structured to qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Internal Revenue Code"). The exchange of each share of Tayco common stock for 1 share of common stock of Taylor pursuant to the terms of the merger agreement will not be a taxable transaction for federal income tax purposes under the Internal Revenue Code. In contrast, any shareholders of Tayco who exercise their dissenters' appraisal rights and receive cash in exchange for their shares of Tayco common stock will recognize income for federal tax purposes and may recognize income under state, local and other tax laws. A shareholder of Tayco will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount of cash received by the shareholder pursuant to the merger and the tax basis in the Tayco common stock exchanged by such shareholder pursuant to the merger.

Gain or loss must be determined separately for each block of Tayco common stock (i.e., shares of Tayco common stock acquired by the shareholder at the same time and price) exchanged pursuant to the merger. Gain or loss recognized by the shareholder exchanging his or her Tayco common stock pursuant to the merger or pursuant to the exercise of dissenters' rights will be capital gain or loss if such Tayco common stock is a capital asset in the hands of the shareholder. If the Tayco common stock is a capital asset and has been held for more than twelve months, the gain or loss will be long-term.

The federal income tax discussion set forth above is based upon current law and is intended for general information only. Each Tayco shareholder is urged to consult his tax advisor concerning the specific tax consequences of the merger to such shareholder, including the applicability and effect of state, local or other tax laws and of any proposed changes in the Internal Revenue Code.

EXPENSES OF THE MERGER

All out-of-pocket costs and expenses incurred in connection with the merger (including, but not limited to, counsel fees) shall be paid by the party incurring such costs and expenses.

STOCK PRICES AND DIVIDEND INFORMATION

Recent Closing Prices

The following table sets forth the closing price per share of Taylor common stock and Tayco common stock as reported on the Nasdaq Small Cap Market and over the counter Pink Sheets, respectively, on (i) December 5, 2007, the last trading day preceding public announcement of the merger and (ii) January 8, 2008, the last trading day prior to the date of this joint proxy statement/prospectus. The equivalent Tayco per share price at each specified date represents the closing price of a share of Taylor common stock on the applicable date multiplied by one.

Closing Price on:	Tayco Common Stock	Taylor Common Stock	Equivalent Tayco Per Share Price
December 5, 2007	$4.75	$6.33	$6.33
January 8, 2008	$5.11	$6.29	$6.29

Because the market prices of Taylor common stock and Tayco common stock fluctuate, the market value of the shares of Taylor common stock that Tayco shareholders will receive in the merger may increase or decrease prior to the merger. Shareholders of Taylor and Tayco are urged to obtain current market quotations for Taylor common stock.

Dividend Policy

Since at least 1988, neither Taylor nor Tayco has declared or paid a cash or stock dividend on its common stock and neither company anticipates paying any cash dividends in the foreseeable future. Except as set forth below, Taylor is prohibited from issuing cash dividends under credit arrangements with its major lender. In addition, the merger agreement prohibits Tayco from declaring or paying dividends on its capital stock until the completion of the merger or the termination of the merger agreement.

OTHER MATTERS

The boards of directors of Taylor and Tayco are not aware of any business to come before the Special Meetings other than those matters described in this proxy statement. However, if any other matter should properly come before the Special Meeting, it is intended that holders of the proxies will act in accordance with their best judgment.

WHEREAS, the certificate of incorporation and by-laws of each of Taylor and Tayco permit, and the resolutions adopted by the boards of directors of each of Taylor and Tayco authorize, this Agreement and the consummation of the Merger;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and agreements contained herein, the parties agree that subject to the approval of the Taylor and Tayco shareholders (i) Tayco shall be merged with and into Taylor, (ii) Taylor shall be the Surviving Corporation, and (iii) the terms and conditions of the Merger and the means of carrying it into effect shall be as follows:

ARTICLE 1

TERMS AND PLAN OF MERGER

1.1 Merger and Effect of Merger. Upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in this Agreement, and in accordance with the BCL, at the Effective Time (as defined in Section 1.2(c) below), Tayco shall be merged into Taylor and the separate corporate existence of Tayco thereupon shall cease. Taylor shall be the Surviving Corporation in the Merger, and the separate corporate existence of Taylor, with all its rights, privileges, powers and franchises, shall continue unaffected and unimpaired by the Merger.

1.2 Method of Effecting Merger and Closing. The Merger shall be effected as follows:

(a) The boards of directors and shareholders of each of Taylor and Tayco shall have approved the Merger in accordance with the BCL and on the terms and conditions set forth herein.

(b) In accordance with the provisions of the BCL and the certificates of incorporation and by-laws of Tayco and Taylor, and subject to satisfaction (or waiver if permissible) of all other conditions requisite to the Merger (as defined in Articles 5 and 6 below) (the "Closing"), Tayco and Taylor shall execute a Certificate of Merger ("Certificate of Merger") in substantially the form of attached Exhibit 1.2(b).

(c) The Merger shall be effected by the filing of the Certificate of Merger with the New York Department of State on the day of the Closing, or as promptly thereafter as practicable (the "Closing Date") in accordance with the applicable provisions of the BCL. The Merger shall become effective upon the date and time of such filing, or at such later time and date as may be specified in the Certificate of Merger ("Effective Time").

1.3 Terms of Conversion; Exchange of Shares. At the Effective Time, by virtue of the Merger and without any action on the part of any holder thereof:

(a) Each share of Tayco Common Stock issued and outstanding (other than Dissenting Shares (as defined in Section 1.4 below), including each share of Tayco Common Stock owned by Taylor, shall be converted into one (1) share of Taylor Common Stock (the "Merger Consideration"). The separate corporate existence of Tayco shall cease.

(b) Each share of Taylor Common Stock issued and outstanding, except for all shares of Taylor Common Stock owned by Tayco, shall remain outstanding and shall represent shares of common stock of the Surviving Corporation.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

(d) Each share of Tayco Common Stock held by Tayco as treasury stock shall be cancelled, without conversion or payment of the Merger Consideration.

1.4 Dissenting Shares. Any Tayco Common Stock outstanding immediately prior to the Effective Time as to which the holder thereof shall have validly exercised any dissenter's appraisal rights available to such holder under Section 623 of the BCL ("Dissenting Shares") shall not, after the Effective Time, be entitled to vote for any purpose or be entitled to the payment of dividends or other distributions (except dividends or other distributions payable to shareholders of record prior to the Effective Time). No Dissenting Shares shall be converted into shares of the Surviving Corporation hereunder unless and until the holder thereof shall have failed to perfect, or shall have effectively withdrawn or lost, such holder's right to payment for such holder's Dissenting Shares as provided in Section 623 of the BCL. Each holder of Dissenting Shares who becomes entitled under the BCL to payment therefor shall receive such payment after the Effective Time from the Surviving Corporation (but only after the amount thereof shall have been agreed upon or finally determined pursuant to Section 623 of the BCL) and such Dissenting Shares shall thereupon be canceled.

A-2

1.5 Manner of Surrender of Stock. No later than five (5) business days after the Effective Time, an exchange agent to be appointed by Taylor (the "Exchange Agent") will make available to each record holder of Tayco Common Stock a letter of transmittal ("Letter of Transmittal") and instructions for the exchange of their certificates representing Tayco Common Stock for certificates representing shares of the Surviving Corporation. The Letter of Transmittal shall be in substantially the form of attached Exhibit 1.5.

1.6 Certificate of Incorporation, By-Laws, Directors and Officers of the Surviving Corporation.

(a) From and after the Effective Time, and until thereafter amended as provided by law, the certificates of incorporation and by-laws of Taylor as in effect immediately prior to the Effective Time shall be and continue to be the certificate of incorporation and by laws of the Surviving Corporation.

(b) The persons who are directors and officers of Taylor immediately prior to the Effective Time shall continue as directors and officers, respectively, of the Surviving Corporation and shall continue to hold office as provided in the by-laws of the Surviving Corporation. ARTICLE 2

ADDITIONAL COVENANTS AND UNDERTAKINGS

2.1 Approval of Shareholders. Each of Taylor and Tayco shall take all action necessary in accordance with the BCL and its certificate of incorporation and by-laws to obtain by special meeting of its shareholders all required approvals of the Merger.

2.2 Waiver; Amendment. Prior to the Closing, each of Taylor and Tayco may: (a) extend the time for performance of any obligations hereunder; (b) waive any inaccuracies of any representations or warranties hereunder; (c) waive compliance with any covenant, agreement or, to the extent permitted under applicable law, condition of the Merger; (d) amend or supplement this Agreement upon the mutual consent of the parties; provided, however, that in the event that either party seeks to take any such action that either (i) modifies the amount or form of consideration to be provided to the shareholders of Tayco, or (ii) results in a material adverse effect to shareholders of Tayco or Taylor, such action must be submitted to the affected shareholders for approval to the extent required by applicable law.

2.3 Further Assurances and Assistance. Each of the parties hereto shall use its reasonable best efforts to consummate and make effective as promptly as practicable the transactions contemplated hereby. Each of Taylor and Tayco agrees that it will execute and deliver to the other any and all reasonably acceptable documents, in addition to those expressly provided for herein, that may be necessary or appropriate to effectuate the provisions of this Agreement whether before, at, or after the Closing, and to cooperate with each other to any extent reasonably required in order to fully accomplish the transactions herein contemplated.

2.4 Employee, Patents and Royalties.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

(a) As of the Closing, the parties anticipate that Taylor shall offer to employ Tayco's sole employee in a comparable position at a base salary equal to or greater than the base salary in effect prior to the Closing. The employee participates in Taylor's 401(k) plan and will be entitled to receive and participate in other benefit plans and programs currently available to Taylor employees.

(b) As of the Closing, Tayco will assign its rights to all patents ("Patent Rights") to Taylor pursuant to the form of assignment set forth on the attached Exhibit 2.4(b); and Taylor will assume all of Tayco's obligations to pay royalties to Messrs. Douglas P. Taylor, Alan Klembczyk, John Metzger, Robert Antkowiak, David Lee and any other inventor to whom royalties may be owing (collectively, the "Inventors") for patents developed and assigned to Tayco, in accordance with patent royalty agreements between the Inventors and Tayco, copies of which have been delivered to Taylor.

2.5 Confidentiality. Taylor and Tayco each agree, as follows:

(a) Other than with the express consent of the other party to this Agreement, and solely for the purpose of exchanging information among designated affiliates to progress the Merger, neither Taylor nor Tayco will disclose each other's respective Proprietary Information to any third party. For purposes of this Agreement, "Proprietary Information" includes, without limitation, information constituting all patents (including the Patent Rights), developments and inventions, discoveries, concepts, and ideas (whether or not patentable or copyrightable) relating to the present or prospective activities of Taylor or Tayco, as well as its respective customer lists, devices, processes drawings, surveys, trade secrets, technical data methods, formulae software, written materials, techniques, improvements, trade secrets or other proprietary business or technical information, as may be provided to the other in connection with this Agreement, whether or not identified as "proprietary" or "confidential."

(b) Should this Agreement be terminated by a party which is in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement set forth in this Agreement, then, notwithstanding any other provisions of Article 8 of this Agreement, the non-terminating party shall be entitled to all appropriate legal remedies; and to appropriate equitable relief (without posting a bond), including a temporary restraining order and injunction, to restrain a breach of this Section 2.5.

2.6 Operation of Business of Tayco.

(a) Tayco shall, through the Closing, use its best efforts to (i) preserve its business organization and present relationships with customers, suppliers, consultants, employees and any other persons having business relations with it; and (ii) maintain all of its assets in customary repair and condition.

4.2 Authorization. The execution, delivery and performance of this Agreement and each document to be executed pursuant thereto, and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby, have been duly authorized and approved by the board of directors of Taylor (which authorization has not been modified or rescinded in any respect); and when executed and delivered, shall constitute the legal, valid and binding obligations of Taylor, enforceable against it in accordance with the terms thereof. No other corporate action is necessary for Taylor to enter into this Agreement and all other documents contemplated hereby and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby.

4.3 No Conflicts. The execution, delivery and performance by Taylor of this Agreement and all other documents contemplated hereby, the fulfillment of and the compliance with the respective terms and provisions hereof and thereof, do not and will not: (a) conflict with, or violate any provision of, any term or provision of its certificate of incorporation or by-laws, or (b) conflict with, or result in any breach of, or constitute a default under, any agreement to which it is a party or by which it is bound; or (c) result in or require the creation or imposition of or result in the acceleration of any indebtedness, or of any lien or encumbrance of any nature upon, or with respect to, Taylor or any of the assets now owned or hereafter acquired by Taylor.

Taylor is not in violation of or default under, nor has it breached, any term or provision of its certificate of incorporation or by-laws or any agreement or restriction to which it is a party or by which it or any of its assets is bound or affected, with such exceptions as individually or in the aggregate would not reasonably be expected to have a material adverse effect. Taylor has complied and is in full compliance, in all material respects, with all laws applicable to Taylor or to its assets, properties and business, including without limitation laws relating to foreign investment, foreign exchange control, immigration, employment and taxation, all relevant anti-boycott legislation, the Export Administration Act of 1979 and the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act of 1977. To Taylor's best knowledge, all issued and outstanding shares of capital stock of Taylor were issued (a) in compliance with or in transactions exempt from registration provisions of the Securities Act and (b) in compliance with or in transactions exempt from registration provisions of applicable state securities or "blue sky" laws.

4.6 Litigation. Other than as to litigation in the ordinary course of business, there are no actions, suits, claims, arbitrations, proceedings or investigations pending, or to the best knowledge of Taylor threatened, against or affecting or involving Taylor or its business or assets, or the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, at law or in equity, or before or by any court, arbitrator or governmental authority, domestic or foreign. Taylor is not operating under, subject to or in default with respect to any order, award, writ, injunction, decree or judgment of any court, arbitrator or governmental authority.

4.7 Restrictions and Covenants. Except as provided herein, there are no agreements, or laws or other restrictions of any kind to which Taylor is party or subject that would prevent or restrict the execution, delivery or performance of this Agreement or result in any penalty, forfeiture, agreement termination, or restriction on business operations of Taylor as a result of the execution, delivery or performance of this Agreement; provided, however, that any agreement which requires the consent or acquiescence of any person or entity not a party to this Agreement (including, but not limited to any governmental agency having jurisdiction over Taylor), will be obtained by the Closing Date.

4.8 SEC Filings: Financial Statements. Since August 17, 2007, Taylor has timely filed all reports, schedules, forms, statements and other documents required to be filed by it with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") pursuant to the reporting requirements of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 (the "Exchange Act") (all of the foregoing filed after August 17, 2007 and all exhibits included therein and financial statements and schedules thereto and documents incorporated by reference therein, being referred to herein as the "Taylor SEC Documents"). As of their respective dates, the Taylor SEC Documents (i) complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Exchange Act and the rules and regulations of the SEC promulgated thereunder applicable to the Taylor SEC Documents and (ii) did not, at the time they were filed with the SEC (or if amended, superseded or supplemented by a filing prior to the date hereof, on the date of that filing) contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary in order to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading. None of the statements made in any such Taylor SEC Documents which is required to be updated or amended under applicable law has not been so updated or amended. None of the statements made in any such Taylor SEC Document which was or has become inaccurate or misleading, and which would have a material adverse effect and is required to be disclosed, has not been so updated or amended. The financial statements of Taylor included in the Taylor SEC Documents have been prepared in accordance with GAAP, consistently applied, and the rules and regulations of the SEC during the periods involved (except as may be otherwise indicated in such financial statements or notes thereto, or in the case of unaudited interim statements, to the extent they do not include footnotes or are condensed or summary statements) and, fairly present, in all material respects the consolidated financial position of Taylor and its subsidiaries as of the dates thereof and the consolidated results of their operations and cash flows for the periods then ended.

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT TO OBLIGATIONS OF TAYLOR

The obligations of Taylor under this Agreement are subject to the fulfillment, at or prior to the Closing, of each of the following conditions, and failure to satisfy any such condition shall excuse and discharge all obligations of Taylor to carry out the provisions of this Agreement, provided, however, that Taylor may waive any such condition in its sole and absolute discretion.

6.1 Representations and Warranties. The representations and warranties made by Tayco in this Agreement and in any document provided by Tayco pursuant to this Agreement are, and as of the Closing Date shall be, true and correct in all material respects; and no representation or warranty is, or as of the Closing Date shall be, fraudulent or materially misleading.

6.6 Supplemental Disclosure. Tayco shall have delivered to Taylor at the Closing an officer's certificate that updates the representations and warranties included in Article 3 with such modifications and supplemental disclosure as would be necessary to cause the representations and warranties made by Tayco in this Agreement to be true and correct in all material respects as of the Closing Date.

6.7 Tayco shall have assigned all existing patents to Taylor and shall have amended and restated all patent royalty agreements with the Inventors.

6.8 Documents at Closing. All documents required to be provided by Tayco to Taylor prior to or at the Closing shall have been so provided.

7.1 Indemnification. Following consummation of the Merger, the Surviving Corporation shall indemnify and hold harmless any person who was a director or officer of Tayco at any time prior to the Closing for any acts or omissions occurring at or prior to the Closing to the same extent these such person would have had the right to be indemnified and held harmless by Tayco. This right shall continue in full force and effect for so long as it would (but for the Merger) otherwise survive and continue in full force and effect. In the event that this Agreement is terminated without consummation of the Merger, neither party will have any liability to the other.

ARTICLE 8

TERMINATION

8.1 Termination of Agreement. This Agreement may be terminated prior to the Closing as follows:

- (a) by mutual written consent of Taylor and Tayco; or
- (b) by either Taylor or Tayco if there has been a material breach or failure to perform by the other party of any of its representations, warranties, covenants or agreements set forth in this Agreement, such that (i) the conditions set forth in Article 5 or Article 6 would not be satisfied and that (ii) such breach is incapable of being cured or, if capable of being cured, shall not have been cured within fifteen (15) days following receipt by the non-breaching party of notice of such breach; or
- (c) by either Taylor or Tayco in the event that such party's shareholders do not approve this Agreement; or
- (d) at the election of either Taylor or Tayco on or after June 30, 2008, if the Closing shall not have occurred by the close of business on such date, provided that the terminating party is not in material default of any of its obligations hereunder.

8.2 Procedure Upon Termination. In the event of termination and abandonment by Taylor or Tayco, or both, pursuant to this Section 8.1, written notice thereof shall forthwith be given to the other party, and this Agreement shall terminate, and the Merger shall be abandoned, without further action by either Taylor or Tayco.

8.3 Effect of Termination. If this Agreement is validly terminated pursuant to 8.1(a),(c) or (d), then each of the parties shall be relieved of their duties and obligations arising under this Agreement after the date of such termination and such termination shall be without liability to Taylor and Tayco; provided, however, that the obligations of the parties set forth in Sections 2.5 and 9.1 hereof shall survive any such termination and shall be enforceable as provided herein; notwithstanding the preceding, however, nothing in this Section 8.3 shall relieve Taylor or Tayco of any liability for any material breach of this Agreement or failure to perform prior to the effective date of termination.

No single or partial exercise of any such right, power or privilege shall preclude the further exercise of such right, power or privilege, or the exercise of any other right, power or privilege. No waiver shall be valid against any party hereto unless made in writing and signed by the party against whom enforcement of such waiver is sought and then only to the extent expressly specified therein.

9.4 Severability. All schedules and exhibits attached to this Agreement, including but not limited to the officer's certificate described in Section 6.6 above are incorporated herein by reference and constitute a part of this Agreement.

9.8 Execution in Counterparts. To facilitate execution, this Agreement may be executed in as many counterparts as may be required. It shall not be necessary that the signatures of, or on behalf of, each party, or that the signatures of all persons required to bind any party, appear on each counterpart; but it shall be sufficient that the signature of, or on behalf of, each party, or that the signatures of the persons required to bind any party, appear on one or more of the counterparts. All counterparts shall collectively constitute a single Agreement. It shall not be necessary in making proof of this Agreement to produce or account for more than a number of counterparts containing the respective signatures of, or on behalf of, all of the parties hereto.

9.9 Definition of Materiality. "Materiality" with respect to any matter referenced in this Agreement shall mean that there is a substantial likelihood that a reasonable purchaser in a transaction similar in size and nature to the transactions contemplated by this Agreement would consider such matter significant in evaluating the transactions or in deciding to proceed with the transactions.

RE: Fairness Opinion Relative to the Exchange by Taylor Devices, Inc. ("TDI") of 987,928 Shares of Common Stock of TDI for the 987,928 issued and outstanding Shares of Common Stock of Taylor Developments, Inc. ("TAYCO").

Dear Board Members:

You have asked Empire Valuation Consultants, LLC ("Empire") to render our opinion to the Board of TDI as to whether the 1:1 exchange ratio (the "Exchange Ratio") being considered for the exchange by TDI of 987,928 shares of common stock of TDI for 987,928 shares of common stock of TAYCO in a proposed merger of the two companies is fair to TDI shareholders from a financial point of view. Based on a per share price of $6.111 for TDI (the "Stock Price") this values TAYCO at $6,036,240.

Due Diligence Review Process

In connection with our investigation and analysis, we researched and/or reviewed the materials and documents specifically outlined below:

- Received and analyzed TDI, TAYCO and Tayco Realty, Inc. ("T-Realty") internal financial statements and tax returns for the years ending May 31, 2003 through 2007;
- Reviewed available analyst reports for TDI;

¹ Determined based on weighted average rolling 10-day average for September 1, 2007 through September 25, 2007.

B-1

- Reviewed TDI's website, <http://www.taylordevices.com>;
- Reviewed TDI's SEC filings, including its 10-KSB filed August 17, 2007 for the fiscal year ending May 31, 2007;
- Reviewed trading data for share price, trading volume and pricing multiples of TDI's publicly traded common stock (Ticker: TAYD) with information available from Yahoo! Finance and the Bloomberg Network;
- Reviewed trading data for share price, trading volume and pricing multiples of TAYCO's publicly traded common stock (Ticker: TYCO) with information available from Yahoo! Finance and the Bloomberg Network;
- Reviewed databases and financial information sources, including Compustat and the Bloomberg Network for public companies similar, relevant and comparable to TDI;
- Received and analyzed T-Realty's real property tax assessment for 90 Taylor Drive and 100 Taylor Drive, both located in North Tonawanda, New York (the "Properties");
- A review of the property assessment methodology applied to the Properties based on information available from the City of North Tonawanda's website, <http://www.northtonawanda.org>, and a discussion with the City Treasurer's office of North Tonawanda;
- Reviewed financial projections for TDI's projected revenue and net income for 2008 without the effect of the Exchange Transaction;
- Held conference calls and discussions with TDI's management regarding the valuation of TDI, TAYCO and T-Realty, the net financial statement impact of Exchange Transaction on TDI, and the business outlook for TDI and its subsidiaries; and
- Considered such other information, financial studies, and analyses as we deemed relevant, and performed such analyses, studies, and investigations as we deemed appropriate.

Regarding the Proposed Transaction

Pre-merger the two companies had the following common ownership, cross ownership and other relationships. TDI and TAYCO have common shareholders with similar ownership in each company but not identical ownership in each company.

B-2

- TDI owns 23.1% of TAYCO's equity (228,317 shares).
- TAYCO owns 22.2% of TDI's equity (697,567 shares).

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

- TDI owns 58% of T-Realty.
- TAYCO owns 42% of T-Realty.
- TDI licenses intellectual property ("IP") from TAYCO and pays it royalties.
- There are inter-company accounts between TDI, TAYCO and T-Realty.
- TDI is an operating company and its common stock trade on the NASDAQ exchange under the symbol "TAYD".
- TAYCO is an investment holding company and its common stock trade in the Pink Sheets and OTC market under the symbol "TYCO".²
- T-Realty is a real estate holding company and its tenant is TDI.

In the proposed merger (the "Exchange Transaction") the common shareholders of TAYCO will exchange their shares in TAYCO for common shares in TDI based on the Exchange Ratio. The Exchange Transaction would have TDI issue 987,928 new shares in exchange for all outstanding TAYCO shares based on the exchange ratio. As a result of the proposed transaction TDI would acquire the following:

- 697,567 share of TDI. Based on the Stock Price TAYCO's holding of TDI is worth $4,262,134. Upon completion of the Exchange Transaction the acquired TDI shares would be placed into treasury resulting in a net increase of 290,361 shares of TDI common stock outstanding; from 3,145,905 shares to 3,436,266 shares.
- TAYCO's cash balance, approximately $775,000 as of August 31, 2007.
- TAYCO's 42% equity ownership of T-Realty. Based on T-Realty's most recent tax assessment as an indication of the market value of real property owned by T-Realty was approximately $991,935. T-Realty owns two properties: (1) 90 Taylor Drive, North Tonawanda, New York; and (2) 100 Taylor Drive, North Tonawanda, New York. HSBC is the holder of a mortgage from TDI, T-Realty and Niagara County Industrial Development Agency ("NCIDA") on 90 Taylor Drive. NCIDA is the issuer of the bond for the benefit of TDI. According to TDI's most recent SEC 10-KSB filing the principal balance remaining was $153,334. According to TDI management the approximate principal balance as of the writing of this Opinion was $80,000. The monthly payment to be paid by TDI toward this obligation is $2,222. Further, T-Realty had receivables in the amount of $896,838. Therefore, TAYCO's 42% pro rata share of equity ownership was $793,285 [($991,935 + $896,838) x 42%]. Upon completion of the Exchange Transaction, TDI would eliminate the Minority Stockholder's Interest liability of $520,504 (as of May 31, 2007) attributable to TAYCO's ownership interest in T-Realty.

² TAYCO stock is thinly traded and does not trade on a daily basis. Total volume since July 23, 2007 is 20,610 shares, of which 6,600 traded on August 2, 2007. Additionally, TAYCO has not submitted SEC filings since April 2005.

- The elimination of Payables - Due to Affiliate of $174,609 owed to TAYCO.
 - Synergistic benefits of merging with TAYCO resulting in expected increased earnings after consolidation of TAYCO and TDI based on reduced professional fees and the ownership of TAYCO patents.

TDI would assume TAYCO's liabilities which were considered insignificant. The aggregate value of what TDI would acquire was $6,005,028 ($4,262,134 + $775,000 + $793,285 + $174,609) plus the synergistic benefits of the Exchange Transaction between TDI and TAYCO on an ongoing basis.

Limiting Conditions

This letter is provided to the Board in connection with and for the purpose of its evaluation of the Exchange Transaction. This Opinion is not intended for, nor should it be relied upon, by any other interested party to the Exchange Transaction.

In connection with our analysis, we have relied upon and assumed, without independent verification, the accuracy and completeness of all financial or other information provided to us or publicly available. We have also relied on the assurance of TDI's management that there have been no material adverse changes in each company's financial conditions since the date of the last available financial statements.

We have not done an independent appraisal of any tangible or specific intangible assets of TDI, TAYCO and T-Realty. Hazardous substances, if present within the facilities of a business, can introduce an actual or potential liability that will adversely affect the marketability and value of the business or its underlying assets. In the development of our opinion of value, no consideration has been given to such liability or its impact on value unless otherwise indicated in the report.

Empire's Opinion is focused on the fairness of the Exchange Transaction to TDI's shareholders other than TAYCO. It is Empire's belief that the Exchange Transaction does not constitute a change of control of TDI. Our Opinion is necessarily based on business, economic, market, and other conditions, as they exist as of the date of this letter; any change in such conditions would require a re-evaluation of this Opinion. Our opinion is limited to the fairness of the Exchange Transaction to TDI's shareholders as of the date hereof, from a financial point of view.

B-4

Empire has authorized TDI to include, or refer to, this Opinion in any documents to be provided to TDI's common shareholders. In addition, TDI may provide this opinion to any state or federal government agency reviewing the proposed transaction. However, Empire reserves the right to review and approve the reference of Empire and its Opinion in any document that is provided to TDI's shareholders and any other third party.

Empire does not have a financial interest in TDI, TAYCO or T-Realty.

This Opinion does not take into consideration any tax consequences related to the Exchange Transaction.

Fairness Opinion

Based upon the foregoing, and in reliance thereon, it is our opinion, as financial advisors to TDI's Board, that the Exchange Ratio considered is fair to TDI's common shareholders from a financial point of view.

Respectfully submitted,

INTRODUCTION

Description of the Assignment

ValuQuest Business Appraisals ("ValuQuest") was retained by the Board of Directors of Developments to provide an Opinion regarding the fairness to the shareholders of a 1.0 to 1.0 exchange rate in an acquisition transaction with Taylor Devices, Inc. While the Transaction is targeted for after the current fiscal year ending May 31, 2007, our analysis and opinion is as of the current time with information available as of the current date and financial data as of the interim period ending February, 2007.

Description of the Transaction

It is our understanding that Taylor Devices, Inc. ("Devices") will acquire all of the outstanding common shares of Developments in a stock for stock merger transaction after the end of the current fiscal year. Each respective common shareholder of Developments will receive 1.0 ("Common Exchange Ratio") registered common shares of Devices for each common share of Developments. Upon the completion of the Transaction, all such common shares of Developments will be canceled. The Devices shares exchanged as part of the Transaction will be fully registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) under the Securities Act of 1933. Registered shares of Devices currently trade on the Nasdaq Capital Market under the trading symbol TAYD.

C-5

THE COMPANY

History and Nature of the Business

The Company was founded and incorporated in New York State on July 22, 1955 by the organizers of Taylor Devices, Inc., an affiliated company, to provide research and development and licensing to Devices. Having the research and development performed by a separate entity has provided Devices and Developments economic benefits in defense related contracts. At its peak, Developments had annual revenue of $624,000. Revenues have declined to $224,000 during the trailing twelve month (TTM) period ending February 28, 2007 and the Company currently has only one full-time employee. Developments was a publicly-traded company through fiscal 2004. At the beginning of fiscal 2005, the Company elected to go private. However, Developments shares have continued to trade and are quoted on PinkSheets.com.

Management and Personnel

Management of Developments is led by Douglas P. Taylor who has served as President of the Company since April of 1991. Mr. Taylor also serves as President of Devices. Mark McDonough serves as CFO for both the Company and Devices. The services of Mr. Taylor and Mr. McDonough to the Company are on a part-time basis as the limited nature of the Company does not require full-time commitment. Devices provides the Company with administrative functions in exchange for administrative fees. The Company has a full-time mechanical engineer that conducts research and development to advance the products and services offered by Devices. Employment has declined from three full-time employees at the beginning of fiscal 2005.

Capitalization and Ownership

The Company is incorporated as a C corp. in the State of New York and currently has 987,928 common shares outstanding. No other classes of stock exist. The Company is capitalized with 100% equity as, Developments has no interest-bearing debt currently outstanding. Based on the most recent data available from the Company, there are a minimum of 330 shareholders with no share holder currently holding a majority interest in the Company. Devices is a large single shareholder with 228,317 common shares held or a 23.1% interest held. Over 500,000 shares of Developments are held under the street name Cede & Co. We are not aware of any shareholder agreement or other similar agreement that restrict the transferability of the Company's common shares.

C-6

Tayco's shares are traded and quoted on PinkSheets.com. Based on historical trading information from Yahoo Finance and Marketwatch, closing prices for Developments have ranged from $3.35 per share to $4.30 per share and averaged $3.74 per share from May 23, 2006 through the closing price as of May 22, 2007. The May 22, 2007 close price was $3.50 per share. Volume for Developments shares is light, as average daily volume is 1,110 shares since May 23, 2006.

We have also considered historical closing prices for Devices to derive implied exchange ratios of Tayco to Devices. During the same time period, Devices' share price has ranged from $4.79 to $6.84 and averaged $5.58. Based on the closing prices on corresponding dates of Tayco and Devices from May 23, 2006 through May 22, 2007, the implied exchange ratio of one Tayco share to one Devices share has ranged from 0.56 to 0.85 and averaged 0.67. Assuming the proposed exchange ratio of 1.0, the suggested premium has ranged from 17% to 77% and averaged 50%. The ratio on the most recent corresponding closing prices for Tayco and Devices is 0.64 representing a premium of 56% for a current exchange ratio of one to one.

The OTC transactions of Tayco are arms length and may represent market value indicators of minority interests in Tayco. However, Tayco does not publicly release financial information or an annual report. Additionally, a share holder may have difficulties selling a block of shares in the Company without a substantial impact on price as trading volume has historically been limited. The transaction prices likely reflect an information cost and a liquidity cost based on these factors.

Services

Developments provides research and development and licensing to advance the products and operations of Devices. Revenue for the Company is generated from research and development fees charged to Devices and royalties on patents held. Services are at an hourly rate on an as-needed basis. There is currently no backlog. All royalty revenue is generated from Devices and is determined by the License Agreement (The Agreement) between Developments and Devices as of November 1, 1959. Royalty revenue is ultimately determined by sales of applicable products by Devices.

Devices is engaged in the design, development, manufacture and marketing of shock absorption, rate control and energy storage devices for use in various types of structures and machinery and equipment. Specific products of Devices are seismic dampers, Fluidshoks, crane and industrial buffers, self-adjusting shock absorbers, liquid die springs and vibration dampers. These products are very similar but are utilized in a broad array of applications by customers.

Seismic dampers are utilized to mitigate the effects of earthquakes on structures and represent a substantial portion of Devices overall revenues. Fluidshoks are small, compact shock absorbers that are used in defense, aerospace and commercial applications. Crane and industrial buffers are larger versions of Fluidshoks and are used in cranes, ships, container ships, railroad cars, truck docks, ladle and ingot cars, ore trolleys and car stops. Self-adjusting shock absorbers include versions of Fluidshoks and crane and industrial buffers and are primarily utilized in heavy industry. Liquid die springs are used in component parts of machinery and equipment used in the manufacture of tools and dies. Vibration dampers are used in aerospace and defense to control the response of electronics and optical systems subjected to air, ship or spacecraft vibration.

Tayco currently has 18 active patents covered under the Agreement with expiration dates ranging from June 8, 2007 to June 18, 2022. The number of active patents has declined significantly as 23 patents have expired in the past five years. Under the Agreement, Tayco is entitled to receive royalties of 5.0% of net sales (invoice price, less freight and trade discounts) of products that utilize patented technologies. Royalty payments to Tayco are required to be made on a quarterly basis.

C-8

The Agreement provides Devices with the first option to license or purchase patents developed and owned by Tayco. Upon waiver by Devices, Tayco can license its patents to non-related parties but must pay Devices 10% of royalties received from such non-related parties. Management indicates that no such waiver has occurred.

Property and Equipment and Intangible Assets

Tayco possesses nominal amounts of laboratory equipment, shop equipment and furniture and fixtures. All property and equipment is fully depreciated. Office space and laboratory facilities are leased from Devices. Total annual lease expenses were $12,000 in fiscal 2006 and 2005.

The Company holds a 42% ownership interest in Tayco Realty Corporation, a related real estate holding company. Tayco Realty owns land and a 38,000 square foot building at 90 Taylor Dr. in North Tonawanda and leases the property to Devices. Devices subleases the above mentioned office space and laboratory facilities to Developments.

Tayco currently holds 18 active patents relating to specific designs and manufacturing processes for dampers, shock absorbers and isolators. Related expenditures for legal fees and applications are capitalized and amortized over the estimated economic useful lives of the patents. The average economic useful life is approximately 15 years. The following shows when the remaining active patents are scheduled to expire:

C-9

Year	# of Patents Expiring
2007	3
2008	2
2009	1
2012	1
2013	2
2015	1
2016	3
2017	1
2018	2
2022	1

Tayco has not made capital expenditures for property and equipment during fiscal 2002 through the TTM period ending February 28, 2007. Investment in patent development has also been limited during the same time period. The last significant investment in patent occurred in 2002 as capitalized expenses totaled over $31,000.

Competitive Market Conditions

All of Tayco's revenue is generated from Devices and is directly affected by sales of products that contain licensed designs or technologies. The Company does not face any direct competition due the nature of its patented products and the subcontracting arrangement with Devices. However, Tayco's revenues are indirectly affected by the competition that Devices faces. Devices primarily operates in the construction, industrial, aerospace and defense industries. All of the domestic industries that Devices serves are mature, with foreign markets offering higher growth opportunities.

Goodrich Corporation is Devices primary competitor in the aerospace market, and is substantially larger and more diversified. Devices competes on price, warranty and product performance but cannot compete in volume due to limited financing and capacity. In the construction market, Devices competes against two primary manufacturers of seismic damping devices as well as numerous other firms which supply alternative seismic protection technologies.

Recent revenue growth for Devices has been driven by higher volumes of dampers to the construction industry. Management has cited that the overall level of global construction activity requiring seismic protection has increased from prior years, especially in Asian markets. Because of participation in the market for seismic dampers, it is not uncommon for the stock price of Devices to jump on reports of a major earthquake or seismic activity.

C-11

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The Company's balance sheets for the past five fiscal years ending May 31, 2002 through 2006 and the year-to-date (YTD) as of February 28, 2007 are presented in Schedule A. Income statements and common size income statements for a similar period with February 28, 2007 statements reflecting trailing-twelve-month (TTM) results are presented in Schedules B and C, respectively. Statements of cash flows are presented for fiscal years 2002 through 2006 in Schedule D. Financial statements for fiscal years 2002 through 2006 have been audited by Lumsden & McCormick, LLP while the YTD and TTM results were obtained from internally prepared statements.

Balance Sheets

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

Total assets for the Company are primarily comprised of cash and cash equivalents (cash), investments in affiliates, a note receivable from Devices and intangible assets. The asset base for the Company is substantial in relation to Company revenues. Total assets gradually increased at the end of each period from $3.2 million at the end of fiscal 2002 to $3.8 million at the end of 2007 YTD. The overall increase generally reflects increases in cash and investments in affiliates (on an equity basis).

Cash gradually increased from $56,000 at the end of fiscal 2002 to $106,000 at the end of fiscal 2004. The growth in cash accelerated the next several years as the cash balance totaled $693,000 at 2007 YTD. Cash increased largely with the reduction in the receivable from Devices. The receivable from Devices increased from $540,000 at the end of fiscal 2002 to $776,000 at the end of fiscal 2004 before dropping to $173,000 by 2007 YTD. The receivable from Devices currently carries an interest rate of 7.0% per year and any unpaid balance and interest is due at the beginning of July.

Investments in affiliates include Tayco's 42% ownership interest in Tayco Realty Corporation and 697,567 (22.2% interest) common shares in Devices. The investments in affiliates are accounted for under the equity method. The gradual increase during the period is due to higher cumulative equity in net income of the affiliates.

Intangible assets are comprised of patents developed by the Company. The book value of the patents has declined at the end of each period from $240,000 at the end of fiscal 2002 to $73,000 at 2007 YTD. The decline is due to patents expiring or being amortized and limited investment in developing new patents during the period of review.

Total liabilities have been modest throughout the period and have been comprised of accrued payroll, accrued income taxes and other accrued expenses. Total liabilities were a nominal $4,000 at 2007 YTD. Liabilities reflect normal period ending expense accruals. The Company has a lease with Devices for office and laboratory facilities that requires annual lease payments of $12,000. We are not aware of any other contingent or off balance sheet liabilities that place a meaningful claim on Company assets.

Total equity has increased gradually at the end of each period from $3.1 million at the end of fiscal 2002 to $3.8 million at 2007 YTD. The increase has been driven by increases in retained earnings. All of the growth in retained earnings since the end of fiscal 2002 reflects non-operating income (interest, equity in net income of affiliates and miscellaneous), as total operating income since the end of fiscal 2002 is modestly negative.

Statements of Income

Revenue for Tayco is comprised of royalties from Devices for the use of its patents and fees received from Devices for research and development services. Revenue dropped from $622,000 in fiscal 2002 to $526,000 in fiscal 2003 before rebounding to $624,000 in fiscal 2004. The fall-off in revenue continued the next two years to $226,000 for 2006. Revenue for 2007 TTM is essentially flat at $224,000. The general decline in annual revenue for the Company has been driven by the reduction in economic benefits to Devices for outsourcing R&D and licensing in government contracts combined with the costs of developing and protecting patents. Devices has increased in-house R&D and its reliance on proprietary data and trade secrets instead of patents to protect its competitive advantage. The temporary increase in fiscal 2004 reflects a spike in royalty revenue that year with several large shipments by Devices of products utilizing licensed technologies.

C-13

Operating income has generally trended with revenue during the period of review. Operating income decreased annually from $250,000 in fiscal 2002 to a loss of $121,000 in fiscal 2006. The operating loss narrowed in 2007 TTM to $43,000. In fiscal 2004, operating income declined from $115,000 to $33,000 despite the increase in revenue, as operating expense jumped by nearly $180,000. Higher R&D and SG&A expenses drove the increase on overall operating expenses. The declines in operating income in fiscals 2005 and 2006 were due to lower revenue as operating expenses declined at a slower rate. The lower deficit in 2007

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

TTM is due to lower operating expenses.

Other items primarily consist of interest income and the Company's equity in net income in Devices and Tayco Realty. Tayco's equity in net income from affiliates approximated $100,000 in fiscal years 2002 and 2003 before dropping to nearly $0 in fiscal 2004 as Devices reported a net loss. Equity in net income of affiliates increased the next three periods to $193,000 in 2007 TTM with results at Devices.

Net income declined annually from $257,000 in fiscal 2002 to $94,000 in fiscal 2004 with the decline in operating income. Net income improved to $114,000 in fiscal 2005 with the increase in equity in net income of affiliates. In fiscal 2006, net income dropped to $62,000 with the reported operating loss and then improved to $163,000 in 2007 TTM with a lower operating loss and higher equity in net income of affiliates. Each year since 2004, the overwhelming majority of net income has come from non-operating income.

VALUATION ANALYSIS

Valuation Approach

To develop an opinion with respect to the fairness of the proposed 1.0 for 1.0 share Exchange Ratio, we examine a range for the fair value for a common share of Tayco.

Fair value is generally defined as the cash or cash equivalent price agreed upon in an arm's-length transaction between knowledgeable, willing parties who are under no compulsion to act. Based on our understanding of New York State law, fair value is determined on a pro rata basis and no adjustment shall be considered for non-controlling interests in the transacted asset(s). When the transacted asset is a business entity, fair value under New York State law is determined based on the assumption that the transacted business will continue to operate as a going concern. Additionally, it is our understanding that a discount for lack of marketability may be taken into consideration.

There are three basic approaches to valuation: asset, income and market. The asset approach derives the value of a business solely from the value of business assets. The income approach states that the value of the business is directly related to the expected future earnings of the business. The market approach values the business directly from other similar businesses that have sold or trade on public markets.

Asset Approach

Under the asset approach, four methods of valuation may be considered: book value, net asset value, liquidation value and cost to create. These valuation methods focus on the net asset value of a company. These methods are more commonly used to value asset holding companies, smaller firms with unusual risks and at times capital intensive manufacturing firms. Tayco Developments is a holding company with cash and cash equivalents, investments in Tayco Realty and Devices and a note receivable from devices accounting for nearly all of its assets as of 2007 YTD. The Company's historical operating results and outlook suggest goodwill or intangible value limited to the value of Company patents. Based upon these factors, we utilize a net asset value approach to determine a fair value range for the Company.

C-19

Income Approach

The income approach entails present value analysis of anticipated monetary benefits. Under the income approach, three methods of valuation may be considered: capitalization of earnings, capitalization of excess earnings and discounted cash flow. These methods are frequently employed in valuing closely-held businesses. A capitalization method is more suitable when a company's future cash flows are expected to change at a stable rate. The discounted cash flow method is more suitable when a company's future performance may be expected to vary. Based on the Company's limited historical earnings and outlook for future earnings relative to its asset base, an income approach does not provide a meaningful indicator of fair value.

Market Approach

Under the market theory, two methods of valuation may be considered: guideline public company and guideline private transaction. Under the guideline public company method, a value of a business is determined based on market values of similar publicly traded companies. Under the guideline private transaction approach, value is determined based on prices at which similar private companies have been bought and sold. The limited historical profitability and prospects suggest the market approach would not provide a meaningful indicator of value. That stated, there is a limited market for minority shares of Developments which is at least relevant to our analysis.

Net Asset Value Method

Under the net asset value (NAV) method, the fair value of each asset and each liability is determined, then the total assets and liabilities are aggregated to indicate a total value of the Company. The fair value of equity is derived by subtracting the total fair value of liabilities from the total fair value of assets. The resulting value is inherently on a control level basis as control is required to extract liquidity out of corporate assets. The fair value calculations are based upon the Company's February 28, 2007 balance sheet. The stock price of Devices is based upon the closing price as of May 22, 2007. Any material change to the financial condition of the Company subsequent to the February 28, 2007 financial statements or the May 22, 2007 closing price for Devices could have a material impact on our opinion. The primary assets of the Company are cash (and cash equivalents), investment in Taylor Devices, Inc. (stock), investment in Tayco Realty, Inc., a receivable from Taylor Devices, Inc. and patents (intangible assets). The range for the net asset value calculation and related suggested range for the exchange rate is presented on Schedule E on the following page. Our discussion regarding the fair market value of specific assets follows.

Cash and cash equivalents are reflected on the balance sheet of their fair value of $693,136.

Investment in Taylor Devices consists of 697,567 of common shares. Of the shares held, $395,602 shares are not registered. Registered devices shares trade on Nasdaq Capital Market Exchange and the closing price as of May 22, 2007 was $5.46 per share. Based on the latest closing price the value of the Devices shares held is $3,808,716, before the consideration of marketability of the unregistered shares and the liquidity of the registered block.

However, an unregistered share of Devices does not possess the same marketability as a registered share as it can not be freely traded on the public markets. A holder of an unregistered share could only liquidate the shares in a private transaction. To account for the potential impairment for marketability, we apply a discount for lack of marketability of up to 15% for the block of unregistered shares for the lower end of the range for our calculations. A detailed discussion relating to marketability is presented later in the report.

The remaining 301,965 registered shares of Devices held represent a 9.6% block of Devices shares outstanding as of March 29, 2007. Creating liquidity for such a block of stock may prove challenging and create a blockage discount.

The concept of "blockage" applies to the liquidity of a block of stock in a publicly-traded company based upon the market's ability or inability to absorb the block without creating downward pressure on price. If there is a sudden increase in supply, a lower price may be required to stimulate demand to absorb the shares. Based upon the size of the block in relation to the market value, we find that a blockage discount of up to 10% is applicable for the block of Devices stock. A detailed discussion of our blockage discount is presented later in this report. At the lower end of our fair value range, we apply a blockage discount of 10% to the block of registered shares. At the upper end of our range, we do not apply a blockage discount.

Investment in Tayco Realty represents a 42.0% ownership interest. To determine the fair value of the investment, the fair value of Realty's equity is estimated. We utilize the net asset value method to determine the fair value of Realty's equity as it is a real estate holding company. The balance sheets of Realty from fiscal years 2004 through 2006 are presented in Appendix A and a fair value adjusted balance sheet as of February 28, 2007 is presented in Appendix B. The following outlines our adjustments to Realty's assets and liabilities.

Cash and prepaid expenses do not require adjustment as their respective book values approximate their fair values due to their short-term nature.

Receivables net include a receivable from Devices. The receivable bears interest at 7.0% per year. Due to the expectation that the receivable will be fully collectible and the receivable bearing a market rate, the book value of the receivable proxies its market value.

Land, Building & Building Improvements consists of a 38,000 square foot building located at 90 Taylor Dr. The historical cost of the land and building is $854,636 and the book value as of February 28, 2007 is $335,306. To proxy the fair value of the real property, we considered the tax assessed value for property tax purposes. Based on the latest property tax assessment by the City of North Tonawanda, the estimated fair value of the real property is $795,000 or an unrealized gain of $459,694 above the current book value. However, to realize the estimated gain on the real estate, it is assumed that Tayco Realty would incur a tax liability on the unrealized gain. Estimated taxes on the gain are $183,878 at a 40% tax rate. The net adjustment to the real property is $275,816 and the estimated realizable value is $611,122.

Accrued income taxes and other accrued expenses do not require adjustment due to their short-term nature.

Deducting the fair value of Tayco Realty's liabilities of $4,859 from the fair value of assets of $1,497,012 equals the estimated fair value of equity of $1,492,153. The estimated fair value of Tayco's 42.0% interest before consideration of a discount for lack of marketability is $626,704, is the upper end of our range for fair value.

C-23

However, there is not a readily available market for the Company's non-publicly traded 42% ownership interest in Tayco Realty. To attract potential buyers, the Company may have to offer a discount for lack of marketability to compensate for the additional risk. As discussed in our Discount for Lack of Marketability (DLOM) section, we estimate a potential discount at 40.0%. The estimated fair value of the Company's interest after a DLOM of 40% is $376,022 is the lower end of the range for fair value.

Patents - The Company currently has 18 active patents that are licensed to Devices. Average patent revenue for the past six fiscal periods (including 2007 TTM) was $172,765 per year. However, active patents are expiring on an ongoing basis with many expiring in the past three years and three more scheduled to expire in 2007. Developments is not generating significant new patents to replace those expiring. Average patent revenue for the past three fiscal periods has declined to $127,921. Direct expenses related to patents for the last fiscal year total approximately $12,000.

As one proxy for the fair value of the patents, we prepare a discounted cash flow analysis based upon potential patent income over the next ten fiscal years. At the end of that period, the Company would only have two active patents remaining and various expenses would offset any continuing income.

In our discounted cash flow analysis, ongoing royalties are projected forward based upon the 2007 TTM level of royalties and adjusted downward by the percentage of patents expiring in subsequent years. Additionally, the Company has historically experienced occasional spikes in patent royalties based upon a large project or series of projects in a single year. To reflect such a spike year, we incorporate one year in our model where royalty revenue will increase by $100,000 over the ongoing average year similar to the jump in royalties in fiscal 2004. Target income is calculated by subtracting the $12,000 in expenses associated with ongoing patent maintenance and a normalized 40% income tax rate. During the period in our discounted cash flow model, net cash flow from patents generally declines with the number of active patents from approximately $45,000 in fiscal 2008 to nominal levels in fiscal 2017 with a temporary spike to $101,000 in fiscal 2011.

Calculating the present value for the target income from patent royalties at discount rates ranging from 25% to 30% suggest a fair value for the patents in the range of $160,000 to $180,000 (see Appendix C).

All other assets and liabilities are disregarded as not material to the overall value calculation.

The suggested fair values for Developments range from $4,722,119 to $5,481,677 for the Company or $4.78 to $5.55 per share based upon the 987,928 shares of Tayco currently issued and outstanding (see Schedule E).

Marketability Discount and Blockage Discount - Investment in Devices

The existence of a ready market for a security is of definite value to the owner, or to a potential buyer, and a security which possesses such a ready market is worth more than another otherwise similar security which does not have such a market. The well-informed buyer of an interest in a closely-held company or unregistered shares in a publicly-traded company would obviously be aware that they would be buying securities with limited marketability.

A discount for lack of marketability captures the diminution in value attributable to a non-marketable security relative to its value on a fully marketable basis. Lack of ready marketability makes the interest considerably less attractive than it would be if it could be easily liquidated. This concept was recognized by the Internal Revenue Service in Revenue Ruling 77-287 when, in discussing the value of unregistered shares in public companies, it stated:

"The discount from the market price provides the main incentive for a potential buyer to acquire restricted securities."

Numerous studies have been published indicating the discount for lack of marketability of an interest in a closely held corporation. Most of the studies follow one of two lines of reasoning. One group of studies relates to restricted "letter" stocks. While other studies compare the prices of stock sales before and at a company's IPO.

The concept of "blockage" applies to the liquidity of a block of stock in a publicly-traded company based upon the stock market's ability or inability to absorb a sale of shares in relation to the total shares outstanding without creating significant downward pressure in price. The concept reflects the economic law of supply and demand. If there is a sudden increase supply, a lower price may be required to stimulate adequate demand to absorb the shares. A seller of a large block of shares may not be able to obtain the most recently quoted price.

Two key factors in considering a blockage discount is the size of the block and estimating the liquidity and depth of the market for the subject company's stock. Greater market liquidity and depth would lead to a lower blockage discount as the holding period and risk of incurring downward pricing pressure would be lower. Market liquidity for a publicly traded stock can be measured through daily trading volume and bid-ask spreads. Higher average or median daily trading volume relative to the overall size of the market suggests greater liquidity and a lower discount. Smaller, consistent bid-ask spreads also suggests higher liquidity and a lower discount. Information disclosure requirements of a significant shareholder may also significantly offset the liquidity of a block of stock.

In estimating a marketability discount for the 395,602 unregistered share block and a blockage discount for the 301,965 registered share block, we considered restricted stock studies.

Restricted Stock Studies

Restricted stock studies are commonly used to estimate a discount for lack of marketability. In terms of stock ownership, the concepts of marketability and liquidity are similar but differ in several aspects. Marketability is the capability and ease of transfer or salability of stock. Liquidity is the ability to convert the stock into cash without a significant decrease in price. Discounts for lack of marketability are typically applied to stocks that do not have a ready market such as closely-held companies and unregistered shares of publicly traded companies. Registered publicly traded stocks such as Devices have a ready market but may be subject to liquidity risk. It is logical to assume that a discount for a lack of marketability is a ceiling for an estimated blockage discount, all else being equal.

C-26

Numerous studies have been published indicating the discount for lack of marketability of an interest in a closely held corporation. One group of studies relates to restricted "letter" stocks. Letter stocks, which are restricted from trading on an exchange for a specified time period, are identical in every way but marketability to securities traded on recognized exchanges. When the price of a letter stock is compared to the price of the same corporation's unrestricted shares on the same date, the difference can be attributed to the lack of marketability of the restricted shares. Thus, transactions in restricted shares provide a useful guideline as to the diminution in value arising from lack of ready marketability.

We have reviewed the results of the SEC study, as well as various other studies or analyses, comparing the price of the unregistered shares of public companies relative to their freely traded price over various periods of time and present the summaries on the following page:

In order to fully understand the implications of the restricted stock studies, one must understand the laws which govern such transactions. Registration exemptions on restricted stocks are granted under Rule 144 of Section 4(2) of the 1933 Securities Act. Prior to April 29, 1997, the Rule 144 exemption was as follows:

"Rule 144 allows the limited resale of unregistered securities after a minimum holding period of two years. Resale is limited to the higher of 1% of outstanding stock or average weekly volume over a four-week period prior to the sale, during any three-month period. There is no quantity limitation after a three-year holding period." ¹⁷

Under the rule, a holder of restricted stock had to register his securities with the SEC or qualify for an exemption under Rule 144, to sell stock in the public market. This made trading letter stock time consuming and costly, which tended to increase discounts.

In 1990, the SEC adopted Rule 144A, which relaxed the SEC filing restrictions on private transactions. The change allowed institutional investors to trade unregistered securities among themselves without filing registration statements. This change created a limited market for restricted securities and thus reduced discounts. This is reflected in the reduced discounts observed in studies conducted after 1990.

On February 20, 1997, the SEC announced that effective April 29, 1997, the holding period requirements contained in Rule 144 would be amended to permit the resale of limited amounts of restricted securities by any person after a minimum one-year, rather than a minimum two-year, holding period. Also, the amendment permits unlimited re-sales of restricted securities held by non-affiliates of the issuer after a holding period of two years, rather than three years. This amendment greatly improved the marketability and liquidity of restricted shares. The last study cited is the only study conducted after this amendment, and it indicates an average discount of 13.0%, a significant decline from earlier studies.

Further implications can be drawn from the pre-1990 restricted stock studies. For example, when the SEC studies are analyzed, companies with the largest sales volume tend to receive the smallest discounts; and smaller sales volume companies receive larger discounts. In fact, of publicly traded companies with sales of $5.0 million or less, 55% received a discount greater than 30% with 18.6% of those companies receiving a discount greater than 50%. However, this may not be a size effect, but influence of liquidity of New York Stock Exchange (NYSE); the most liquid market at the time of the studies. Smaller closely held companies may be entitled to greater discounts.

The Management Planning, Inc. study includes 48 restricted stock transactions for the period January 1, 1980, through December 31, 1995, which had an average discount of 27.7%. Only companies with revenues greater than $3.0 million and profits in the year prior to the transaction date were included in the study. An analysis of the underlying transactions confirms that substantially all transactions are of stock in operating companies. The study found five factors that were reliable predictors of discounts. Those factors are revenues, earnings, market price per share, price stability and earnings stability. The study divides these factors into four quartiles and calculates the average and median discounts for each quartile. The first quartile (least risky) based on earnings stability of those companies in the study has an average discount of 16.4% and a median discount of 14.1%.

C-29

The FMV Restricted Stock Study includes 243 transactions in restricted stock from 1979 to 1992 with an overall average discount of 22.1% and a median discount of 20.1%. According to the study, the greatest factors bearing on the indicated discounts are size (revenue), risk, profitability and liquidity. The smaller and less profitable entities and those with a higher degree of balance sheet risk tend to have higher discounts on average. The sample data was divided into quintiles. The fourth quintile, which has total assets of $11.5 million, has an indicated average discount of 30.7%. Additionally, the top quintile of the sample arranged by profitability has a median discount of 11.0%. The FMV study concluded that "high risk, which is associated with smaller firm size and high market to book ratios, tends to result in higher discounts."

Bruce Johnson's study includes 72 restricted stock transactions from 1991 to 1995 with an average discount of 20.2%. Mr. Johnson has sorted the transactions into the categories of total sales, total net income, transaction size and net income margin. The top quartile in terms of sales volume has an average discount of 13.0%.

The studies of discounts for lack of marketability provide parameters of magnitude for the stock of closely held companies or unregistered shares of publicly traded companies with the suggested discounts declining, as the required holding period was shortened.

The unregistered shares of Devices are similar to the restricted stock in the studies as there is no established market in which to transact the shares. The risk for a longer holding period is greater for the unregistered shares of Devices as there is no specified expiration of a black-out date. The minority block held by Tayco does not have the ability to register unregistered shares. Additionally, Devices shares have demonstrated above market average risk, as reflected by Devices' volatility and beta. These factors tend to suggest higher discounts for lack of marketability. However, an important determinant in discounts is the amount of control in the subject securities. A lower amount of control typically leads to a greater discount. The restricted stock studies indicate marketability discounts for minority interests. Under the definition of fair value the impact of lack of control is not to be considered. The indicated discounts range from 13.8% to 45%. Considering the higher holding period risk, the high risk of Devices stock and the definition for fair value, we estimate a discount for lack of control in the range of the most-recent restricted stock studies or up to 15% for the block of unregistered shares of Devices.

C-30

The block of registered Devices stock differs from the restricted shares in the studies. One, the Devices shares are registered and not subject to a one-year blackout period under Rule 144. Based on the trading volume of Devices, it is unlikely that it would take up to one year to convert the block of Devices stock into cash. As demonstrated in the studies, holding period is a key determinant in overall discounts. These factors suggest that the blockage discount is less than the 13.0% median discount in the 1997-1998 Columbia Advisors study.

Trading Data of Devices Stock

We considered various trading statistics for Devices from January 3, 2005 through May 22, 2007 to gauge liquidity and risk. The average daily trading volume during this time period was 93,184 shares. The 301,965 share block represents approximately three average trading days. However, the average daily volume is highly impacted by large volume days as the median daily trading volume during this time period is 19,350. Or in other words, 50% of the trading days had volume less than or equal to 19,350 and 50% of the trading days had volume greater or equal to 19,350. The block represents approximately 16 median trading days. There were a total of 31 days in which the daily volume exceeded the block size. Of these 31 days, daily volume exceeded 1.5 times the block size 24 times. The highest daily trading volume registered at 6,167,400 on March 28, 2005 or nearly two times the 3,102,057 shares outstanding at the time. A large earthquake in Southeast Asia triggered the extremely high trading volume.

It would be unrealistic to estimate a time period to sell the block based on average or median trading volume days. This would assume that Tayco would be the sole seller in the market. To analyze a required holding period, we considered historical daily volume in excess of the median daily volume. During the historical review period there were 31 days in which daily volume exceeded the median daily volume by at least the block size or 301,965 shares. On average, these high volume days occurred every 28 calendar days. The range of days between these high volume days ranged from 0 to 264. During the 31 high volume days the average daily logarithmic return totaled 2.416%. Historically, large volume days have been led by buy-side volume. This factor would tend to lower a blockage discount.

Another risk in being forced to sell the block over a period of time is a decline of the per share price over the liquidation period. A stock whose trading price is more volatile than the market would have higher risk. We considered historical risk and return data for Devices. During the review period the average daily logarithmic return is -0.04%. The standard deviation of the average daily logarithmic returns for the entire review period is 4.15% or substantially in excess of average. Annualized volatility for Devices over the return period is 65.7%. For comparisons purposes, we considered volatility assumptions for companies in the S&P 500 for 2006 are considered. Companies disclose volatility assumptions for the expensing of options. The non-market weighted average of 428 S&P 500 companies that report an assumption is 29.9%. Additionally, Devices beta (as measured against the S&P 500) based on most recent data from S&P is 1.81. This is consistent with the differences in volatility.

The minimum negative price impact from selling any size block can be measured by observing bid ask spreads. A higher spread increases the impact on price from transacting a stock. Small company stocks typically have larger bid ask spreads due in part to lower volume, less competition between market makers and higher risk. A study by Ashok Abbott, MBA, Ph.D in the December 2006 BVUpdate, the average bid ask spread for the smallest 10% of stocks on the NYSE, NASDAQ and AMEX is nearly $0.14 compared to $0.032 for the largest 10% of stocks. An average bid ask spread of $0.14 for Devices is approximately 2.6% of the May 22, 2007 closing price of $5.46. Observed bid-ask spreads for Devices have ranged from less than 1.0% of the respective quoted price to over 3.0%.

Based upon the declining discounts suggested by the restricted stock studies, the trading volume of Devices shares relative to the block held, the volatility of Devices stock including upside volatility on many high-volume days and bid/ask spread information, we find that the blockage discount applicable to the registered shares of Devices stock held by Tayco Developments, Inc. would be no more than 10%.

Discount for Lack of Marketability - Investment in Realty

We have previously discussed the restricted studies in the Blockage Discount section. Due to the increase in liquidity of restricted stocks since 1990, it is our opinion that restricted stock studies conducted before that date provide a better proxy for marketability discounts for closely held companies with little chance of entering the public markets than the post-1990 restructured stock studies. This is due to the fact that interests in closely held companies are more like letter stock transactions occurring before the changes in SEC rule 144 beginning in 1990. Closely held companies have limited ability to raise capital in public markets due to their smaller size and the high transaction costs associated with public offerings. An interest in Tayco Realty is, in fact, typically less marketable than letter stock with the longer required holding periods. Further, Tayco Realty's stock is even less marketable than letter stock held prior to the changes in Rule 144, as the prospect of Tayco Realty stock being traded in the public market is remote at best.

The second group of studies has compared the prices of stock sales before and at a corporation's initial public offering. John D. Emory published the results of a series of studies on marketability discounts as demonstrated by initial public offerings of common stock. He related the public offering price to the prices of private transactions taking place within five months prior to the public offering. The results of his analyses are summarized below. (Emory, "The Value of Marketability as Illustrated In Initial Public Offerings of Common Stock," Business Valuation Review, Volume 20, Number 4 (December 2001)).

C-33

Period Study	# of Offerings	% Discount From Public Offering Price
		Average	Median
1980 - 1981	13	60%	66%
1985 - 1986	21	43%	43%
1987 - 1989	27	45%	45%
1989 - 1990	23	45%	40%
1990 - 1992	35	42%	40%
1992 - 1993	54	45%	44%
1994 - 1995	46	45%	45%
1995 - 1997	91	43%	42%
1997 - 2000	36	48%	44%
1997 - 2000 (expanded)	283	50%	52%

Emory indicated in his article that the companies studied were promising in nature and the securities had good potential for becoming readily marketable prior to their initial public offering. However, the Emory study is not conclusive in determining a marketability discount applicable to Tayco Realty. First, these studies reflect discounts on pre-IPO transaction prices. In the Emory study, of the 277 total transactions recorded, 210 involved the issuance of options. Pre-IPO buyers, especially those who receive options, are usually insiders such as corporate management. Thus, it is reasonable to assume that a part of the observed discount reflects compensation for these services and not just for a lack of marketability. The pre-IPO discounts observed in the pre-IPO studies may also include an inherent discount for the possible growth or failure of the business itself. An investor purchasing a share in a pre-IPO company has no assurance that the firm will be able to succeed. A portion of the observed discount may reflect the additional risk involved with the company succeeding. In our opinion, no study has succeeded in statistically segregating the true marketability discount from that of the overall discounts observed in the IPO studies.

The studies of discounts for lack of marketability provide these parameters of magnitude for the stock of closely-held companies:

- | | | |
|-----|--|--|
| (a) | SEC and other independent studies of restricted stock sales (prior to 1990). | 25% to 45% discount
(Clustered at 30% to 35%) |
| (b) | Emory studies of initial public offering prices. | 42% to 66% discount
(Clustered at 40% to 45%) |

C-34

While the above studies do not point to a specific discount for lack of marketability in the Company, it does show that discounts for lack of marketability for most minority interests tend to be in the range of 25% to 45%.

Additional Discount for Lack of Marketability Studies

One method of assessing the reasonableness of the discounts for lack of marketability is to investigate the sales of similar minority interests. The Partnership Spectrum, a newsletter published by Partnership Profiles, Inc., conducts an annual study of price-to-value discounts in the limited partnership secondary market. The limited partnerships trading in the secondary market are primarily tangible asset-heavy with a majority of them earning investment returns from real estate holdings. Therefore, many of the limited partnerships compare well to the operations of Tayco Realty. None of the 51 partnerships included in the 2006 study are publicly traded on any established exchange. However, all the partnerships are publicly registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Approximately eight independent firms create a market for the securities by acting as intermediaries between buyers and sellers. The price-to-value discount can be attributed to two factors: 1) the secondary market does not offer the liquidity of an established exchange, indeed, if only 3% of a partnership's total units are traded annually, the partnership is considered "actively traded," and 2) the "value" portion of the ratio reflects the value of the business as a whole, but the trading price reflects the value to a minority investor. Secondary market trading volume doubled from 1992 (the first year the study was conducted) through 1998 and has declined in recent years due to a number of partnership liquidations. The year 2006 study sample group of 51 partnerships is down from 79 partnerships in the 2004 study. From 1992 through 2006, the average price-to-value discount declined from 46% to 29%. While trading in the secondary market must still be considered very "thin," the decline in the price-to-value discount may be attributed to a perceived improvement in liquidity of partnership interests.

The 51 partnerships in the study were grouped into four categories. The average price-to-value discount was determined for each category. A summary of this information is provided on the following page:

C-35

Partnership Category	Number of Partnerships	Average Discount	Average Yield
Equity - Distributing (low or no debt)	6	20%	6.8%

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

Equity - Distributing (moderate-to-high debt)	7	28%	5.8%
Equity - Non-Distributing	26	37%	0%
Triple-Net Lease	12	17%	8.4%

In terms of assets and liabilities, Tayco Realty currently most-closely resembles the category of Equity - Non-distributing. The average discount in this category is 37%. A significant factor in determining the adjustment to net asset value is the cash distribution policy of Tayco Realty. From fiscal 2004 through 2007 YTD, Tayco Realty has not made cash distributions.

Estimated Impact of Control

The marketability studies all include minority interests in companies. The indicated discounts may include an element of lack of control. Under our fair value definition, discounts for lack of control are not to be considered. To estimate the impact of control, we considered data from Closed-End Funds (CEFs)

CEFs are mutual funds that raise capital through initial public offerings and use the capital generally to purchase publicly traded debt and/or equity securities. However, unlike other mutual funds, CEFs have a fixed number of shares, which are traded securities rather than interests that may be redeemed by the fund. Closed-end funds often trade at discounts from their underlying net asset values (NAV). The following factors are relevant in explaining why a closed-end fund may trade at a discount or a premium:

- Minority Holding- Shareholders may demand a discount from NAV because of the inability to control the investment decisions of a fund or its performance.
- Tax Liability- Many CEFs may have trapped capital gains since investments purchased previously may be worth substantially more today.
- Performance- A CEF that consistently under-performs the relevant indices may eventually trade at a discount. Similarly, a CEF that consistently outperforms the relevant indices may trade at a premium.

C-36

- Unique Opportunities- Some funds are influenced by the uniqueness or attractiveness of the underlying investments. The fund may trade at a premium if the CEF represents the only opportunity to invest in the underlying asset.
- Lack of Information- CEFs are generally lower profile and hence demand is lower. While many mutual funds advertise to attract investors and build volume, CEF advertising does not increase the asset base. Instead, CEF advertising erodes the asset base.
- News- Economic, social, or political developments may significantly alter the short-term outlook for the markets in which CEFs invest, and consequently share prices may be affected.
- General Market Sentiment- Overall market sentiment may have an influence in NAV discounts/premiums. Bullish markets may mitigate discounts, while bearish markets may magnify discounts. As of the valuation date, most major indices have increased over the past twelve months.
- Supply and Demand- Market forces of supply and demand can influence a fund. For example, introduction of new funds investing in the same markets/assets may influence the discount since the new funds will attract investors who otherwise might have invested in the original funds.
- CEFs that have secondary offerings and dividend/capital gain reinvestment programs at prices below the market prices introduce short-term volatility in the discount/premium as investors factor the developments into the price.
- Takeover- CEFs may be subject to takeover attempts with the intent to liquidate the fund and profit from the disappearance of the discount.
- Sharp Drop in NAV- When a CEF's NAV drops suddenly, the market price may lag the drop in NAV. In such cases, the CEF tends to trade at a premium as investors expect a market rebound and are reluctant to sell.

To estimate the impact of lack of control, we reviewed a series of CEFs involved in real-estate investments. We found 25 closed end funds investing primarily in the real estate industry as of the valuation date. The following table provides a summary for real estate equity, closed end funds, discounts and premium information as of May 18, 2007 reported in the Wall Street Journal. Appendix D provides detailed information on the selected CEFs.

C-37

Closed-End Fund Summary
May 18, 2007

	Premium/ (Discount) to NAV
Specialized Equity Funds: (Real Estate)
High	(12.9) %
Upper quartile	(7.7) %
Median	(3.3) %
Mean	(4.6) %
Lower quartile	(2.1) %
Low	5.8 %

The median of observed discounts is 3.3% while the upper quartile is 7.7%. Tayco Realty is substantially smaller and less diverse than the selected CEFs.

Selection of Discount for Lack of Marketability

The restricted stock studies suggest median discounts for lack of control ranging from 25% to 45% while data from Partnership Spectrum suggests a discount of 37%. Tayco Realty is smaller and less diverse than nearly all of the companies or partnerships involved in the marketability studies. Tayco Realty does not have a history of paying distributions to shareholders. Based on these factors and the estimated impact of control, we estimate the discount for lack of marketability at up to 40% for Tayco's investment in Tayco Realty.

CONCLUSION

Based on the most recent available information, the fair value per share for Tayco Developments is within the range of $4.78 to $5.55. The most recent closing price of Devices stock of $5.46 as of May 22, 2007 suggests an exchange ratio within the range of 0.88 to 1.02. The average closing price for Devices for the past year of $5.58 per share suggests an exchange ratio of 0.87 to 1.01. The Common Exchange Ratio for the Transaction is 1.0 and is within the range of fair exchange ratios. Therefore, it is our opinion that, as of the current date, the consideration to be received, pursuant to the Transaction, is fair from a financial point of view to the shareholders of Tayco Developments. Our opinion of fairness is contingent on the most-recent data available to us.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

Overall Economic Growth

Based on "Advanced" estimates by the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA), growth in real Gross Domestic Product (GDP) slowed to a seasonally-adjusted annual rate (SAAR) of 1.3% in the first quarter of 2007 compared to growth of 2.5% in the fourth quarter of 2006. The deceleration in real GDP was driven by the continuing decline in residential fixed investment (housing), a contraction in federal government spending, and an increase in net exports. Real GDP has increased 21 straight quarters or since the third quarter of 2001. Selected economic statistics for the previous four quarters are presented in the table below:

	2006-Q2	2006-Q3	2006-Q4	2007-Q1

Appendix E

Consumer Expenditures

Real consumer expenditures grew at an annualized rate of 3.8% in the first quarter of 2007 down modestly from a strong 4.2% increase in the fourth quarter of 2006. The slight slowdown was driven by a decline in growth in nondurable goods to 2.9% from 5.9% in the fourth quarter of 2006. Growth in consumer expenditures for durable goods increased 7.3% in the first quarter from 4.4% in the fourth quarter and growth in spending for services rose slightly. However, the increases in growth for durable goods and services were not enough to offset the slowdown in nondurable goods. Growth in consumer expenditures for motor vehicles and parts jumped to 11.0% in the first quarter of 2007 from a contraction of 5.1% in the last quarter of 2006.

The consumer remains the heart of the economy with consumer expenditures accounting for over 70% of total GDP. The growth in consumer expenditures has typically trended with increases in disposable income. In last three quarters, disposable personal income has increased with strong wage and investment income growth. Wage growth has been strong with the tightening of the labor market as well as strong year end bonuses. However, consumer spending continues to outpace disposable personal income. In fact, the personal savings rate has been negative the past eight quarters.

Housing

The housing market continued to struggle in the first quarter as investment declined by 17.0% after a decline of 19.8% in the last quarter of 2006. The decline in the first quarter shaved 1.0 percentage points from overall real GDP growth. Housing starts, as measured by the U.S. Census Bureau, averaged 1.474 million (SAAR) per month during the first quarter of 2007, down 5.5% from 1.559 million per month during the third quarter. Housing starts dropped sharply in January 2007 by 14.3% from December 2006 before increasing to 1.5 million in February 2007. Starts were mostly flat in March. Housing starts ended March 2007 at 1.518 million or 23.0% lower than March 2006. Although, residential investment only accounts for approximately 4.5% of total real GDP, the construction of and purchase of new homes often lead to expenditures of consumer durables (appliances and furnishings).

Based on National Association of Home Builders' statistics, year-over-year median existing home prices fell by 3.5% in January 2007 and 0.9% in each of February and March. Existing homes sales averaged nearly 6.41 million units (SAAR) for the first quarter of 2007 up by 2.5% from the 6.26 million monthly average in the fourth quarter. However, existing home sales dropped 8.4% in March to 6.12 million from 6.68 million in February. The inventory of existing homes for sale remained large at 7.3 months of supply at the end of March 2007. The ending annual inventory averaged 4.5 months of supply from 2002 through 2005. The large overhang of supply could continue to limit increases in existing home prices going forward.

Appendix E

Business Fixed Investment

Business fixed investment increased by a modest 2.0% in the first quarter up from a decline of 3.1% in the fourth quarter. Growth in investment for structures accelerated to 2.2% from 0.8% and investment in equipment and software increased 1.9% compared to a decline of 4.8% in the fourth quarter. Within equipment and software, investment in IT equipment and software increased at a SAAR of 15.8% in the first quarter of 2007 compared to a decline of 1.8% in the fourth quarter. IT and software investment could have been temporarily paused by the release of Microsoft Vista during the fourth quarter of 2006. The decline in investment in industrial, transportation and other equipment widened to 10.4% in the first quarter from 7.7% in the fourth quarter.

The longer-term historical trend in business investment has been strong as investment has increased in 15 of the past 16 quarters. In eleven of the last sixteen quarters, business fixed investment has increased at a rate greater than 5.0%. The growth in business fixed investment has been partially driven by higher capacity utilization and higher corporate profits. Businesses have also continued investment to maintain productivity growth with capacity a second factor. Future business investment will be heavily impacted on the outlook of consumer expenditures. The slower level of business fixed investment is especially puzzling in light of a relatively high capacity utilization rate.

Exports and Imports

Exports declined by 1.2% in the first quarter reversing growth of 10.6% in the fourth quarter. Imports increased by 2.3% in the first quarter, in contrast with a decline of 2.6% in the fourth quarter. The combination of import growth and the decline in exports shaved 0.51 percentage points off overall GDP growth.

Government Spending

Growth in federal and state government consumption expenditures and gross investment decelerated to 0.9% in the first quarter from 3.4% in the fourth quarter. The deceleration was driven by a 6.6% decrease in defense spending. Growth in state and local government spending actually increased to 3.3% in the first quarter from 2.7%.

Industrial Production and Capacity Utilization

According to the Federal Reserve, industrial production increased at a SAAR of 1.4% in the first quarter compared to a decline of 1.5% in the fourth quarter. The recovery was driven by consumer goods including home electronics, clothing and energy. Production in automotive products declined a modest 0.4% in the first quarter compared to a decline of 3.4% in the fourth quarter. Production for business equipment declined 0.5% compared to growth of 5.0% in the fourth quarter. The decline was driven by a contraction in industrial equipment.

C-45

Appendix E

Total industry capacity utilization remained mostly flat at 81.4% in the first quarter compared to 81.5% in the fourth quarter. Capacity utilization increased each year from 74.8% in 2002 to 81.7% in 2006 and has been at least 80.0% or greater for the past eight quarters. From 1972 through 2006, capacity utilization averaged 81.0%. The higher level of capacity utilization combined with continued strong corporate profits suggest stronger capital spending assuming consumer spending remains strong. However, higher capacity utilization may also be indicative of future price increases.

Inflation

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), consumer prices measured by the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers (CPI) increased by an annual rate of 4.7% in the first quarter of 2007 after increasing 0.8% in the fourth quarter. The fluctuations in CPI growth continue to be heavily influenced by petroleum-based energy prices. The energy index jumped 22.9% in the first quarter after declining substantially in each of the prior two quarters. Core inflation (all items less food and energy) accelerated to 2.3% in the first quarter compared to 1.6% in the fourth quarter. Continued increases in the core inflation rate could lead the Fed to further interest rate increases.

Based on data from the Energy Information Administration, the spot price for a barrel of West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude oil averaged $58.13 during the first quarter compared to $60.06 during the fourth quarter. However, the spot price ended the first quarter $65.88, or 13.3% above the average. Comparatively, the spot price was $61.06 at the end of the fourth quarter or 1.7% above the quarterly average. Oil prices trended upwards in February and March of 2007 partly with increased political tensions in Iran.

The monthly average retail price per gallon of regular gasoline remained nearly flat at $2.25 in January and February of 2007 before jumping to $2.51 in March. In the fourth quarter of 2006, the monthly average price per gallon ranged from $2.22 to $2.31. The U.S. and worldwide economy has continued to show remarkable resiliency by absorbing the impact of higher energy prices. However, the higher oil prices have most likely contributed to negative savings among U.S. consumers. The ability for consumers to absorb further price increases while maintaining strong consumer expenditure growth may be limited, especially in light of the negative savings rate.

Unemployment

Based on BLS statistics, the unemployment rate remained flat at 4.5% in the first quarter from fourth quarter. The unemployment rate has trended downwards the past three years, as the unemployment rate was nearly 6.0% at the beginning of 2004. Job creation increased in the first quarter of 2007, as an average of 152,000 non-farm jobs added per month compared to an average of 136,000 non-farm jobs added per month in the fourth quarter. For all of 2006, the economy created an estimated 1.8 million additional non-farm jobs or an average of 150,000 per month. Continued acceleration in job creation and wage increases could fuel higher inflation and ultimately higher interest rates.

C-46

Appendix E

Interest Rates

The prime rate remained unchanged in the first quarter at 8.25% as the Federal Reserve left the Federal Funds rate unchanged. The pause by the Fed since June 2006 was due to concerns about an overall economic slowdown combined with concerns of accelerating inflation. The Fed had previously increased interest rates by 0.25% on seventeen occasions from June 30, 2004 to June of 2006. The average yield on ten-year constant maturity Treasuries increased modestly to 4.7% in the first quarter from 4.6% in the fourth quarter. The yield curve remained inverted during the first quarter, as the average yield on 90-day treasuries was 5.1%

Stock Prices

In the trailing twelve months, the Dow Jones Industrial Average increased 11.2% while the S&P 500 increased 9.7%. Gains on smaller stocks were weaker as the Russell 2000 increased 4.6% and the S&P 400 Mid Cap increased 7.1%. The trend of smaller stocks outperforming larger stocks reversed the past twelve months. A summary of several market indexes is shown below:

INDEX	MARCH 31, 2007	MARCH 31, 2006	% CHANGE
Dow Jones Industrial Average	12,354.35	11,109.32	11.2%
Standard & Poor's 500	1,420.86	1,294.87	9.7%
NASDAQ Composite	2,421.64	2,339.79	3.5%
Russell 2000	800.71	765.14	4.6%
Value Line Index - Geometric	471.55	446.86	5.5%
Standard & Poor's 400 Mid Cap	848.47	792.12	7.1%

Corporate profits after taxes grew by 19.4% in 2006 after a 32.6% increase in 2005. S&P is projecting corporate profit growth to slow to 5.2% in 2007. Based on the earnings growth projections, stock market gains may decelerate in 2007.

Economic Trends

Economic growth has been dragged down by the deflating housing bubble as an average of 1.0 percentage points have been shaved from real GDP growth per quarter from the decline in residential investment. Consumer spending growth has remained solid. Confidence has been strong with a healthy labor market. However, personal outlays have generally increased at quicker pace than disposable personal income. As a result, the personal savings rate, as a percentage of disposable personal income, has been negative the past eight quarters. The overall growth in the economy will continue to be heavily dependent on the consumer. A drop in consumer spending will increase the probability of a recession. The key threats to consumers are oil prices and the housing markets. Consumer spending growth can also decrease if Americans decide to save more. However, as David Wyss of S&P puts it, "...the risk that Americans will save anything seems remote."

C-47

Growth in business fixed investment has fluctuated during the period. The decline in the fourth quarter may have been partially due to the release of Vista. Investment in industrial, transportation and other equipment has remained weak the past three quarters as businesses may have been cautious about spending due to the uncertainty about future economic growth. On only three occasions has an economic expansion lasted longer than the current expansion (1960's, 1980's and 1990's). Several factors point to stronger business fixed investment going forward including, higher capacity utilization, near historically high corporate profits and strong corporate balance sheets. However, business fixed investment could be negatively impacted if consumer spending slows or interest rates increase significantly.

A return to higher oil prices combined with the continued contraction in the housing market has the potential to cause an economic slowdown and increase the probability of a recession. OPEC could significantly cut production to bolster lower oil prices and political unrest in the Middle East, Nigeria and Venezuela continue to pose a substantial threat to oil supplies. The Federal deficit will be a continuing drain on capital. It also may limit potential funding alternatives to deal with the long-term cost of Medicare or Social Security. The trade deficit will continue to put downward pressure on the U.S. dollar (a currency on which many other currencies are based and which oil is denominated in). A lower dollar would provide an improving trade balance but also additional fuel for inflation by increasing the price of imports and giving domestic suppliers more flexibility to raise prices. If inflation creeps up, the Fed may continue its tightening of the money supply and, thus, result in higher interest rates.

Economic indicators were moderately strong the past four quarters. The economy continued to expand despite the sharp contraction in residential investment and a decline in business fixed investment growth. Economic growth was largely sustained with strong consumer spending at the expense of personal savings.

Economic Outlook

Standard and Poor's provides economic forecasts in its monthly publication, Trends and Projections. Key forecasted indicators for the next four quarters are listed below.

SECTION 623 OF THE NEW YORK BUSINESS CORPORATION LAW

§ 623. Procedure to enforce shareholder's right to receive payment for shares.

(a) A shareholder intending to enforce his right under a section of this chapter to receive payment for his shares if the proposed corporate action referred to therein is taken shall file with the corporation, before the meeting of shareholders at which the action is submitted to a vote, or at such meeting but before the vote, written objection to the action. The objection shall include a notice of his election to dissent, his name and residence address, the number and classes of shares as to which he dissents and a demand for payment of the fair value of his shares if the action is taken. Such objection is not required from any shareholder to whom the corporation did not give notice of such meeting in accordance with this chapter or where the proposed action is authorized by written consent of shareholders without a meeting.

(b) Within ten days after the shareholders' authorization date, which term as used in this section means the date on which the shareholders' vote authorizing such action was taken, or the date on which such consent without a meeting was obtained from the requisite shareholders, the corporation shall give written notice of such authorization or consent by registered mail to each shareholder who filed written objection or from whom written objection was not required, excepting any shareholder who voted for or consented in writing to the proposed action and who thereby is deemed to have elected not to enforce his right to receive payment for his shares.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

(c) Within twenty days after the giving of notice to him, any shareholder from whom written objection was not required and who elects to dissent shall file with the corporation a written notice of such election, stating his name and residence address, the number and classes of shares as to which he dissents and a demand for payment of the fair value of his shares. Any shareholder who elects to dissent from a merger under section 905 (Merger of subsidiary corporation) or paragraph (c) of section 907 (Merger or consolidation of domestic and foreign corporations) or from a share exchange under paragraph (g) of section 913 (Share exchanges) shall file a written notice of such election to dissent within twenty days after the giving to him of a copy of the plan of merger or exchange or an outline of the material features thereof under section 905 or 913.

(d) A shareholder may not dissent as to less than all of the shares, as to which he has a right to dissent, held by him of record, that he owns beneficially. A nominee or fiduciary may not dissent on behalf of any beneficial owner as to less than all of the shares of such owner, as to which such nominee or fiduciary has a right to dissent, held of record by such nominee or fiduciary.

(e) Upon consummation of the corporate action, the shareholder shall cease to have any of the rights of a shareholder except the right to be paid the fair value of his shares and any other rights under this section. A notice of election may be withdrawn by the shareholder at any time prior to his acceptance in writing of an offer made by the corporation, as provided in paragraph (g), but in no case later than sixty days from the date of consummation of the corporate action except that if the corporation fails to make a timely offer, as provided in paragraph (g), the time for withdrawing a notice of election shall be extended until sixty days from the date an offer is made. Upon expiration of such time, withdrawal of a notice of election shall require the written consent of the corporation. In order to be effective, withdrawal of a notice of election must be accompanied by the return to the corporation of any advance payment made to the shareholder as provided in paragraph (g). If a notice of election is withdrawn, or the corporate action is rescinded, or a court shall determine that the shareholder is not entitled to receive payment for his shares, or the shareholder shall otherwise lose his dissenters' rights, he shall not have the right to receive payment for his shares and he shall be reinstated to all his rights as a shareholder as of the consummation of the corporate action, including any intervening preemptive rights and the right to payment of any intervening dividend or other distribution or, if any such rights have expired or any such dividend or distribution other than in cash has been completed, in lieu thereof, at the election of the corporation, the fair value thereof in cash as determined by the board as of the time of such expiration or completion, but without prejudice otherwise to any corporate proceedings that may have been taken in the interim.

(f) At the time of filing the notice of election to dissent or within one month thereafter the shareholder of shares represented by certificates shall submit the certificates representing his shares to the corporation, or to its transfer agent, which shall forthwith note conspicuously thereon that a notice of election has been filed and shall return the certificates to the shareholder or other person who submitted them on his behalf. Any shareholder of shares represented by certificates who fails to submit his certificates for such notation as herein specified shall, at the option of the corporation exercised by written notice to him within forty-five days from the date of filing of such notice of election to dissent, lose his dissenter's rights unless a court, for good cause shown, shall otherwise direct. Upon transfer of a certificate bearing such notation, each new certificate issued therefor shall bear a similar notation together with the name of the original dissenting holder of the shares and a transferee shall acquire no rights in the corporation except those which the original dissenting shareholder had at the time of transfer.

(g) Within fifteen days after the expiration of the period within which shareholders may file their notices of election to dissent, or within fifteen days after the proposed corporate action is consummated, whichever is later (but in no case later than ninety days from the shareholders' authorization date), the corporation or, in the case of a merger or consolidation, the surviving or new corporation, shall make a written offer by registered mail to each shareholder who has filed such notice of election to pay for his shares at a specified price which the corporation considers to be their fair value. Such offer shall be accompanied by a statement setting forth the aggregate number of shares with respect to which notices of election to dissent have been received and the aggregate number of holders of such shares. If the corporate action has been consummated, such offer shall also be accompanied by (1) advance payment to each such shareholder who has submitted the certificates representing his shares to the corporation, as provided in paragraph (f), of an amount equal to eighty percent of the amount of such offer, or (2) as to each shareholder who has not yet submitted his certificates a statement that advance payment to him of an amount equal to eighty percent of the amount of such offer will be made by the corporation promptly upon submission of his certificates. If the corporate action has not been consummated at the time of the making of the offer, such advance payment or statement as to advance payment shall be sent to each shareholder entitled thereto forthwith upon consummation of the corporate action. Every advance payment or statement as to advance payment shall include advice to the shareholder to the effect that acceptance of such payment does not constitute a waiver of any dissenters' rights. If the corporate action has not been consummated upon the expiration of the ninety day period after the shareholders' authorization date, the offer may be conditioned upon the consummation of such action. Such offer shall be made at the same price per share to all dissenting shareholders of the same class, or if divided into series, of the same series and shall be accompanied by a balance sheet of the corporation whose shares the dissenting shareholder holds as of the latest available date, which shall not be earlier than twelve months before the making of such offer, and a profit and loss statement or statements for not less than a twelve month period ended on the date of such balance sheet or, if the corporation was not in existence throughout such twelve month period, for the portion thereof during which it was in existence. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the corporation shall not be required to furnish a balance sheet or profit and loss statement or statements to any shareholder to whom such balance sheet or profit and loss statement or statements were previously furnished, nor if in connection with obtaining the shareholders' authorization for or consent to the proposed corporate action the shareholders were furnished with a proxy or information statement, which included financial statements, pursuant to Regulation 14A or Regulation 14C of the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. If within thirty days after the making of such offer, the corporation making the offer and any shareholder agree upon the price to be paid for his shares, payment therefor shall be made within sixty days after the making of such offer or the consummation of the proposed corporate action, whichever is later, upon the surrender of the certificates for any such shares represented by certificates.

(h) The following procedure shall apply if the corporation fails to make such offer within such period of fifteen days, or if it makes the offer and any dissenting shareholder or shareholders fail to agree with it within the period of thirty days thereafter upon the price to be paid for their shares:

(1) The corporation shall, within twenty days after the expiration of whichever is applicable of the two periods last mentioned, institute a special proceeding in the supreme court in the judicial district in which the office of the corporation is located to determine the rights of dissenting shareholders and to fix the fair value of their shares. If, in the case of merger or consolidation, the surviving or new corporation is a foreign corporation without an office in this state, such proceeding shall be brought in the county where the office of the domestic corporation, whose shares are to be valued, was located.

(2) If the corporation fails to institute such proceeding within such period of twenty days, any dissenting shareholder may institute such proceeding for the same purpose not later than thirty days after the expiration of such twenty day period. If such proceeding is not instituted within such thirty day period, all dissenter's rights shall be lost unless the supreme court, for good cause shown, shall otherwise direct.

(3) All dissenting shareholders, excepting those who, as provided in paragraph (g), have agreed with the corporation upon the price to be paid for their shares, shall be made parties to such proceeding, which shall have the effect of an action quasi in rem against their shares. The corporation shall serve a copy of the petition in such proceeding upon each dissenting shareholder who is a resident of this state in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons, and upon each nonresident dissenting shareholder either by registered mail and publication, or in such other manner as is permitted by law. The jurisdiction of the court shall be plenary and exclusive.

(4) The court shall determine whether each dissenting shareholder, as to whom the corporation requests the court to make such determination, is entitled to receive payment for his shares. If the corporation does not request any such determination or if the court finds that any dissenting shareholder is so entitled, it shall proceed to fix the value of the shares, which, for the purposes of this section, shall be the fair value as of the close of business on the day prior to the shareholders' authorization date. In fixing the fair value of the shares, the court shall consider the nature of the transaction giving rise to the shareholder's right to receive payment for shares and its effects on the corporation and its shareholders, the concepts and methods then customary in the relevant securities and financial markets for determining fair value of shares of a corporation engaging in a similar transaction under comparable circumstances and all other relevant factors. The court shall determine the fair value of the shares without a jury and without referral to an appraiser or referee. Upon application by the corporation or by any shareholder who is a party to the proceeding, the court may, in its discretion, permit pretrial disclosure, including, but not limited to, disclosure of any expert's reports relating to the fair value of the shares whether or not intended for use at the trial in the proceeding and notwithstanding subdivision (d) of section 3101 of the civil practice law and rules.

(5) The final order in the proceeding shall be entered against the corporation in favor of each dissenting shareholder who is a party to the proceeding and is entitled thereto for the value of his shares so determined.

(6) The final order shall include an allowance for interest at such rate as the court finds to be equitable, from the date the corporate action was consummated to the date of payment. In determining the rate of interest, the court shall consider all relevant factors, including the rate of interest which the corporation would have had to pay to borrow money during the pendency of the proceeding. If the court finds that the refusal of any shareholder to accept the corporate offer of payment for his shares was arbitrary, vexatious or otherwise not in good faith, no interest shall be allowed to him.

(7) Each party to such proceeding shall bear its own costs and expenses, including the fees and expenses of its counsel and of any experts employed by it. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the court may, in its discretion, apportion and assess all or any part of the costs, expenses and fees incurred by the corporation against any or all of the dissenting shareholders who are parties to the proceeding, including any who have withdrawn their notices of election as provided in paragraph (e), if the court finds that their refusal to accept the corporate offer was arbitrary, vexatious or otherwise not in good faith. The court may, in its discretion, apportion and assess all or any part of the costs, expenses and fees incurred by any or all of the dissenting shareholders who are parties to the proceeding against the corporation if the court finds any of the following: (A) that the fair value of the shares as determined materially exceeds the amount which the corporation offered to pay; (B) that no offer or required advance payment was made by the corporation; (C) that the corporation failed to institute the special proceeding within the period specified therefor; or (D) that the action of the corporation in complying with its obligations as provided in this section was arbitrary, vexatious or otherwise not in good faith. In making any determination as provided in clause (A), the court may consider the dollar amount or the percentage, or both, by which the fair value of the shares as determined exceeds the corporate offer.

(8) Within sixty days after final determination of the proceeding, the corporation shall pay to each dissenting shareholder the amount found to be due him, upon surrender of the certificates for any such shares represented by certificates.

(i) Shares acquired by the corporation upon the payment of the agreed value therefor or of the amount due under the final order, as provided in this section, shall become treasury shares or be cancelled as provided in section 515 (Reacquired shares), except that, in the case of a merger or consolidation, they may be held and disposed of as the plan of merger or consolidation may otherwise provide.

(j) No payment shall be made to a dissenting shareholder under this section at a time when the corporation is insolvent or when such payment would make it insolvent. In such event, the dissenting shareholder shall, at his option:

(1) Withdraw his notice of election, which shall in such event be deemed withdrawn with the written consent of the corporation; or

(2) Retain his status as a claimant against the corporation and, if it is liquidated, be subordinated to the rights of creditors of the corporation, but have rights superior to the non-dissenting shareholders, and if it is not liquidated, retain his right to be paid for his shares, which right the corporation shall be obliged to satisfy when the restrictions of this paragraph do not apply.

(3) The dissenting shareholder shall exercise such option under subparagraph (1) or (2) by written notice filed with the corporation within thirty days after the corporation has given him written notice that payment for his shares cannot be made because of the restrictions of this paragraph. If the dissenting shareholder fails to exercise such option as provided, the corporation shall exercise the option by written notice given to him within twenty days after the expiration of such period of thirty days.

(k) The enforcement by a shareholder of his right to receive payment for his shares in the manner provided herein shall exclude the enforcement by such shareholder of any other right to which he might otherwise be entitled by virtue of share ownership, except as provided in paragraph (e), and except that this section shall not exclude the right of such shareholder to bring or maintain an appropriate action to obtain relief on the ground that such corporate action will be or is unlawful or fraudulent as to him.

(l) Except as otherwise expressly provided in this section, any notice to be given by a corporation to a shareholder under this section shall be given in the manner provided in section 605 (Notice of meetings of shareholders).

(m) This section shall not apply to foreign corporations except as provided in subparagraph (e) (2) of section 907 (Merger or consolidation of domestic and foreign corporations).

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies:

Nature of Operations:

Taylor Devices, Inc. (the Company) is primarily engaged in the manufacture and sale of tension control, energy storage and shock absorption devices for use in various types of machinery, equipment and structures, primarily to customers which are located throughout the United States and several foreign countries. The products are manufactured at the Company's sole operating facility in the United States where all of the Company's long-lived assets reside. The Company does not track sales by category within this group of products.

72% of the Company's 2007 revenue is generated from sales to customers in the United States and 23% is from sales to customers in Asia. Remaining sales are to customers in Europe, South America and Australia.

53% of the Company's 2006 revenue is generated from sales to customers in the United States and 44% is from sales to customers in Asia. Remaining sales are to customers in Europe.

Principles of Consolidation:

The accompanying consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and its 58% owned subsidiary, Tayco Realty Corporation (Realty). Minority stockholder's interest represents Tayco Developments, Inc.'s (Developments) 42% ownership interest in Realty. The Company considers the principles of Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) Interpretation (FIN) No. 46(R), Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities and Accounting Research Bulletin No. 51, Consolidation of Financial Statements when determining whether an entity is subject to consolidation. After such consideration, the Company otherwise accounts for its investments in companies over which it has the ability to exercise significant influence under the equity method if the Company holds 50% or less of the voting stock.

The Company's investment in its minority-owned affiliate, Developments, is reported on the equity method (see Note 7). Developments is a patent holding company engaged in research, development and licensing for use in the manufacturing operations of the Company.

All inter-company transactions and balances have been eliminated in consolidation.

Use of Estimates:

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Cash Equivalents and Short Term Investments:

The Company includes all highly liquid investments in money market funds in cash and cash equivalents on the accompanying balance sheets.

Cash and cash equivalents in financial institutions may exceed insured limits at various times during the year and subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk.

Accounts Receivable:

Accounts receivable are stated at an amount management expects to collect from outstanding balances. Management provides for probable uncollectible accounts through a charge to earnings and a credit to a valuation allowance based on its assessment of the current status of individual accounts. Balances that are still outstanding after management has used reasonable collection efforts are written off through a charge to the valuation allowance and a credit to accounts receivable.

Inventory:

Inventory is stated at the lower of average cost or market. Average cost approximates first-in, first-out cost.

Property and Equipment:

Property and equipment is stated at cost net of accumulated depreciation. Depreciation is provided primarily using the straight-line method for financial reporting purposes, and accelerated methods for income tax reporting purposes. Maintenance and repairs are charged to operations as incurred; significant improvements are capitalized.

E-7

Cash Value of Life Insurance:

Cash value of life insurance is stated at the surrender value of the contracts less outstanding policy loans.

Intangible Assets:

Intangible assets consist of financing costs associated with obtaining new financing and are capitalized and amortized over the repayment terms of the related debt obligations.

Revenue Recognition:

Sales are recognized when units are delivered or services are performed. Sales under fixed-price contracts are recorded as deliveries are made at the contract sales price of the units delivered. Sales under certain fixed-price contracts requiring substantial performance over several periods prior to commencement of deliveries, are accounted for under the percentage-of-completion method of accounting whereby revenues are recognized based on estimates of completion prepared on a ratio of cost to total estimated cost basis. Costs include all material and direct and indirect charges related to specific contracts. Other expenses are charged to operations as incurred. Total estimated costs for each of the contracts are estimated based on a combination of historical costs of manufacturing similar products and estimates or quotes from vendors for supplying parts or services towards the completion of the manufacturing process. Adjustments to cost estimates are made periodically, and losses expected to be incurred on contracts in progress are charged to operations in the period such losses are determined. If total costs calculated upon completion of the manufacturing process in the current period for a contract are more than the estimated total costs at completion used to calculate revenue in a prior period, then the revenue and profits in the current period will be lower than if the estimated costs used in the prior period calculation were equal to the actual total costs upon completion.

For financial statement presentation purposes, the Company nets progress billings against the total costs incurred on uncompleted contracts. The asset, "costs and estimated earnings in excess of billings," represents revenues recognized in excess of amounts billed. The liability, "billings in excess of costs and estimated earnings," represents billings in excess of revenues recognized.

Shipping and Handling Costs:

Shipping and handling costs are classified as a component of cost of goods sold.

Income Taxes:

The provision for income taxes provides for the tax effects of transactions reported in the financial statements regardless of when such taxes are payable. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the expected future tax consequences of temporary differences between the tax and financial statement basis of assets and liabilities. Deferred taxes are based on tax laws currently enacted with tax rates expected to be in effect when the taxes are actually paid or recovered.

Stock-Based Compensation:

On June 1, 2006, the Company adopted the provisions of Statement of Financial Accounting Standard(SFAS) No. 123 (revised 2004), Share-Based Payment: an amendment of FASB Statements No. 123 and 95(SFAS No. 123R). SFAS No. 123R requires entities to measure compensation cost arising from the grant of share-based payments to employees at fair value and to recognize such cost in income over the period during which the employee is required to provide service in exchange for the award, usually the vesting period. The Company selected the modified prospective method for implementing SFAS 123R and began applying the provisions to stock-based awards granted on or after June 1, 2006.

For the year ended May 31, 2006, the Company had previously adopted the provisions of SFAS No. 123, as amended by SFAS No. 148, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation -Transition and Disclosure through disclosure only and accounted for its stock-based employee compensation plans under APB Opinion No. 25. Accordingly, no compensation cost was recorded as all options granted had an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the underlying common stock on the date of the grant.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

Had 2006 compensation cost for the stock options plans been determined based on the fair value recognition provisions of SFAS No. 123R, the Company's net income and earnings per share, net of related tax effects, would have been reduced to the proforma amounts indicated below:

	2006
Net income:
As reported	$ 485,793
Pro forma	$ 377,619
Basic and diluted earnings per common share:
As reported	$.16
Pro forma	$.12

Reclassifications:

The 2006 financial statements have been reclassified to conform with the presentation adopted for 2007.

New Accounting Standards:

In November 2004, the FASB issued SFAS No. 151, Inventory Costs - an amendment of ARB No. 43 Chapter 4. This statement requires abnormal production costs such as idle facility expense, excessive spoilage, rehandling costs and abnormal freight to be excluded from inventory costing and treated as period expenses. In addition, this standard requires the allocation of fixed production overhead to be based on normal capacity of the production facility. The adoption of this standard in 2006 did not have a significant effect on our results.

In December 2004, the FASB issued SFAS No. 123 (revised 2004), Share-Based Payment: an amendment of FASB Statements No. 123 and 95 (SFAS No. 123R). SFAS No. 123R requires all share-based payments to employees, including grants of stock options, to be recognized in the financial statements based on their fair value. Implementation of the pronouncement was required no later than the beginning of the first fiscal year beginning after June 15, 2005. The Company adopted this Statement in fiscal 2007. The adoption of this standard in 2007 resulted in additional compensation expense recorded of $118,789. The Company also recorded a deferred tax benefit of $43,100 related to this expense. 2007 basic and diluted earnings per common share decreased by approximately $0.02 as a result of the adoption of this accounting standard.

In June 2006, the FASB issued FIN 48 "Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes." This interpretation requires the recognition of the impact of a tax position, if that position is more likely than not of being sustained on audit, based on the technical merits of the position. Implementation of the provisions of FIN 48 is required no later than the beginning of the first fiscal year beginning after December 15, 2006. The Company will adopt FIN 48 as of June 1, 2007, as required. The Company does not expect the adoption of this interpretation to have a material impact on the Company's financial statements.

In September 2006, the FASB issued SFAS No. 157 "Fair Value Measurements," to define fair value, establish a framework for measuring fair value in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and expand disclosures about fair value measurements. SFAS No. 157 will be effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007. The Company is assessing the impact the adoption of SFAS No. 157 will have on the Company's consolidated financial position and results of operations.

In February 2007, the FASB issued SFAS No. 159 "The Fair Value Option for Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities - an Amendment of SFAS No. 115." This statement permits entities to choose to measure many financial instruments and certain other items at fair value. The objective is to improve financial reporting by mitigating volatility in reporting earnings caused by measuring related assets and liabilities differently without having to apply complex hedge accounting provisions. SFAS No. 159 will be effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007. The Company is assessing the impact the adoption of SFAS No. 159 will have on the Company's consolidated financial position and results of operations.

Other recently issued FASB Statements or Interpretations, SEC Staff Accounting Bulletins, and AICPA Emerging Issue Task Force Consensuses have either been implemented or are not applicable to the Company.

Maintenance and other inventory represent stock that is estimated to have a product life-cycle in excess of twelve-months. This stock represents certain items the Company is required to maintain for service of products sold, and items that are generally subject to spontaneous ordering.

This inventory is particularly sensitive to technical obsolescence in the near term due to its use in industries characterized by the continuous introduction of new product lines, rapid technological advances and product obsolescence. Therefore, management of the Company has recorded an allowance for potential inventory obsolescence.

The provision for potential inventory obsolescence was $165,000 and $140,000 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

7. Investment in Affiliate:

Investment in affiliate consists of the Company's 23% ownership interest in common shares of Developments acquired at a cost of $85,619, plus the Company's cumulative equity in the net income of Developments of $365,901 and $354,759 through the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006. The Pink Sheets OTC quoted market value of the Company's common shares of Developments at May 31, 2007 and 2006 was $861,897 and $867,605.

The Company's maximum exposure to loss as a result of its involvement with Developments represents the balance of the Company's equity investment in Developments.

8. Short-Term Borrowings:

The Company has available a $5,000,000 bank demand line of credit with interest payable at the Company's option of 30, 60 or 90 day LIBOR rate plus 2.25% or the bank's prime rate less .25%. The line is secured by accounts receivable, equipment, inventory, and general intangibles. This line of credit is subject to the usual terms and conditions applied by the bank, and is subject to renewal annually. The amount outstanding under this line at May 31, 2007 was $1,628,000, all of which was payable at the bank's prime rate less .25% (8% at May 31, 2007). The total amount outstanding at May 31, 2006 was $3,011,000.

Outstanding checks under this arrangement totaled $18,358 and $271,279 as of May 31, 2007 and 2006. These amounts are included in accounts payable.

In November 1994, the Company entered into a capital lease agreement with the Niagara County Industrial Development Agency (NCIDA) to finance certain construction costs for additions to its manufacturing/ testing facilities and for the acquisition of machinery and equipment. To finance the project, NCIDA authorized the sale of its Industrial Revenue Development Bonds, in the aggregate principal amount of $1,250,000, under a trust indenture with a bank as trustee. The capital lease obligation is secured by a first mortgage on real estate, project machinery and equipment, and guaranteed by an irrevocable bank letter of credit in the amount of $115,000 as of May 31, 2007.

As of May 31, 2007, $29,978 of funds were held by a trustee, representing an interest-bearing tax-free money fund restricted for principal reduction payments of the Industrial Revenue Development Bond during fiscal year ending May 31, 2008.

The term note and mortgage note are subject to restrictive covenants relating to net working capital, tangible net worth, capital expenditures and interest coverage ratio. The Company is in compliance with all of the covenants as of May 31, 2007.

The aggregate maturities of long-term debt subsequent to May 31, 2007 are:

Deferred tax assets:
Allowance for doubtful receivables	$ 54,800	$ 38,500
Tax inventory adjustment	104,800	50,100

Excess tax depreciation	(281,585)	(246,200)
Net deferred tax assets	$ 387,815	$ 384,815

Realization of the deferred tax assets is dependent on generating sufficient taxable income at the time temporary differences become deductible. The Company provides a valuation allowance to the extent that deferred tax assets may not be realized. A valuation allowance has not been recorded against the deferred tax assets since management believes it is more likely than not that the deferred tax assets are recoverable. The Company considers future taxable income and potential tax planning strategies in assessing the need for a potential valuation allowance. The amount of the deferred tax assets considered realizable however, could be reduced in the near term if estimates of future taxable income are reduced.

Income on undistributed earnings from affiliates and subsidiary are considered to be permanently reinvested, and therefore no provision for deferred income taxes has been recorded.

The Company and its subsidiary file separate Federal and State income tax returns. As of May 31, 2007, the Company had State investment tax credit carryforwards of approximately $175,000 expiring through May 2014.

12. Earnings Per Common Share:

Basic earnings per common share is computed by dividing income available to common stockholders by the weighted-average common shares outstanding for the period. Diluted earnings per common share reflects the weighted-average common shares outstanding and dilutive potential common shares, such as stock options.

A reconciliation of weighted-average common shares outstanding to weighted-average common shares outstanding assuming dilution is as follows:

	2007	2006
Average common shares

outstanding	3,143,964	3,112,747
Common shares issuable under stock option plans	8,226	10,712

Included in cost of sales are research and development expenses charged by Developments for services performed by its research engineers in the amount of $161,610 and $128,820 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

Included in selling, general and administrative expenses is royalty expense charged by Developments for the use of patents in the Company's manufacturing operations in the amount of $91,740 and $97,133 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

During the year, the Company issued an unsecured promissory note payable to Developments for $241,956. The outstanding balance at May 31, 2007 is $144,399. Interest, at 8% per year, is payable monthly through June 2008, when any unpaid principal is due.

The Company leases certain office and laboratory facilities to Developments for a current annual rental of $12,000.

14. Employee Stock Purchase Plan:

In March 2004, the Company reserved 295,000 shares of common stock for issuance pursuant to a non-qualified employee stock purchase plan. Participation in the employee stock purchase plan is voluntary for all employees of the Company. Purchase of common shares can be made by employee contributions through payroll deductions with a discretionary matching contribution by the Company of a specified percentage of the employees' contributions based on length of employment with the Company. At the end of each calendar quarter, the employer/employee contributions will be applied to the purchase of common shares at fair market value which are then held in the name of the Company as custodian for the employees' shares. These shares are distributed to the employees at the end of each calendar quarter or upon withdrawal from the plan. During the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006, 2,827 ($4.93 to $6.13 price per share) and 1,576 ($2.99 to $5.72 price per share) common shares, respectively, were issued to employees. As of May 31, 2007, 246,512 shares were reserved for further issue. The amount of Company matching expense was zero for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

15. Stock Option Plans:

In 2005, the Company adopted a stock option plan which permits the Company to grant both incentive stock options and non-qualified stock options. The incentive stock options qualify for preferential treatment under the Internal Revenue Code. Under this plan, 140,000 shares of common stock have been reserved for grant to key employees and directors of the Company and 52,500 shares have been granted as of May 31, 2007. Under the plan, the option price may not be less than the fair market value of the stock at the time the options are granted. Options vest immediately and expire ten years from the date of grant. Options granted under the Company's previous nonqualified and incentive stock option plans that have not been exercised will expire ten years from the date of grant and are exercisable over the period stated in each option.

Using the Black-Scholes option pricing model, the weighted average estimated fair value of each option granted under the plan was $3.10 during 2007 and $4.62 during 2006. The pricing model uses the assumptions noted in the following table. Expected volatility is based on the historical volatility of the Company's stock. The risk-free interest rate for periods within the contractual life of the option is based on the U.S. Treasury yield curve in effect at the time of the grant. The expected life of options granted is derived from previous history of stock exercises from the grant date and represents the period of time that options granted are expected to be outstanding. The Company uses historical data to estimate option exercise and employee termination assumptions under the valuation model. The Company has never paid dividends on its common stock and does not anticipate doing so in the foreseeable future.

Risk-free interest rate	3.1%	5.125%
Expected life in years	2.5	10

Expected dividend yield	0%	0%

The Company maintains a retirement plan for essentially all employees pursuant to Section 401(k) of the Internal Revenue Code. The amount expensed under the plan was $16,538 and $12,763 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

19. Fair Value of Financial Instruments:

The carrying amounts of cash and cash equivalents, restricted funds held by trustee, accounts receivable, accounts payable, accrued liabilities, and short-term borrowings approximate fair value because of the short maturity of these instruments.

These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Tayco Developments, Inc. as of May 31, 2007 and 2006 and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

TAYCO DEVELOPMENTS, INC.

Notes to Financial Statements1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies:*Nature of Operations:

Tayco Developments, Inc. (the Company) is a patent holding company engaged in research, development and licensing services for use in the manufacturing operation of its affiliate, Taylor Devices, Inc. (Devices). The Company's revenues are derived from services provided to Devices (see Note 7).

Cash and Cash Equivalents:

Cash and cash equivalents in financial institutions may exceed insured limits at various times during the year and subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk.

Investments in Affiliates:

The Company considers the principles of Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) Interpretation (FIN) No. 46(R), Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities and Accounting Research Bulletin No. 51, Consolidation of Financial Statements when determining whether an entity is subject to consolidation. After such consideration, the Company otherwise accounts for its investments in companies over which it has the ability to exercise significant influence under the equity method if the Company holds 50% or less of the voting stock.

The Company's investment in its minority-owned affiliates, Devices and Tayco Realty Corporation (Realty), are reported on the equity method (see Note 2). Devices is primarily engaged in the manufacture and sale of tension control, energy storage and shock absorption devices for use in various types of machinery, equipment and structures, primarily to customers which are located throughout the United States and several foreign countries. Realty owns the real estate assets used by the Company and Devices.

Research and Development:

The cost of material and labor incurred for research and development is expensed when incurred.

Intangible Assets:

Intangible assets consist of the cost of obtaining patents, which represent legal expenditures incurred for patents and patent applications, capitalized and amortized over their expected economic useful life, an average of 15 years, on a straight-line basis.

Property and Equipment:

Property and equipment is stated at cost net of accumulated depreciation. Depreciation is provided using straight-line and accelerated methods.

Income Taxes:

The provision for income taxes is based on pretax financial accounting income. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the expected future tax consequences of temporary differences between the tax and financial statement bases of assets and liabilities. No temporary differences exist as of May 31, 2007 and 2006 which would otherwise give rise to deferred taxes on the accompanying balance sheets.

Use of Estimates:

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

2. Investments in Affiliates:

	2007	2006
Investment, at cost
Devices (approximately 25% ownership)	$ 375,866	$ 375,866
Tayco Realty Corporation (Realty) (42% ownership)	102,400	102,400
	478,266	478,266
Cumulative equity in net income of the affiliates	2,318,971	2,147,426
Cumulative equity in equity adjustment of affiliate due to tax benefit related to employee stock option plans	44,070	44,070
	$ 2,841,307	$ 2,669,762
	F-7

Equity in net income of affiliates consisted of the following:

	2007	2006
Devices	$ 134,936	$ 111,296
Realty	36,609	32,904
	$ 171,545	$ 144,200

The quoted market value of the Company's common shares of Devices at May 31, 2007 and 2006 was $4,045,889 and $4,255,159. The market value for Realty is not available.

Edgar Filing: TAYLOR DEVICES INC - Form S-4/A

The cost of the investments in the affiliates exceeded the Company's share of the underlying book value of net assets of these affiliates by $179,226 at the various dates of acquisition, and this excess ($51,881 balance at May 31, 2007) was amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years, by reducing reported equity in net income of affiliates. In accordance with SFAS 142 Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets, amortization of the remaining balance was ceased at May 31, 2002. The common shares of Realty and approximately 57% of the common shares of Devices owned by the Company are unregistered and, therefore, their marketability is limited.

Following is a summary of the consolidated financial position and results of operations of these affiliates:

	2007	2006
Balance sheet:
Current assets	$ 11,955,228	$ 12,816,295

Patents	$ 283,795	$ 283,795
Less accumulated amortization	213,706	199,630
	$ 70,089	$ 84,165

Amortization expense for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006 was $14,076 and $13,993.

The estimated amortization expense for each of the five years subsequent to May 31, 2007 is:

2008	$13,371
2009	$12,622
2010	$10,818
2011	$ 8,868
2012	$ 7,421

5. Provision for Income Taxes:

	2007	2006
Current tax provision (benefit):
Federal	$ 2,000	$ (15,000)
State	6,400	6,900
	$ 8,400	$ (8,100)

The Company's effective tax rate varies from the federal statutory income tax rate primarily as a result of state taxes net of federal benefits, progressive statutory rates, and untaxed affiliated company income.

Income on undistributed earnings from affiliates are considered to be permanently reinvested, and therefore no provision for deferred income taxes has been recorded.

6. Earnings Per Common Share:

Basic earnings per common share have been computed based upon the weighted average of common shares outstanding during the year. The number of shares used in the computation of basic and diluted earnings per share was 987,928 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

F-8

7. Related Party Transactions:

Royalty revenues were earned from Devices for the use of Company patents in its manufacturing operations.

Research and development revenues were earned from services performed by Company research engineers for Devices.

The Company leases office and laboratory facilities from Devices at a current annual rental of $12,000. Rental expenses under the lease were $12,000 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006.

Included in interest income is $13,459 and $17,629 for the years ended May 31, 2007 and 2006, earned from Devices for non-current receivables. In June 2006, Devices issued an unsecured promissory note payable to the Company for $241,956, the outstanding balance at May 31, 2006. The outstanding balance at May 31, 2007 is $144,399. Interest, at 8% per year, is receivable monthly through June 2008, when any unpaid principal is due to be received.

The Company's maximum exposure to loss as a result of its involvement with Devices and Realty represents the balance of the Company's equity investment in the affiliates and the receivable balances outstanding from them.

PART II

INFORMATION NOT REQUIRED IN THE PROSPECTUS

Item 20. Indemnification of Directors and Officers

The Certificate of Incorporation of the Registrant eliminates or limits the personal liability of the members of the Registrant's Board of Directors to the fullest extent permitted under the New York Business Corporation Law (the "BCL"), providing that directors will not be liable to the Registrant or its shareholders for monetary damages for breach of fiduciary duty as a director, except to the extent required by law. The BCL requires that a director be liable if a judgment or other final disposition adverse to the director establishes that (1) such director's acts or omissions were in bad faith or involved intentional misconduct or knowing violation of law; or (2) such director personally gained in fact a financial profit or other advantage to which the director was not legally entitled; or (3) the acts of such director violated Section 719 of the BCL. Section 719 provides that, unless a director performs the duties of a director in good faith and with a degree of care which an ordinary prudent person in a like position would use under similar circumstances, the director may be liable for voting or concurring in the following corporate actions; (a) the declaration of an illegal dividend; (b) a corporation's repurchase of its own stock when the repurchase is not authorized by New York law; (c) the distribution of assets to shareholders after dissolution of the corporation without adequately providing for known liabilities of the corporation; and (d) a loan by a corporation to any director unless the loan is authorized by a vote of shareholders.

The Registrant's by-laws require the Registrant to indemnify any person (including any director, officer or employee) to the full extent permitted by law, who is made, or threatened to be made, a party to any action or proceeding, whether criminal or civil, by reason of the fact that such person is or was a director or officer of the Registrant or serves or served any other corporation in any capacity at the request of the Registrant.

On November 2, 2007, the shareholders of the Registrant approved Indemnity Agreements (each, an "Indemnity Agreement") with certain of its executive officers and directors (the "Indemnitees") by which the Registrant formally agreed to indemnify them in the event that they, or any of them, is made a party to or is threatened to be made a party to, or is otherwise involved in a proceeding (other than a proceeding by or in the right of the Registrant to procure a judgment in its favor), against all expenses, liabilities, judgments, fines and penalties actually and reasonably incurred by Indemnitee in connection with the defense or settlement of such proceeding, but only if Indemnitee acted in good faith and in a manner which he reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the Registrant and, in the case of a criminal proceeding, in addition, had no reasonable cause to believe that his conduct was unlawful.

Under the Indemnity Agreement, no indemnification can be made for (i) judgments, fines, penalties, or amounts paid in settlement by or on behalf of Indemnitee; or (ii) other expenses with respect to any claim, issue or matter as to which Indemnitee shall have been adjudged to be liable to the Registrant, unless and only to the extent that any court in which such proceeding was brought determines upon application that, despite any adjudication of liability but in view of all circumstances of the case, Indemnitee is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for such judgments, fines, penalties, or expenses as such court shall deem proper. The Indemnity Agreement also excludes, among others, any right to payments made under any insurance policy, or payments paid to an Indemnitee, otherwise than pursuant to the Indemnity Agreement.

Item 21. Exhibits and Financial Statement Schedules.

- (b) Financial statement schedules. None.
- (c) Reports of ValuQuest Business Appraisals and Empire Valuation Consultants, LLC are furnished as part of the Prospectus.
